RED CROSS EMERGENCY CALL

There was an error in the telegram sent to the local Red Cross from the Red Cross headquarters, appealing for aid for the fire sufferers in Northern Ontario. Articles of clothing in good repair, especially for infants and children up to twelve years of age, boys and girls, are urgently needed, such as underclothing, frocks, suits, coats, caps, stockings, mitts, boots and shoes. The local committee will be at St. George's Hall each morning from 10.30 to 12 o'clock to receive donations and to give out material for sewing and wool for knitting. It is hoped that a bale will be sent off on Friday.

Energize with Raisins

Use more raisins with your foods and get more energy.

Raisins furnish 1560 calories of energizing nutriment per pound. Rich in food-iron also.

A prime fruit-food that everybody would be better for.

To-morrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, OCT. 10.

Astrologers read this as a most interesting day, although the planetary figures are significant of anxiety, disappointment and menacing situations. While the friendly Saturn may assist in removing old obstructions, yet with the many other adverse forces at work it may be difficult to make progress for the time being. Changes are advised against, discretion is urged in all transactions and litigation should be shunned. Those in the employment of others should be careful not to give offence. Those whose birthday it is may have a year calling for much patience, fortitude and good judgment. They should beware accident, and avoid litigation and change. A child born on this day may be inclined to be rash and impulsive unless it is given strict training in order to avoid difficulties.

What the Editor Hears

That the Women's Aid Association of the city congregations will assist the Red Cross in their work of mercy in providing clothing for the sufferers in Northern Ontario.

That the cavalry inspection of the cadets of the Royal Military College was an interesting event of Saturday morning viewed by the visitors in town and others interested.

That to lovers of animals, the pathetic story of the little maid who held her pet pussy in her arms through the horrors of the night of flame standing in the storm lashed waters of Lake Timiskaming, is most appealing. Her fidelity to her true friend had its reward when they found their way to safety.

That the best effects out of doors are gained by quiet colors, or colors so darkly rich as to melt into the atmosphere, but golden brown velvet, orange mixed with brown or grey, putaline or jade green with grey, are all permissible.

That Mrs. Plampre, wife of Canon Plampre, St. James' cathedral, Toronto, president of the Canadian Red Cross, is receiving offers of aid for the homeless people in Northern Ontario and is sending on supplies as fast as they come in.

The difficult part of good temper consists in forbearance and accommodation to the ill-humor of others.

Efficient Housekeeping

by Laura A. Kirkman

Have You Tried Stencilling Your old five or six drops of diluted carbonic acid (this is a deadly poison, so use it carefully.) Some women use this method of making the dye permanent: mix the white of one egg with two teaspoons of water and add a little of this to the dye. Still another way of obtaining a fast color is to buy five cents' worth of dextrine or gum from the drug store and use one teaspoon of this to one cupful of the dye. No rigid rules can be given in connection with using dyes for stencilling, as the strength of color you wish to obtain, the materials upon which you do the stencilling, etc., etc., make it impossible. The best way, is to experiment with a small portion, or piece of the goods, even going so far as to stencil it, iron it, and wash it several times, before going ahead on the large piece of goods.

The most important steps of all in stencilling is this: When the material is stencilled and dry, it must be ironed on the back with a very hot iron with a wet cloth between iron and stencilled goods. The hot steam sets the color. Do not use merely a warm iron; use a hot one.

To wash a stencilled curtain: soak it in clear, salt water thoroughly (use a handful of salt to a bucket of water), then wash in mild soap suds, rinse, dry, sprinkle and iron.

Tomorrow—Answered Letters.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in due time. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question—The editor.

I have known women to go out to a store and buy expensive expensive material for window valances when they could not afford to make such a purchase. And when I encounter such a case, I always say to myself: "Why didn't she buy unbleached muslin, instead, and stencil it? It would have been just as effective as overdrapes."

But the average housekeeper does not take as great an interest in the arts and crafts as she should. I don't believe that one woman in ten (perhaps even a smaller percentage) knows how to stencil!

The first step in stencilling is to make your stencil from stiff cardboard of "Bristol Board." Trace a good border from wall paper or from cretonne, then take carbon paper such as stenographers use on the typewriter, to make copies of letters, and lay this black carbon paper face down on the bristol board; lay on top of the carbon paper the piece of tissue paper on which you traced the design, and go over the whole design with a very sharp pencil (hard lead) pressing down firmly as you draw. This leaves the design on the bristol board, and you can then take a pair of shears and cut out sections of the cardboard (where the design indicates.) This finishes the stencil.

The next step is to decide whether you wish to use dyes or artists' tube oil paint. While dyes are nicer to work with than paints, they are not as permanent in color as oil paint. The paint will not fade after constant washings.

Yet, in spite of this fact, dyes are most popular for stencilling. Follow the directions which come on the packages of dye. To set the color,
