THE NEW HOSIERY

Double Stocking of Glove Silk, One of the Latest.

Unprecedented Demand for Woolen and Silk-and-Woolen Article is the Prediction.

What will happen to the glory of stockings now that they are to be enveloped by yards of ripping silk is a question whose answer hosiery manufacturers would probably give a lot to know, observes a fashion writer in the Chicago Journal.

Will the economical miss decide that since they do not show it is foolish to invest in chiffon, lace-cloaked or sheerest silk stockings? Will she not rather put her stocking money into skirts? Some say yes; some say no.

But, surely, if she cares to buy "fussy" hosiery she never had better opportunity for real worth and delicateness. One of the newest and most attractive models is a double stocking of glove silk. The outside sheath is black, woven in a stripe pattern, alternating stripes being transparent, through which the inner stocking of white shimmers faintly.

Other stockings have sheer lace inserts in front, and while the embroidered clock on any except woolen stockings seems to be waning, lace clocks are found in the new models and are much in demand.

Silk that simulates wool is one of the newest developments in the stocking world and one that will be welcomed by women who like the semi-sport costume for business, yet who also demand the comfort of silk stockings. These come in lovely colors—brown and tan mixtures with tiny flecks of heliotrope, mixtures where blue is the predominating color, and there are those with green dominating.

Dealers predict an unprecedented sale of woolen and silk-and-woolen stockings for this season. Again the long skirt is the cause—in cold weather wool stockings undoubtedly are more comfortable than the trimmer-looking silk. Hidden beneath a long skirt, their bulkiness becomes a negligible consideration, and many women who before refused them will welcome their warmth.

Gunmetal is one of the newest and most popular colors found in the season's hosiery displays. It runs out on the one side into the darkest of taupes and on the other into light grays. Beaver, caramel, otter, beige, tan, rich brown—in fact, any of the varying shades of brown whose naming has taxed the ingenuity of the entire selling world—are ultra-fashionable.

The lighter tan shades are, of course, giving way to the darker as the season advances and the "nude" color, so popular last spring, is passe. Of course, for evening there are the lighter colors—blues, pink, coral, peach, orchid—to be worn with the new colored brocade dancing slippers.

THE THREE-PIECE FALL SUIT

This is a fashionable three-piece suit conceived in beautiful blue material, finished with squirrel collar and cuffs. The Paisley pattern is subtly followed out in faint design in this smart suit.

Handsome Suit Coats.

When suit coats are long they entirely cover the frocks under them, and may be worn separately as topcoats. The godet flare on the hips is a favorite with many houses for this type of coat, which, this season, is frequently of velvet over a crepe and velvet frock. Sometimes these coats are made handsome with rich outcaching, self embroidery or the material itself worked in fine tufts, stitched bands or in some other way.

AT WOLFE ISLAND.

Successful Euchre Party at the Home of William Laughlin.

Wolfe Island, Dec. 21.—A successful euchre party was held at the residence of William Laughlin on Thursday evening. There were twelve tables in play during the evening. Mrs. James Russell won the ladies' prize and D. McGlynn, secured the gentlemen's prize. The ladies served lunch at the tables.

Mrs. Arch. McDonald left on Saturday for Hamilton, to attend the funeral of her father, who died on Friday in the above city.

Harry Card, Kingston, shipped a large consignment of turkeys via Cape Vincent for New York market. The highest price paid was forty-three cents. Edward Kelley, Clarence Kenney, Dan. Larush, Joe McAvoy, Geo. Russell, Joe McDonald, Mort. McDonald have returned home after a successful season sailing on the upper lakes.

The hockey club will have a big time ahead of them this winter with two teams in the county league, a senior and junior. There is plenty of material to pick from. There is no doubt that when the time arrives to play, they will be ready for the fray with a vim and confidence of getting well up in the race.

Deaths Around Picton.

Picton, Dec. 20.—The many friends of Wesley Boyd, Allisonville, were sorry to hear of his passing away this month. He was a store-keeper there and active in the community, belonging to the Orange Lodge and assisting with the orchestra. He was a brother-in-law of Hon. Nelson Parliament, speaker of the house, Toronto.

E. Harris, a life-long resident of Picton, is dead. He was married about fourteen years ago to Miss Eloise Ellsworth, formerly librarian at the Carnegie library. Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McCar have gone to Boston to visit their daughter, Mrs. Oulter. Mrs. Sayers, of Roblin's Mills, and daughter, Mrs. Fred Russell, visited Mrs. Sayers' brother at Picton hospital recently. Edward Purtillo, Oshawa, has been visiting old friends. Miss C. Fox, Gananoque, is expected home at Concession this week. Mrs. H. H. Horsey was a recent town visitor.

Your four-ain pea gift will be doubly appreciated with your friend's name lettered on it in gold. Kinneair & D'Esterre.

A sister of H. W. Prayan, M.D., Renfrew died in New York last week.

QUITS THIRD HUSBAND.

Pauline Frederick Gives Incompleteness as Cause.

Philadelphia, Dec. 22.—Pauline Frederick admitted yesterday that she was separated from her third husband, Dr. Charles Rutherford. She is stopping at the Ritz-Carlton.

"There was no misunderstanding," said Miss Frederick, "but just a complete lack of understanding—incompleteness."

"Dr. Rutherford and I were married last February but we have not lived together since last May. I have not instituted divorce proceedings, nor do I intend to do so. If Dr. Rutherford cares to do so, it is up to him."

Miss Frederick's second husband was Willard Mack, actor-playwright, and Frank M. Andrews, wealthy architect, who designed the Hotel McAlpine, her first.
