"BUILDING" AS MOTTO

ed on Monday Evening by Hon. E. J. Davis.

Hon, E. J. Davis, formerly minisgovernment, was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club. in the Frontenac Hotel on Monday evening. Taking for his subject "Building," the motto of the Kiwanis Club, the speaker showed how it could be exemplified in the life of the individual, in that of a city, and finally, in the life of a nation. Not the least interesting part of his remarks was his assertion that a man should be always building even though advanced in years, for it was impossible to say when a man, enjoying full physical and mental vigor, might not continue to perform useful service and increase his efficiency by reason his rich experience. Gladetone eader of the Liberal party in England at the age of eighty-one, and John R. Booth inspecting his timber limits at the age of ninety-five, were mentioned by the speaker as proving cent. and provided most satisfactory his statement. "The motto 'Building' as applied to the individual implies a responsibility to build on a proper foundation. Some men there are who will not attend to the foundation, and it is our duty to help them to get on the right foundation. For this purpose an individual's record must known as it is a wonderful thing this personal record, particularly the early record of any individual as the foundation for life's structure mus: be lated in early life. Queen's football team was not made in a day but by hard training for some years, Too many young men today want to begin at the cop.

Building in Business. "In a training for business three things are essential; industry, sound bealth and judgment. While health may be regarded as not always in one's control, we know of many percons who cut short their careers by misconduct, and who passed out at thirty. Without judgment success is not possible. Young men who waste time are doing more than throwing away money. They are failing to equip themselves for life. An expert will make more money than one not so equipped. How long should we build? We should continue to build just as long as we have physical and mental strength. It is not work that shortens life but stagna-I heard Gladstone speak as leader of the Liberal party in England when he was eighty-one years of age. Another example is afforded us in John R. Booth who just recently made an inspection tour of timber limits at the age of ninety-five. Think of the experience that a man of We specialize on Painless Extraction, seventy-five or eighty years has! What is he able to bring into the process of forming decisions? We all should take a pride in building and enthusiasm is a great thing for with it we can accomplish wonders. "Nation building is the sum total comprise the nation, and it is the same with a city. So we see the importance of individual building. Good citizenship should be taught in our schools. Broadmindedness, or cooperation ought to be inculcated. Personally, I think that we ought to have French taught in our schools. English will always be the dominant language in business and commerce. would give a good deal of money if I could speak French in the province of Quebec. Then we ought to have Spanish and German, too, if we ar going to develop our export trade as we should. Germany, before the war saw the importance of a knowledge of these languages and by reason of this knowledge extended their trade "We ought, also, to have civic and national pride in our building. great example of national pride wa given us by our English residents when war was declared. They were the first to respond to the call of their mother country. Then we should build good homes for these are the foundation of a country. Couples should not delay marriage for want of money, but should get married to make the home. Some people suffer more by postponing marriage than do those who marry early. The home is not made by money but by the people that live in it, and I can recall a very humble beginning myself. It is mecessary to cultivate a public spirit, by that I mean the willingness on the part of people to cooperate in measures for general good. Today we find a disposition on the part of the people to look to the 'No ambition and no aim in life.'.

Prohibition & Good Thing. "Prohibition is a good thing as it has worked a miracle in the industrial and social life of the country. We had about 1,500 men working in our factories before prohibition, and although we had local option there were men without a home because of indulgence in drink. Three years of local option did some good, but prohibition is better. One hotel, without the bar, last year, paid ten per accommodation, and the workmen are now getting homes. Prohibition is good morally and you are by it building a nation. There is one tendency all too common and that is exthing that should be reflected upon especially by young men.

There is a continuous growth and the future is bright. Our trade has rapidly improved since the war and we are entering upon an era of prosperity. Then we have the finest people in the world.
