What the Editor Hears

That this is Canadian Book week, when special attention will be drawn in the schools to the works of Canadian authors, lectures will be given and essays written on the subject and every effort made to draw the attention of the public to the talent within our borders.

That some of the Kingston girls in Toronto shouted themselves hoarse at the big match on Saturday and are now getting ready for next week.

That the latest sporting touch is a bandeau of knitted silk in Roman stripes to match the stripes of sweater coats or tone with the predominating color of the jumper.

That tonight witches will brew dread cauldrons with fearful rights, black cats perched upon their shoulders; maidens will climb with trembling steps to lonely garrets and at the witching hour of midnight gaze into a mirror wherein they will see reflected beside their own faces, the features of their future husband; Jack-o-lanterns will grin cheerfully on many dinner tables and the boys and girls will ring the bells as they visit their friends as of yore.

That Kingston hostesses will have their hospitality heavily taxed next week-end for the town will be full for Thanksgiving, the Queen's Alumnae dinner and the Queen's Varsity rugby match.

RECEPTION TO STUDENTS.

Given at Queen Street Methodist Church Monday Evening.

A very enjoyable reception to about two hundred and fifty students of Queen's University was given by Queen Street Methodist church people on Monday evening. The Sunday school room, where the programme was rendered, was very tastefully decorated by Chief Armstrong with various Halloween novelties, lanterns, etc., interwoven with the tri-color ribbons of the university. The attendance from the congregation and friends of the students was very large.

The feature of the programme was a character sketch given by Eric Lennox, Charles Reynolds, Harold Allan, H. E. Law, A. Middleton, Mrs. Story, K. Moncrieff and Mr. Allen, in which the "ghosts" of various famous persons, long since dead, were brought back to earth and impersonated in a very clever manner. The little play received continued applause. Jack Elder entertained with several Scotch character songs, and Corporal Kelly gave a number of military selections. The chairman was J. W. McCallum.

After the programme the members of the Epworth League served refreshments.

Paris' Queen of Dress. No less an artist than Cecile Sorel arrived in New York on the Homeick and left immediately for Quebec to open in Augier's masterpiece. Not only is Mlle. Sorel noted as an actress, but Paris also acclaims her as its queen of dress.

Gowned by Doucet on her arrival the French actress was wearing a long coat of white leather, collared, cuffed and banded down the front with leopard skin. Her hat, also of leopard skin, was of the much exploited shape with a flange, but Mlle. Sorel wore it, not as the average woman wears it, with the flange across the back. Over the hat she wore a draped gold lace veil. Her shoes were brown, gloves gray, and she carried a large pillow-shaped muff.

One hat which Mlle. Sorel has with her, she declares cost 3,000,000 francs. She described it as shaped like a bird, with a foundation of gold studded with pearls and diamonds.

"Wonderful!" and "beautiful!" were the adjectives she used to express her opinion of today's modes. Long skirts she favors decidedly for their gracefulness and charm.

"I will show to this country styles which will only be known right in France in two or three months," said Mlle. Sorel. "I may tell you a secret, for instance: Dresses are to be short and long, according to the needs or the elegance. Short for sport, short for dance, but long outside of that."

"What has brought longer dresses? Well, just because a woman looks better in them, while the short ones are more convenient. However, the days of extreme short dresses will never return."

Cheaper than buying new clothes

Do you know why your clothes get old so soon—why new underthings, new household linens quickly wear thin and sleazy when they should still be new?

Don't blame it on poor material—those thin spots and broken threads which quickly dissolve into holes are not due to faulty fabric. Instead, charge them up to injurious laundry soap.

Use pure soap, free from corrosive ingredients, and your clothes and linens will give the wear they should. Such pure soap, in the ideal form, is yours in Palmolive Princess Soap Flakes.

Pure, curly white chip flakes

While Palmolive Princess Flakes were perfect for fancy washing—for cleaning delicate crepes and silks and laces without harming color and material, they have proved the ideal soap for general laundry use.

This is because each curly flake is pure, whole soap, with no fillers and little moisture to rob them of cleansing power.

This makes Palmolive Princess Flakes highly efficient soap—soap which makes play of the family washing.

It makes them the practical, efficient washing machine soap. And it makes them a real economy because they go so much farther.

For washing woolsens

Whether you are squeezing out a sweater or a pair of leggings and mittens or having a grand blanket washing, use Palmolive Princess Soap Flakes.

No shrinking—no danger of drying harsh and stiff. Instead, everything soft, warm and woolly, just like new.

Convenience and economy

Soap flakes are the most convenient form of soap for general household uses and the most economical. Palmolive Princess Flakes come in handy pound packages.

Once you learn the value of Palmolive Princess Flakes you will appreciate their superiority and economy. You will use them for every laundry purpose and for general household needs.

Invalld Reader: "Although it may not be in your line, could you give me directions for a good game of 'Patience' to be played with one pack of cards? I sit so much alone and such a game would be a blessing to me."

Answer: I read your letter to a dear little old lady I know who plays 'Patience' often, and she wrote out the following directions for me to print for you. I hope you will find them clear:

"The Idle Year" Patience: Deal cards face up, one at a time, in a horizontal row. If the second card is of the same suit or same denomination as the first one played, it must be placed upon it; if not, it is placed to the right. The same with the third card regarding the second, and the fourth card regarding the third, except that the fourth card can be played upon the first card, skipping two. If of the same suit or denomination; but it must be played upon the next card to the left, if possible, in preference to skipping two cards. Follow this rule throughout, playing a card of the same suit or denomination upon its next neighbor to the left or, if this is not possible, upon its next neighbor but two to the left.

Whenever the uppermost card of a packet is of the same suit or denomination as the card or packet next to the left, or next but two to the left, the entire packet on the right must be lifted and placed on the packet to the left, still giving preference to its nearest neighbor in so doing.

If the Patience succeeds, when the cards have all been played the whole pack will be one single pile.

Mrs. K.: "Is there any way to prevent cake icing from cracking and crumbling off irregularly when cutting slices from the cake?"

Answer: Yes. Heat the knife. A hot knife will enable you to make a clean-edged cut in the icing.

Business Girl: "What is the best thing to apply to blue serge to keep it from looking shiny? The elbows of my serge dress and the back of the skirt, are shiny."

Answer: Sprinkle them thickly with flour, wrap each piece in wrapping paper, tie up firmly and the silver will be as bright when you take it out of storage as when you put it in.

To-morrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 1ST.

This is forecast as a day of critical fortune if the judgment of the astrologers is to be accepted. While there may be a degree of activity, owing to the lunar aspect of the stimulating Mars, yet there is also likely to be a measure of excitement, possibly owing to loss, theft or fire—threatened dangers which it would be well to be protected against. Unusual care should be taken of money, which should not be risked in speculation. A firm hand
