AMUSEMENTS
 What the Press Agents Say About Coming Attractions

To-night "In Walked Jimmy".
 The Rex Stock Company open their three nights' engagement at the Grand to-night presenting "In Walked Jimmy." As Jimmy says the thing that makes you young, the man who can smile when he is down and out impresses the other fellow that he is happy, and a man cannot be happy unless he is successful, therefore, if he smiles, no matter how near the bottom of the heap he may be, his enemies think he is at the top. Rex never in his career had a better part than that of "Jimmy." Zana has a very sympathetic part, though not a star one, in that of "Kitty Blake." Florence Winters has a comedy part that suits her, and our Bill Yule stars as Higgins the village grouch. A wealth of special scenery and effects have been built for this delightful four act comedy, and to use Rex's words: "In Walked Jimmy" will be the best effort so far of this season by this popular company.

"The Bat" Coming.
 "The Bat" comes to the Grand Opera House on Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 23rd and 24th. With more than two years' run to its credit in New York and a record of a solid year in Chicago by another company in the same attraction, "The Bat" stands out clearly as the one great big success of all years. Moreover, every bit of success that has been its share, belongs to it rightfully.

"The Bat" is a dramatic thriller—some critics have referred to it as a "dramatic smash." The appellation is a good one, it is exactly that. Not only is it thrilling to the point of keeping its audience on the edge of their chairs from beginning to end, but it is moreover, actually one of the funniest plays staged in years. The humor of "The Bat" is more of situations than of mere funny lines. In the development of the story, the authors, than whom there are none more expert in doing just that sort of thing, have managed to contrive situation after situation that leaves the audience fairly breathless from laughter. Were this to occur in the ordinary play it would not be so remarkable but in a play of the thrilling nature of "The Bat" it is remarkable in the extreme.

"The Bat" is presented by Wagenthal and Kemper, known throughout the country for their success as producers of hits.

Norma Talmadge in "Eternal Flame"
 One of the tremendously dramatic scenes in Norma Talmadge's fascinating starring vehicle, "The Eternal Flame," which is the first National attraction at the Allen Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday, is that which depicts General de Montreuil preparing to brand the great stout beauty whom he believes has ridiculed his love. The Duchess of Angeais, wonderfully enacted by Norma Talmadge, offers her beauty gladly, wildly, in an abandonment of love, when he pronounces his judgment of terrible revenge on her, and waits unflinchingly for him to brand her forehead with the mark of infamy. The scene takes place in a room of forbidding austerity. De Montreuil enters and denounces the duchess. A masked man hands him the branding iron. The duchess bares her forehead to receive the terrible stigma. Then the general finds he cannot mar her glorious beauty. She is freed, broken hearted. But a love such as theirs cannot forever be spoiled by misunderstanding, and in a most fascinating chain of events the threatened tragedy of hearts is transformed into a gloriously happy romance.

CHILDREN IN TENTS AS STORM RAGES
 Fierce Blizzard Brings Untold Hardships to Homeless in North.

Englehart, Oct. 19.—A few hours before dawn on Tuesday a great blizzard of wind-driven snow swept over this district. The thermometer stood at the freezing point, and the wind howled across the great open spaces in a forty-mile gale, lashing the country merciless for six hours. A great deal of the snow melted as it fell, thus causing puddles and rivulets of water, over which is lying from four to ten inches of snow.

In the towns and villages the refugees of the recent bush fires are comparatively comfortable, but the plight of many families in the outlying agricultural districts is distressing in the utmost extreme. The roads are no longer passable by motor car, while teams of horses are unable to haul more than empty vehicles. Not only this, but much of the live stock was burned, and some settlers are without horses to make an attempt to haul in lumber for shacks.

Two weeks have passed since the disaster, and a tour through the devastated area fails to reveal the presence of government lumber for the construction of shelters for the homeless in the outlying sections, where the unfortunate sufferers have no haven in this hour of emergency.

It is true that many carloads of lumber have arrived at central points along the main line, of the railway, but it is also true that this is available only for sufferers who cannot at least find shelter in other dwellings in case of such an emergency as developed with the storm that broke before dawn yesterday.

Your correspondent encountered a typical case on a farm where children, five in number, from a mere tot to a girl of about thirteen, still find their shelter beneath a flimsy tent, with an annex built of galvanized roofing taken from the fire wreckage of their former barn.

The ground is wet, sodden and cold, and it goes without saying that children who are thrown suddenly from the warmth and comfort of their homes into wet and cold shelters that are little better than the squalor of the wigwams of native

 As a result of a meeting held in the Cobalt Hall of the Scandinavian Club, an appeal is being sent out to all Scandinavians in Canada and the United States to contribute financial assistance to those who suffered in the recent fires in this district. The appeal is signed by A. G. Fernholm, August Janson, Nat. Oslund and Olaf Nelson, and, together with illustrations of the county seat before as well as after the disaster, will be addressed to Scandinavians through the Swedish American Post, published in Minneapolis.
