QUEEN'S OFFERS NEW EXTENSION LECTURE

They Are Offered to Communities Seeking Culture, For Small Nominal Charge.

A noteworthy feature of post-war activities has been the wide-spread demand for information and instruction among the public at large. Societies such as the Canadian Clubs flourish and develop continually. A lecturer such as Batsone comes to Toronto to lecture on evolution and business men attend his lectures in hundreds. The farmers' movement again has called into existence a whole school of lecturers on topics which shall fit the agriculturalist for the position into which his clan activity has forced him. In a general way the demand on well-known public speakers is greater than it has ever been.

To meet this demand Queen's University has been revising its list of extension lectures and systematising the lectures on a syllabus. It was felt that far greater value would be given by a series of lectures on related subjects than by isolated discourses, however brilliant, on unconnected topics. As few of the centres which might be inclined to ask for lectures would be able to carry on extensive programmes, it was thought fit by the committee charged with the task to cut down the series to three. It is in this way that extension courses are offered to any centres within reach of Kingston which may be desirous of availing themselves of this opportunity for interest and instruction.

Any town or populous centre within two or three hours of Kingston which wishes to have for example three lectures before or after Christmas has only to write to the director of extension work for the syllabus, and choose an appropriate series. High school headmasters, ministers, farmers' clubs, women's clubs, inclined to support this proposition are cordially invited to communicate with the same official.

The syllabus is of varied and wide scope. There are lectures on world problems and Canada's difficulties by Dean Skelton and Professor Clark. The history department explains the thorny question of reparations. A series which might be recommended for schools covers the field dealt with in the first part of Mr. Well's history. The Making of the Earth, Professor Manly Baskin. The Origin of Life, Prof. G. B. Reed; The Development of Man, Prof. Stanley Smith. Bees, Forest Conservation and Buds and Insect Friends and Foes, are handled by Professors McClement and Klugh. In literature, Professor Seacombe lectures on Dickens, Professor MacDonnell on Poetry and Drama, and Professor Roy on Burns. Education is in the capable hands of Professor Joffe, and Dr. Miller is giving the medical features which have already made him a welcome speaker in numerous centres.

One additional remark remains to be made. Queen's University already offers Kingston a series of brilliant lectures by outside speakers, masters of their subjects. Such have been the courses given by Dr. Zimmerman and Baron Korff in past years. Others equally capable are booked to appear. Any town in the vicinity which would like to hear these lectures can arrange such visits by communicating with the committee on art at Queen's University, Kingston. The expense of such lectures is largely reduced by the fact of the lecturers being already in the vicinity. Only a small nominal charge is made for the majority of the extension lectures.

A Conservative's Opinion.
 Ottawa Journal.
 Summed up, we believe the country will admit that the new railway board represents a sincere and able Ministerial effort to help a great national asset. It is non-political; it is divorced from sectionalism; it looks business-like. Under the circumstances, it is the duty of the public, and particularly of the friends of public ownership, to help it by encouragement and confidence.

The Canadian National Railways represent a great national asset. They represent the greatest public ownership venture in any democratic state. Their success is bound up with the success of much else in the country. Let all of us, therefore, put our shoulders to the wheel and aid a good beginning. Let all of us try to give Sir Henry Thornton the chance of a fair trial. If this be done, if the government lives up to Mr. King's renewed promise to keep political partisanship out of the management, the Journal is confident that the national railways will develop into a splendid national success.

Back To Old House.
 K. D. Ferguson, a former Prince Edward boy, who distinguished himself in gallant service overseas, has numerous friends in the home county, who will be delighted to extend heartfelt congratulations and good wishes to himself and to his charming bride who are now enjoying a part of their honeymoon under the parental roof, Hillcrest, Picton. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Davis entertained in honor of Major and Mrs. Ferguson at their beautiful home, Concession Lake.

Rather Strange, This!
 People who were in attendance at the Odessa fair on Friday, were very much surprised, on looking over the prize list issued by the fair directors, to find that the advertising matter comprised Kingston business houses entirely, but that the book had been printed in Nanapanee.

