KINGSTON FAIR CLOSES; ATTENDANCE A RECORD

The Exhibition a Financial Success—The Concluding Events on Saturday.

The Kingston Fair closed on Saturday evening and the interest of visitors was maintained right up to the end of the day. At 7 p.m. the directors formed a parade at the market square headed by the P.W.O. band and composed of automobiles containing the president, manager and directors, the officials and some of the performers, including Miss Jessie Leo Nichols with her trick horses and mule that added so much to the grand stand and about the race tracks. Hundreds lined the Princess street and many followed the parade right to the grounds and spent the evening there. While no exact figures have been given out by Manager R. J. Bushell, regarding the paid admissions, a fair estimate places the number during the five days at over 50,000. Of one thing, however, the management is able to speak with certainty, and that is the financial success of the fair. President Wilnot and the directors are eminently pleased over this fact. The figures are not available for publication just yet but will be published as soon as the executive is able to give them out. Every effort was made to keep down expenses so that there would be a substantial credit balance. Many think that a fair should not be run as a revenue-producing institution, but this theory is all right provided there are no expenditures required every year for the erection and maintenance of buildings. There is always something to be done that calls for money, and from this year's experience it is evident that the cattle accommodation should be increased and improved.

This year the fine weather enabled thousands of rural residents to visit the fair and the Kingston merchants did a good business in consequence. It is impossible to obtain any estimate of the amount of money brought to the city by the fair, but it gave a big stimulus to trade and the merchants are pleased over the results.

Egg-laying Contest.
On Saturday evening Benjamin Whitney who was in charge of the poultry house announced the results of the egg-laying contest in which five prominent poultry keepers entered the same number of birds. They were W. J. Arnie, barred Rocks; J. White, white Wyandottes; J. Holland, barred Rocks; J. Laturney, barred Rocks; Baker Bros., Anconas. The hens were confined in pens for the five days of the fair and the eggs laid were collected and recorded. The standing on Saturday evening was: W. J. Arnie's barred Rocks laid 13 eggs; J. Holland's 13; Baker Bros.' 12; J. Laturney's 11 and J. White's 11.

The Whig published results in the various classes of exhibits from day to day as they were obtainable, but the complete list of prize winners will be published entire as soon as it is available. The exhibits with the exception of the live stock removed on Saturday, were kept in the palace over Sunday and removed by the owners Monday.

RACE RESULTS.
2.25 Class.
Directum Murphy, T. K. Nicholson, Kingston . . . 2 1 1
Ocell Maud, D. Smith, Belleville . . . 1 2 2
Penalty, C. Randall, Kingston . . . 3 4 2
Don Peters, J. F. Mulville, Westport . . . 4 3 4
Time of race, 2:25 1-2.

2.45 Class.
King Hal, M. McMartin, Westport . . . 4 1 1
Starlight Dan, D. Smith, Belleville . . . 1 4 5
Iola The Great, C. Woods, Bartfield . . . 6 2 2
Fred Patch, W. G. Veale, Kingston . . . 2 3 4
Time of race, 2:35.

The races on Saturday were just about the best of the entire week, and in the majority of cases, the heats were very close. The winners were always in doubt until the final heat, and the favorites did not always win at that. The splendid showing of T. K. Nicholson's horse, Directum Murphy, was very popular with the racing fans. This horse was entered in most of the events and made a fine record for itself.

ESSAY ON BRITISH EMPIRE.

Written by Verna Clark of the Bell Rock Public School.

The following paper on "The British Empire" was written by Verna Clark, Bell Rock school, where the teacher is Miss Winnifred Guild.

"The British empire is the greatest, widest and most powerful the world has ever seen. Its freedom is the pride of its sons and the despair of its foes. The types of Britain are the lion, which stands for majesty and power, the bulldog which expresses tenacity, and the mythical figure of Britannia which signifies the freedom of the seas under its rule. The emblem, however, which is best known to us all and which is dearest to every boy and girl is the flag. It floats over our public buildings, our schools, and our churches. To insult it, is to insult the majesty of the Empire. To honor it is to honor the noble principles for which it stands.

AT ST. GEORGE'S CATHEDRAL.

Rev. F. H. W. Archbold Preached at the Morning Service.

An eloquent Irishman, Rev. F. H. W. Archbold was the preacher in St. George's Cathedral on Sunday morning, taking as his text, Jonah 1:12 the story of the warning sent in love by God to the people of Nineveh by his prophet Jonah, of Jonah's turning aside and his final delivery of the message, that if the people of this beautiful, wicked city did not repent within forty days it would be overthrown. This huge city of the old world, three days journey, or sixty miles in length, with its temples and glittering minarets was going on its wicked way when the prophet entered the poor port calling to the people to repent lest destruction should fall upon them. His cry was heard in God. The King arose from his throne, cast his gorgeous robe from him, put on sack cloth and proclaimed a fast for man and beast while they wore the robes of repentance. Repentance, said the speaker, that is being sorry for sin, is an easier thing than leading a new life. To man speaking from a pulpit to-day, can promise his hearers forty hours, much less than forty days in which to hear God's call and turn from their evil ways. God sends his message of loving warning today to all who have ears to hear to repent and turn to Him.
