WHAT WOULD YOU DO IF YOU OWNED KINGSTON?

H. Ralph Suggests That the City Appoint a Mayor on a Salary and That Steps Be Taken to Develop its Natural Waterfront—Should Be the Best Summer Resort.

What would you do if you owned Kingston? This question raised by the Whig has created a good deal of interest, and is one that provides much food for thought. In an interview to-day, H. Ralph gave the following:

"What I would do if I owned Kingston would be first of all to install a manager for mayor on a salary, and he would have to know his business to hold his job. Then I should consider the advisability of developing its natural waterfront into an attractive boulevard or board walk for its citizens, as well as for its summer visitors. The city hall, with its imposing front, could be made much more attractive, with a small lawn or garden, in place of the ugly basement with an uniform building on each side of the same material, and color to match, one each on the blocks adjoining, these buildings to be used as hotels or offices. The Shipyard and Locomotive works would have to move out to Portmouth or to where they choose for all the revenues I would get from either would not amount to a tithe of what I should expect during the busy months of the tourist season. Kingston would have to compete with all and any sea or lakeside resort and be made attractive to the best class of tourists.

"My development scheme would extend from the bathing house to the bridge. Everything would have to come down from Tete-de-Pont barracks to the bathing house, everything that was unsightly and in the way of a straight line from the bridge to the park, Ontario street would naturally become the main street of the city and would be straight through to join King street, at the new power house. The two railway stations would have to be rebuilt to form a union station, and I would make the C. P. R. gardener sign a contract as I would need him in my scheme. I would follow the example of Montreal and have a memorial avenue of trees to commemorate our citizen soldiers who fell in the war. These trees would in years to come, form a beautiful shady walk, from one end of the waterfront to the other. Mr. Campbell would be my chief adviser for docks and accommodation for the fleet of passenger boats that would run here regularly, especially when the deep waterway was completed from Kingston to the sea.

"My dream would be to see the 'Montcalm' or 'Montrose,' of the C. P. R. at the foot of Princess and Brock street, instead of the old 'Brookville' and 'Waubic.' They could still be of service as tugs or tenders, to carry belated passengers or freight to the big ships. This in all seriousness as the tenders that carry passengers and baggage to the big liners when laying at anchor, are as big as our present fleet. This shipping would not have to interfere with my seaside (or lakeside) tourist retreat project, and those rails near the Grand Trunk station would extend right along the waterfront of the city hall leading right down into the water, say as wide as the city hall. Its industrial end would be chiefly catering and service, and whatever revenue came from industrial development would be of only secondary importance and would have to be carried on out Portmouth way or near the Junction. Kingston will eventually revert to this, so why not now. She will never be able to compete with other cities industrially. She is too pretty and her beautiful natural waterfront, if developed, would bring in as much in trade as if it was built along with foundries, factories and shipyards, lying idle most of the time. My aim would be to make Kingston a forest city, like Portland, Me., a beautiful place to live in, and a place known all along the American seaboard as a good place to spend the summer."

BIRTH OF BOY BRINGS PEACE TO THE HARTS

Wild Bill and His Young Wife Re-united—Divorce Case Drops.

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 8.—A nine-pound boy was born to Mrs. Winnifred Westover Hart, wife of Wild Bill Hart, yesterday afternoon. The son and heir of Wild Bill will be named William S. Hart, Jr., and his advent into the world is reported to have reunited Mr. and Mrs. Hart, who were on the verge of a matrimonial splitup a short time ago.

Mrs. Hart had ordered divorce papers drawn up, but now they are headed for the waste basket according to friends of the couple. Daddy Bill spent many anxious hours at the hospital, awaiting the arrival of the stork. When the nurse informed him that all was well and that it was a boy, a wide grin overspread Bill's unusually grim features. A few minutes later he was permitted to enter Mrs. Hart's room and Mr. and Mrs. Hart exchanged happy greetings and smiles.

Wild Bill and Miss Westover, daughter of a San Francisco newspaper man, were married in December, 1921. She was a supporting member of Mr. Hart's company.

A month ago reports of their domestic difficulties were made public and Mrs. Hart's attorney had drawn up divorce papers. Mrs. Hart charged the film hero with extreme cruelty.

Action on the divorce case was delayed, however, pending the arrival of the stork. Now, according to close friends of the movie couple, the past will be forgotten and domestic peace will once more settle over the Hart home.

HOMESICK FOR QUEBEC.

Many French-Canadians May Leave Eastern States.

Sherbrooke, Sept. 8.—That Quebec is on the eve of a considerable movement of French-Canadian people from the United States is the opinion of Joseph L. Courtemanche, a native of the province, who has recently returned from New Hampshire to take up land near Boynton. Mr. Courtemanche secured a farm from the Soldier Settlement Board and tells the Record that he is delighted with his proposition and glad to be back in the land of his forefathers.

"In my opinion," said Mr. Courtemanche, "there are many people of my race in the Eastern States who would be glad of such a chance as I have had to come back to Canada. I have met many men in the mills who have told me that they longed to return to Quebec. They went across the border, attracted by the high wages paid in the mills and the promise of steady work. But there has been a change. The wages are not so good, and many of them have lost a good deal of time through the partial closing of many of the mills, so that money is not as plentiful as it was during the war and the year after.

Fort William Elevators Will Have Big Additions Ready For Use.

Fort William, Sept. 8.—Yesterday saw the completion of the two-million-bushel capacity annex by Barnes & McQueen on the northwestern elevator. In twenty days' time the machinery will be installed and the new house will be ready for the handling of its portion of the 1922 crop.

The addition of the one-million-bushel annex to Peterson's elevator "C" is well under way and will be completed in two weeks. The unit will consist of 22 concrete storage tanks.

In seven days' time the $500,000 steel conveyor bridge at the C.P.R. coal dock, Island No. 1, will be completed. The work has been under way since April 25th by the McMyler Interstate Construction Company, Cleveland. The bridge is entirely of steel, equipped with electric motors, and thereby not only are hoists operated, but the whole bridge can be moved from place to place at the will of the operator.

Citizens Get Preference From Sault Coal Dealers

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 8.—Through an understanding reached between Mayor Dawson and the coal dealers of the city, the supplies of anthracite now on hand will be held by the dealers for one week for sale to city patrons, and will then be disposed of by the dealers in the best market available. For the past two seasons the coal dealers have purchased broadly, and the coal, sometimes acquired at a stiff price, has been left on their hands. The arrangement was made by the mayor when it was found that Sault coal was being sold in fairly large quantities in Sudbury and other places. The price here ranges from $15.50 to $19.50 per ton for anthracite.

YOUNG WOMAN DROWNED.

Attempt at Rescue Almost Caused Second Fatality.

Brookville, Sept. 8.—Falling from a skiff into the St. Lawrence river near Alexandria Bay, Miss Mary F. Fitzgould, aged 24, of New York City, private secretary to A. G. Miles, a summer resident among the islands, was drowned in 40 feet of water. A camper, Harold Dillintosh, who went to the rescue of the young woman, was himself with difficulty saved from death by another man, after the girl had clasped him in a strangle hold. Dillintosh went down with her twice before being rescued. When Oscar Andrea, aged 18, brought the body to the surface after diving, life was found to be extinct.

Town Hall Short of Coal.

Ogdensburg, N.Y., Sept. 8.—In connection with conditions confronting this community as a result of the coal strike it was stated by Thomas Preston, janitor at the town hall, that there is only half a ton of coal on hand there. In heating the building 175 tons are consumed usually. Householders, with bins empty, are becoming alarmed as cold weather approaches.