COLLINGWOOD SHOWS THE WAY.

The Home and School Club Welcomed Teachers.

Those who know anything about Collingwood are never surprised when they find out the latest good thing that town has been up to. For example, their Public Library for years has been one of the peacemakers for the other libraries of the Province, now it is the Home and School Clubs that show the way. The Collingwood Bulletin says:

"A very pleasant and enjoyable function took place at the Huron Institute on Friday evening, when the Collingwood Home and School Club extended a cordial welcome to the members of the teaching staff of the different schools in town. There was a good attendance of parents, while the teachers were practically all present. The proceedings at the outset were very informal, the teachers being introduced to the citizens, all of whom joined in extending them a cordial welcome to the community."

After a welcome by S. McFaul, Chairman of the Board of Education, Rev. Mr. Farley, in a thoughtful address, suggested to the teachers present some phases of their work which were especially important. He emphasized (a) the production of scholarship, (b) training in leadership, and (c) training in the use of leisure. There are certainly three great aspects of the teachers' work. Principal Fry of the public schools replied, and he was followed by J. G. Elliott, Kingston, President of the Ontario Educational Association, who was visiting Collingwood at the time. This idea of giving a social welcome to the teachers of the community is commended to other Home and School Clubs and to similar organizations. It should go a long way toward making the year's work happy and successful.

A QUEEN'S GRADUATE.

And a Distinguished One to Go as Missionary.

Dr. Ervin S. Stone, a physician who has practiced in Athens for the last few months, and who served five years overseas with the C.A.M.C., rising to the rank of lieutenant-colonel and being decorated with the C.M.G., has been accepted as medical missionary under the Methodist church, and is enroute to Norway House in the Northwest Territories, to act in that capacity among the Indians. He is a graduate in medicine of Queen's university.

Short Wood Measure; The Police Are Acting

One of several complaints made to the police during the past week about shortage of wood measurements was that of a visitor to the station on Saturday morning who stated that he had ordered a quarter of a cord of wood and had only received a sixth by actual measurement. The police went out with their tape measures and shortages were found in several cases. Action will be taken against the dealers if the powers lies within the jurisdiction of the municipal authorities.

Their Medicine Chest For 20 Years

It is characteristic of folks after they pass the allotted "three score years and ten" to look back over the days that are gone and thoughtfully live them over.

I find myself, at seventy-one, frequently sitting back a quarter of a century, when I see myself in the little drug store I owned at Bellvue, Mo., making and selling a vegetable compound to my friends and customers—which was then known only as Dr. Lewis' Medicine for Stomach, Liver and Bowel Complaints.

For many years while I was perfecting my formula I studied and investigated the laxatives and cathartics on the market and became convinced that their main fault was not that they did not act on the bowels, but that their action was too violent and drastic, and upset the system of the user; which was due to the fact that they were not thorough enough in their action, some simply acting on the upper or small intestine, while others would act only on the lower or large intestine, and that they almost invariably produced a habit requiring augmented doses.

I believed that a preparation to produce the best effect must first tone the liver, then act on the stomach and entire alimentary system. If this was accomplished, the medicine would produce a mild, but thorough elimination of the waste without the usual sickening sensations, and made the user feel better at once.

After experimenting with hundreds of different compounds, I at last perfected the formula that is now known as Chase's Candy, which I truly believe goes further and does more than any laxative on the market today. The thousands of letters from users have convinced me I was right, and that the user of Chase's Candy is a family medicine, even though he may have used it for twenty-five years, never has to increase the dose.

And now as I find myself passing the age when I must live to the furthest and go to another life, my greatest pleasure is to sit each day and read the letters that each will bring from people as old or older than I, who tell of having used Chase's Candy for ten, fifteen and twenty years, and how they and their children and grandchildren have been benefited by it.

It is a comforting thought, my friends, for a man at my age to feel that aside from his own process, one has done something for his fellow man. My greatest satisfaction, my greatest happiness today, is the knowledge that tonight more than one million people will use a better, healthier, sweeter, people for life. I hope you will be one of them.
