And now there's jolly old Christmas in the offing.

In Paris, they are sewing on silk eyelashes. That's a new way of keeping their lamps trimmed.

The entire population of the world at present is 1,715,000,000 persons.

Someone has said that the whole world has been Lloyd George's school and that he has never ceased to learn.

The Near East is still a powder magazine, and Great Britain is busy blowing out the matches, says the Toronto Globe.

F. C. Yellowly, the chief of the prohibition enforcement in New York state, is right when he says that the way to stop bootlegging is to impose prison sentences that mean something.

The Manitoba Free Press has issued a special thirty-page supplement of fascinating interest to free its fiftieth anniversary.

The Belleville Ontario noting the throng at the Queen's-Varsity game in Kingston, is convinced that Canadians, good workers that they are, also are splendid supporters of manly sports.

A suffragist in the United States, in view of the franchise given to women believes women are thinking hard and well, but the drudgery of organizing their thinking to make it effective in law is a step they have yet to take in any large way.

The Ottawa Journal remarks that Canadian literature, taking it as a whole, is well written, wholesome in tone, and decidedly readable.

A Belgian man kissed his wife when she brought him his dinner pail and he has been fined 100 francs and sentenced to be kept under police surveillance for three years.

If the sender of a single chain letter were successful in his attempt to have it sent by each of nine different persons to nine other persons; and so on for ten sendings, more than three billion people would receive such letters.

"My hope for this country is a national Protestant church," Rev. Dr. W. J. Clark, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, has declared.

A SPLENDID ASSET.

The London Daily Telegraph says the value of the grand parade of Boy Scouts recently held at the Crystal Palace was not only in the heartiness of the welcome given to the Prince of Wales on his return from overseas.

A GOOD SIGN FOR ONTARIO.

One of the most promising signs for Ontario in the United States elections lies in the election of Al. Smith as governor of the state of New York.

SEBASTIAN CABOT.

An important addition can now be made to Mr. H. P. Biggary's interesting work in collecting and editing the early explorations of "new found lands," as published by the Canadian archives, Ottawa, in 1911.

There has recently been discovered, however, a privy seal of Henry VII. under date of 1504—eight years earlier, which connects him on his own behalf with the explorations of that interesting period.

It is interesting to note that this intrepid navigator was the first to notice the variations of the compass.

SPREADING THE GOSPEL THROUGH THE PRESS.

The National Council of the Episcopal Church of the United States has just issued an interesting pamphlet entitled "A Handbook of Church Publicity."

not apply simply to using the newspapers for announcements of church meetings and services, but for putting the Gospel of Jesus Christ before the masses of the people in a manner which will compel their interest and their sympathetic consideration and study.

"No one can look at the newspapers and magazines and doubt that it pays to advertise. Why should not this method of proven efficiency be used for the propagation of the Gospel?"

This frank acknowledgement of the press by so prominent a churchman, is a recognition of a service which has long been rendered by the newspapers of this country.

A FIRE IN A MARSH RAGED FOR THREE HOURS

Firemen Had Stubborn Fight to Save the Buildings Close By.

A fire raged for three hours on Tuesday night, in the marsh off Rideau street, and a large area, extending from Davis tannery to the pork factory was ablaze and gave the firemen hard work as for a time it was feared that houses on Montreal street and the pork factory would fall a prey to the flames.

The reflection from the fire could be seen all over the city, and many anxious inquiries were made about the fire. How the blaze started is a mystery, but it is believed that some person started a fire in the marsh.
