Europe wants moral support, of course, but not too darned moral.

Good resolutions made at nightfall usually break about the time day does.

The man who tells his wife everything is taking an awful risk with fate.

Too many people interpret liberty as the right to select the laws they will obey.

Most of those who keep up a row, bring up the rear when the cash on hand is counted.

People who think possessions don't bring happiness never saw a small boy with a pup.

The person who wants to be an early Christmas shopper should not wait much longer.

If the wife is getting plump, her only consolation is that she can't wear last winter's coat.

Your friends are those who understand you; your enemies are those who underestimate you.

In these days of sex stuff, it seems peculiarly fitting to refer to the six best sellers as a sextette.

Never mind the critics. The engine's knock is always loudest when the car is climbing a hill.

It may be that men no longer believe in dreams, but they still turn to look when one walks by.

Once in a while you find a rich man's son who isn't rather ashamed of his commonplace old dad.

Knowledge is recognition of the fact that fire will burn; wisdom is contemplation of the blisters.

In this free and democratic country, almost everybody is willing to treat members of the upper class as equals.

A great deal depends on the helpers, of course, but no business ever grows bigger than the vision of the boss.

There should be no sympathy for the person who buys so many luxuries that he cannot pay for necessities.

Tinkering with an automobile will eventually give you enough mechanical skill to make an automatic pencil work.

When blockheads at last depose the ruling class, it isn't surprising to find them with chips on their shoulders.

Reckless automobile driving arouses the suspicion that much of the horse sense of the good old days was transferred to the horse.

You never know how much pride mere words can express until you hear a very young business man speak of "my stenographer."

People no longer enjoy burning Christian martyrs, but they get about the same reaction by watching a fat man in mad pursuit of a hat.

Edison might not be able to make the freshman class in college, as asserted, but then his age would bar him from the football team, anyway.

IRELAND'S NEW GOVERNOR.

In the appointment of an Irishman to be governor-general of the Irish Free State, Premier Bonar Law displayed, declares the New York World, both great practical sense and political sagacity.

It is an auspicious circumstance that the post of governor-general falls to Timothy Healy. If there is any Irishman deserving of the confidence and respect of the Irish people it is he.

Here's a sensible word from a London doctor, Sir James Cantle, a specialist in tropical diseases. He recently told a large group of women that if they must go in for drugs, tobacco was to be preferred to coffee, tea or alcohol.

There's the nubbin of the matter. How many girls above spanking age really enjoy a smoke? What they enjoy is rather the effect and sensation they create.

Oliver Wendell Holmes says somewhere that "Society is a strong solution of books. It draws the virtue out of what is best worth reading, as hot water draws the strength of tea-leaves."

It is surprising how many persons quite the reverse of scholars have ideas on current literature and even that of a bygone day.

In this suggestion lies hope not only for the scholar, in furnishing him a new and pleasant means of learning, but for the man who has only brief intervals to give to books.

When winter comes bears crawl into their holes, poets buy oil stoves and farmers begin to do odd jobs of repairing which were neglected during the harvest season.

Reds and black predominates on the streets and in store windows. Humanity skips about in storm collar, heavy clothes and overshoes, laughing still.

Winter, like summer, is what the individual makes it. Most frequently it is pictured as decay, old age or death; but it is much prettier in a snow-white coat, decorated with a bobbed full of healthy, happy youngsters, crowned with bright colored caps.

Some of the most prosperous folks follow the birds to the south to escape the chill and bask lazily in tropic suns until the north is warm again.

MAN VS. NATURE. In the path of natural forces, man and his works seem impotent. A spark, and Rome was consumed by flames.

Yet hardly had the tidal wave spent itself against the hills and mountains of Chile before relief facilities were rushed to the scene. The Red Cross and other agencies were soon in the field.

ALONG LIFE'S DETOUR BY SAM HILL. Fashion Now. "I saw a rolling mill to-day," remarked old William Bruce; "And I just wonder if it too, is trying to reduce."

The Rural Wit. "Red lemonade" inquired the pretty girl at the refreshment booth. "No," never heard of it. Who wrote it? asked the village cut-up.

Did He Go After a Perculator? (Ritner cor. McCreeary County (Ky.) Record) Perk Coffey made a trip to Stearns on Friday.

No Poetry in That. The poet raved, as poets do, About the morning dew; His wife was raving, too, Because the rent was due.

Some Heroes. A hero is Most any gink Who always has A lot of chink. —Sam Hill in Cincinnati Enquirer.

WELCOME, WINTER. When winter comes bears crawl into their holes, poets buy oil stoves and farmers begin to do odd jobs of repairing which were neglected during the harvest season.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY

RIGHT REASONING.— Let us reason together, saith the Lord; though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow.—Isa. 1: 18.

thing else in the shops says "Let me see one of the new styles in eatable browns of either coffee, chocolate, caramel or gingerbread, which has the velvet shirred, tucked, folded or smoked," and finally picks out one for which she pays fifty bucks— or more—and goes on her way to return next day to change it for one that is even more wretched.

We Suppose All the Chickens in the Neighborhood Were There. (Jackson Centre News) The Cosmos Club dedicated the new herbaceous, of Wallace DuVal near Maplewood, Tuesday night, with a dance.

Fool Questions. G. B. C. asks, "Does it cost much to express an opinion?" Well, sometimes the price you pay is just a black eye, and sometimes it is a trip to the hospital.

Daily Sentence Sermon. More men who gamble are cleaned out than clean up.

News of the Names Club. Lotta Gabb, of Port Huron, has been refused admittance to the club. We already have enough members who talk too much.

Wonna Bath, of Boston, can go ahead and take one so far as we are concerned.
