WOMAN TO TELL JURY OF BROKER'S TREACHERY

Killing Admitted, But Strange Circumstances Are Stressed by Accused's Lawyer.

New York, March 1.—Counsel for Mrs. Pauletta Saludes yesterday told the supreme court jury trying her on a charge of murder, that she had shot and killed Oscar Martelliere, broker, in his office last October, but that she “was in a condition of mind where she did not know the motive and quality of her act.”

The lawyer, James A. Turley, opening for the defense on the second day of a trial that has moved with extraordinary swiftness, said he intended to prove that Martelliere had deceived his client and betrayed her husband, now dead, in his greed for wealth, and that, finding out at last the treachery of the broker with whom she had been living, Mrs. Saludes became greatly agitated, Mrs. Saludes, he added, would take the stand in her own defense today to tell how she had been duped.

“The defense will show that several years ago this woman and her husband were happily married and getting along well together,” said Turley.

Charges Betrayal of Friendship.

“We will show her husband was president of a corporation which she had helped him build up from a small business. During all this time, Martelliere was the friend of James Saludes, the defendant's husband, and that they had an office together.”

“We will show that there were many conferences in confidence relating to obtaining stock, that Martelliere, a stock broker, in breach of that confidence, went to the parties from whom stock had to be bought and compelled the paying of a higher price for the stock.”

“We will show you that Martelliere most strongly recommended that the husband of the defendant go to France in January, 1921, to try to collect debts there.”

“We will show you that the moment he sailed, Martelliere presented himself at the home of the defendant and started systematically to try to poison her mind against her husband.”

Sought to Get Property.

“We will show you his purpose was to get possession of the interests of the husband, control of the property of this defendant.”

“We will show that on one occasion he went to her home and kept telling her how unworthy her husband was of her; that she was about to commit suicide on one occasion when he told her she ought to get a divorce and marry him, that he was divorced from his wife or was going to get a divorce and that, after repeated amorous remarks to her, long continued, the inevitable happened.”

“We will show you that it was not until the last summer just before the shooting that the defendant learned that the things Martelliere had been telling her about her husband were untrue.”

“We will show you that she turned over her automobile to him for the purpose of having him sell it and he didn't get the money.”

“We will show you he had promised to marry this defendant.”

Finally Cast Aside.

“We will show you that he cast her aside finally, just before the shooting, and we will make every effort to show you what a condition she was in at that time; that that very morning she was examined by a physician and that she was incoherent at my office when planning to take some action against him.”

“We will show you that when she came back to my office that afternoon my secretary found her trying to shoot herself with the very gun produced in evidence against her.”

“We will show you she found the gun she used in Martelliere's office. We will show you she grabbed the gun to kill herself; that there was a scuffle and that she had no recollection of what happened. I might say, for several days later.”

Mr. Turley made his opening address after the state had called detectives and doctors before resting.

BENEFACITOR OF POOR DIES IN COLD FLAT

Dr. Ferdinand Seager Worked and Sacrificed for Others in New York.

New York, March 1.—In a cold little flat on the second floor of a six-story tenement at No. 400 East 93rd street, there died yesterday Dr. Ferdinand Seager, one time prominent physician philanthropist, and recipient of many honors from influential organizations and foreign royalty.

Although he is listed as one of the founders of Hannemann Hospital, and emeritus consultant at Fifth Avenue Hospital; although his friends say he could have been the first mayor of the Greater New York had he so desired, he passed away surrounded by dilapidated and broken furniture, and a few relics in the form of framed testimonials of the days of his glory.

All of this was ascribed by his family to his desire to devote his life and genius to others rather than to himself; to work and sacrifice—not for money—but for the poor with whom he had always preferred to dwell. His end had come in his 75th year after a ten-day battle with pneumonia, and his wife, Catherine, and their daughter, Edna May, were at his side at the time.

Bruin Comes Out From Lair.

Niagara Falls, March 1.—After hibernating in his lair all winter a black bear at the I. X. L. service station emerged last night, shook himself, looked wistfully around, and began to stretch after his long nap. Men at the station gave him a bottle of milk and bruin frisked gaily about his cage. Spring is here, the men say.

London, March 1.—A despatch to the Central News from Milan says that Lenotti Serrati, Socialist member of the Chamber of Deputies and director of the newspaper Avanti, who has just returned home from Moscow, yesterday dismissed the entire editorial staff of the Avanti, and appointed a new personnel composed of Communists. The old staff refused to quit their jobs and were in their old positions this morning. They threatened to throw out the director and any new staff which put in an appearance at the offices of the Avanti to take their places.

