The immediate result of the crisis already felt in Washington is the postponement of the coming to this country of the British debt commission headed by Sir Robert Horne, chancellor of the exchequer in the Lloyd George government. Sir Robert was to have sailed for the United States a week ago, accompanied by Montague Norman, director of the Bank of England, but the cabinet crisis was then impending and the departure was delayed on that account.

British War Debt. Preparations for discussion of the problem of refunding the British war debt to the United States through issues of long term British securities had been made by the treasury and state departments.
