In Japan arranging cut flowers is an art. The way every branch or spray is placed is symbolic. The Japanese insist on keeping the natural and typical form of each stem or branch and depend on combining two or three branches to make an effective design. Rarely is more than one kind of plant used in the same vase, and the vases are purposely kept simple, in order not to distract attention from the flowers.

MUSICIANS' STRIKE OVER.

Theatres Engage Ten Musicians Instead of Nineteen.

The musicians' strike which began about a month ago, has been settled and the artists are dispensing harmonious strains in the theatres as usual. The dispute between the Grand Opera House and the musicians resulted in the management contracting for five musicians during the season last Saturday. The Allen theatre has agreed to accept three musicians and the Strand theatre will have two. The original demand of the union was for seven musicians in the Grand and Allen and five in the Strand. The compromise was effected after considerable negotiation between the management and the local union executive, as well as the headquarters' executive.

Capt. Fred Reid, of the fire department, who has been laid up for several weeks on account of illness, is well on the road to recovery now.
