TO-NIGHT.
"The Emperor Jones" With Charles Gilpin.
 An important attraction is announced for the Grand Opera House tonight. Adolph Klauer will present the greatest dramatic novelty of the past decade, Eugene O'Neill's unusual play, "The Emperor Jones," with Charles S. Gilpin, the astonishing actor, who rose from obscurity to world-fame in one night, in the title role.
 The play is built upon somewhat different lines than the usual run of dramatic offerings. It is in eight scenes, laid in the West Indies, and depicts the adventures of an ex-Pullman porter, who flees through a dense forest to escape the vengeance of the ignorant black natives he has plundered. During the action of the play, the Emperor passes through all the human emotions; beginning in a humorous vein, the scenes graduate from expressions of slight alarm to bewilderment, to the depths of desperation and despair. Mr. Gilpin's art is said to carry his audience breathless and tense, throughout the unfolding of the story.
 The presentation will be made in this city with the same attention given to every detail as during its entire season's run at the Princess Theatre, New York and extended runs in Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago.

At The Grand.
 Booth Tarkington's "Clarence" his greatest and latest comedy of youth will be the offering of the Rex Stock Company, at the Grand Opera House, the last half of this week.
 Joe Kelly will have the best chance of his career as Bobby Wheeler, the young son who thinks himself very much a man of the world, a real Tarkington kid and Joe is going to do very well in the part. Bill Yule will appear as the blustering exhausted father of a family that fights from morning till night. Of course Rex is Clarence and Zana the Governess whom the soldier eventually captures.
 Hazel and Florence have good parts as well as the other girls.

Miss Machan and Miss Rey. "Clarence" promises to be one of the stellar attractions of the season.

At the Allen.
 What would you do if you had gone to sea, been shipwrecked, had lived for seven long years on an uncharted island yearning for the face of your loved ones, only to return at last and find your wife married to another man and the "father" of your own children?
 That was the tragic home coming of Enoch Arden in Lord Alfred Tennyson's immortal poem, which comes again to the screen in D. W. Griffith's brilliant picturization of "The Fatal Marriage" at the Allen theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The production is based upon the poem immortalized by Lord Tennyson and in his treatment of this strongly dramatic material Mr.
 Griffith, with his consummate mastery, has adhered closely to the poem.

The departure of Enoch on his adventure to sea against the wishes of his wife, is pictured with poignant appeal. Mr. Griffith, with customary facility, has brought out all the dramatic elements of this situation.
 The shipwreck is another big scene, treated in the usual Griffith manner. The great schooner wallowing helpless in the trough of the sea. The fury of the elements. The mighty combers beating a relentless attack upon the quivering hull.
 The heavens shot with shafts of lightning. The struggles of the seamen penned in the water-flooded cabin. The crashing of wreckage under the onslaught of tons and tons of water. The escape of the men.
 The final death plunge of the ship.
 The fate of the three survivors cast upon an uncharted island. The death of two of the men. The experiences of the one man left. All this been done with tremendous power.

The home-coming of Enoch who returns to his old town with face almost hidden with a beard, only to find his sweet-faced little wife wedded to an old sailor, played by Wallace Reid, is an episode of powerful heart appeal.
 There are other keenly interesting situations. The wedding of Annie, who supposes she is a widow, and his Philip, who has loved her secretly for years, is unusual in its mingling of joy and tragedy.

"Orphans of the Storm."
 The public of this community will have an opportunity next Monday evening to see D. W. Griffith's latest picture sensation, "Orphans of the Storm," a United Artists' release, will be shown at the Allen theatre.
 This is a tremendous photoplay built upon the story of D'Ennery's old stage favorite, "The Two Orphans," and is Mr. Griffith's most ambitious effort.
 He hopes by this picture to provide a contribution to history of the past, presenting it in an understandable, yet forcefully dramatic manner, whereby it might carry a warning for a future that can only escape mistakes of the past, by avoiding their cause.

At The Strand.
 It has been a long time since the Strand theatre has offered any such picture as "My Old Kentucky Home" which will be featured for the last three days of this week. It contains the finest race scenes shown on any screen and these are incidental to a story that is brimming with intense heart interest.
 The story alone is well worth seeing but when such a leading man as Monte Blue is featured patrons of the Strand theatre can feel assured they are going to get an hour's splendid entertainment. The picture is not a sentimental one, as the title might suggest. There is a real, big, thrilling story outlined, dealing with a question that is always good for a lot of discussion in any company.

On the same programme will be offered Harold Lloyd, Chaplin's only rival for the kingship of comedy color of California. Lloyd will be shown in "Crack Your Heels," a comedy that is sure to make you laugh. Then there will be episode 14 of "The Secret Four." There is only one more episode after this one and, of course, "The Pathe News" will have its honored place in the evening's entertainment.
 Tonight will be your last opportunity to enjoy a good hearty laugh at Owen Moore in "Reported Missing."

Queen's Expect Batstone.
 The announcement of certain players coming to Queen's this year appears at the present time to be more fact than fiction. "Bud" Thomas, the Ottawa star, whose intentions of coming to join the tricolor were affirmed some time ago, has arrived in the city. As an all round athlete, in starting, rugby, he will be a decided strength to the team. Gamble, a St. Catharines boy, who has made a name for himself in the rugby world, is also a newcomer to Queen's and will be an acquisition.
 The rumors regarding Batstone coming to the local camp, grow more persistent from day to day, and are heard from reliable sources. While "mum's word" around Queen's, it is said that the end of the week will find the Toronto star in a tricolor uniform.

 cess in his new field of service.
 Mr. Millar came to Kingston from
