This is taken to mean that The Times will revert to the traditional Walter policy of supporting the government of the day, but with complete independence.

Utility Coats

Win recognition for beauty as well as service.

The new Utility Coats, to the casual glance, look most too swagger for utilitarian purposes. But, while this is an important phase of the garment, it is a superficial one. The Coats are built for service, and service plus—the lines are jaunty but that's extra—service comes first.