BRITISH DEBT PAYMENTS

Baldwin Gives Instant Figures Under Agreement

London, March 1.—Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replying to a questioner in the House of Commons, said that on the basis of the 62-year term for paying the debt to the United States, the payments on the debt would be as follows:

An immediate cash payment of $4,128,085; an annual payment of $161,000,000 for ten years; an annual payment of $184,000,000 for 50 years, and a final payment of $118,481,330, or an aggregate of $2,246,000,000 at par of exchange, and four per cent, at 4.68.

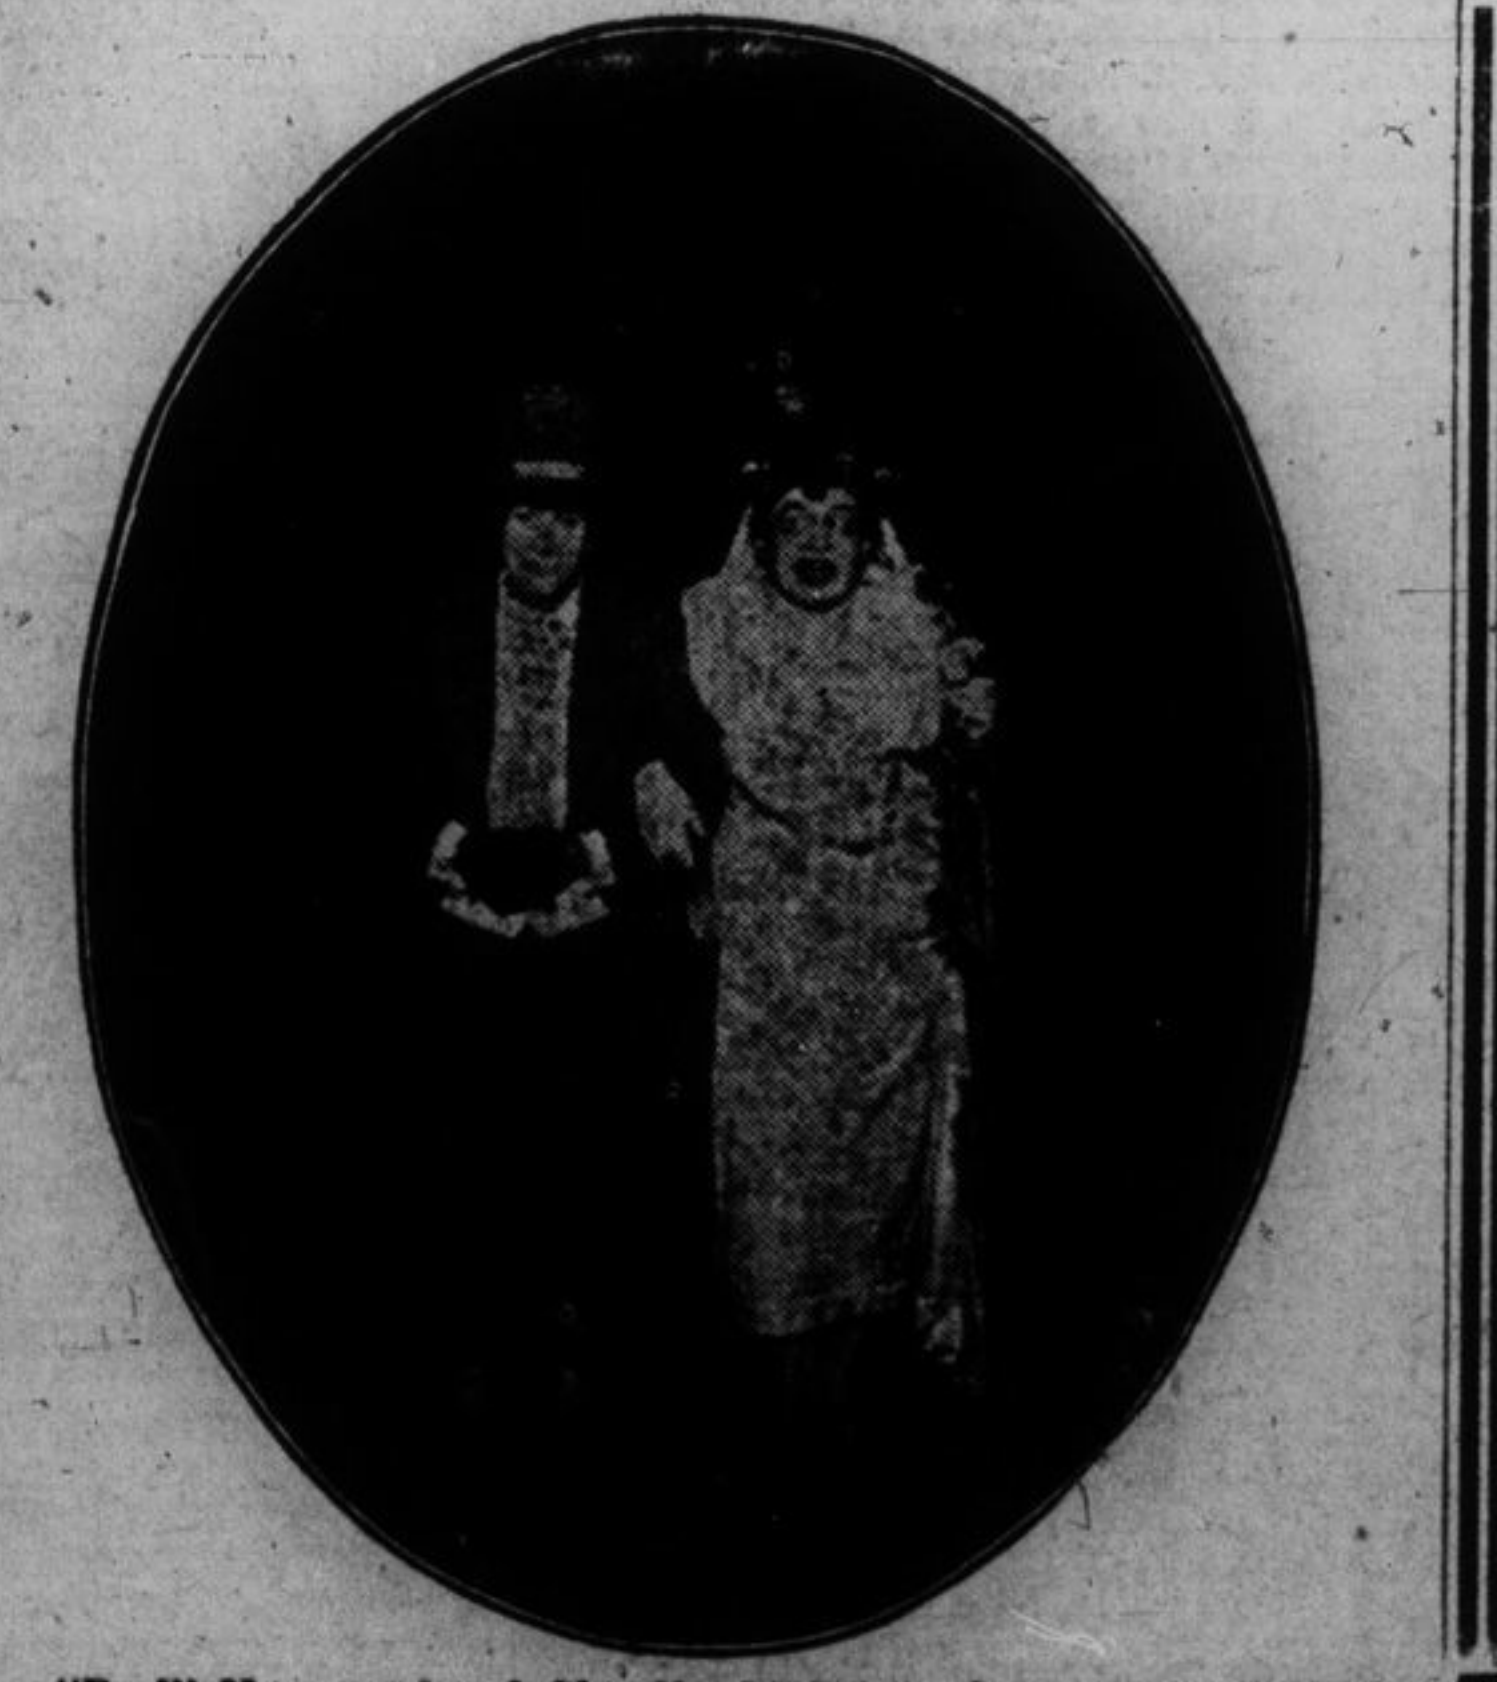

These figures he said, had no meaning except in relation to the 62-year term. If Great Britain paid more speedily then the aggregate would be reduced.

Eganville School Burned.

Eganville, March 1.—One of the most disastrous fires which has visited this village in years destroyed Eganville Public School at an early hour yesterday morning. The school which was burned to the ground was valued with contents at $35,000. Twenty-one thousand dollars' insurance is carried.
