Foot Bath Extracts Corns—Simple, Effective Method, Painless Too. Costs Little. Corn agony can be stopped almost at once, and the corn removed in a brief time. The hot water method takes the place of knife or the finger nail, which often causes blood poisoning. You proceed in this way, it takes only a minute or two and the results are magnificent. Cover the corn or callous with Putnam's Corn Extractor. It keeps the part antiseptic during the brief time required for treatment. Later, take a hot foot bath and off comes the corn, leaving the foot as smooth as a baby's. It's grand to get such quick results. Remember Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, the antiseptic corn remover. At druggists.

RADIO DEVELOPMENT BY LIEUT. JOHN R. IRWIN U.S. AIR SERVICE (RESERVE)

MAGNETISM.

One of the forms in which iron is found in the earth is the black oxide of iron called magnetite or magnetic iron ore. A piece of this substance is called a "natural magnet," and it has two very remarkable properties, as follows:

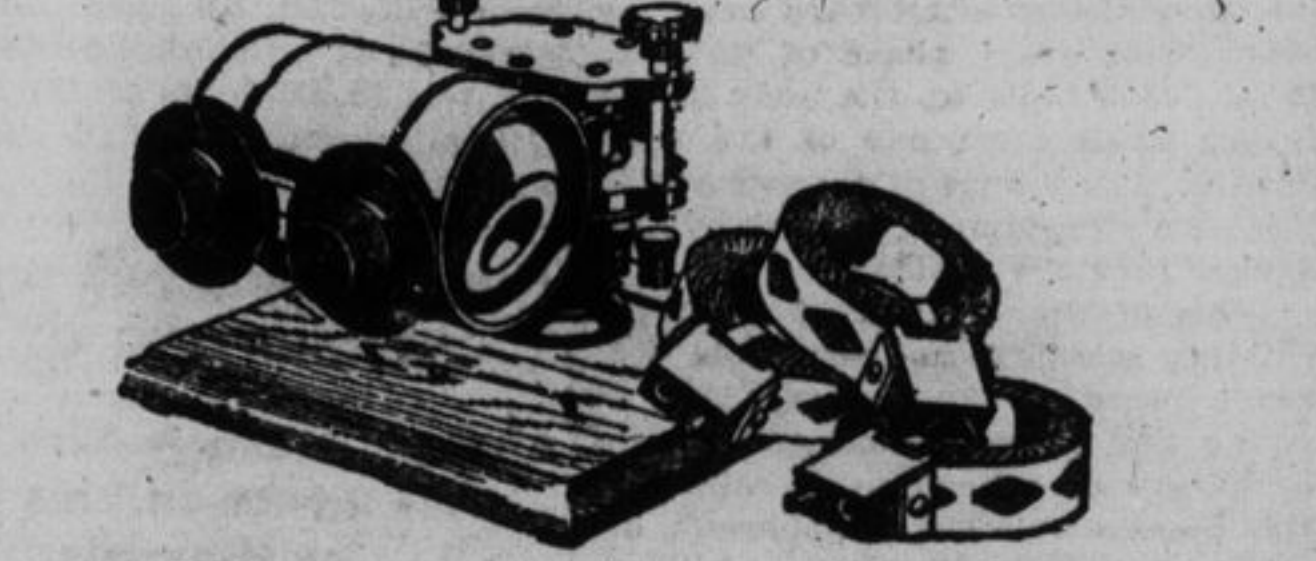

(a) If a piece of it is dipped into iron filings the filings will adhere to it. (b) If a piece of it is suspended by a silk thread or by a thin untwisted cord it will set itself with its longer axis very nearly in a northerly and southerly direction.

A slender magnetized steel rod mounted carefully on a pivot will turn very nearly into the north and south position, and is called a "compass needle." It is the familiar compass used by sailors and surveyors. The end which points north is called the north pole, or simply the "north pole," and the other and the south pole. APPARATUS AND DEVICES By RALPH BROWN, RADIO ENGINEER

A USEFUL UNIT.

Many experimenters are using entirely homecomb and duo-lateral coils for receivers, and on long waves are obtaining excellent results. However, it is a well-known fact that these coils are not as efficient for short wave reception as they are for long wave signals, and many fans who have owned satisfactory long wave receivers using triple coil mountings have been obliged to purchase a complete short wave receiver in order to receive telephone concerts satisfactorily.

Epidemic of Dysentery. It affects many people more in winter than in summer—in the one case it is due to improper eating—in the other, to congestion excited by cold. A small dose of good, old, Nerviline repeated a couple of times usually removes the trouble very promptly. If there is pain, relief is almost immediate. For cramps, colic, stomach pains, and the like, Nerviline in sweetened water is certainly a wonder. 35c. at all dealers.
