MRS. SALUDES SOBS
 STORY OF MALE VAMPIRE

Breaks Down Describing Loss of Husband and Fortune—Blames Slain Broker.
 New York, March 2.—Mrs. Paulette Saludes—small, chic and French —yesterday pointed for the jury, trying her on a charge of murder, the picture of a male vampire and then labelled the sketch Oscar Mar-telliere, the broker whom she shot in his William street office last October.
 Taking the stand in her own defense and at times sobbing hysterically, she declared that Martelliere had exerted over her an almost hypnotic influence, weaning her away from her husband, tricking her out of her money, and then carrying on affairs with other women.
 "He had worked me like a business proposition, as he told me he had worked his wife and other women," asserted the little French woman, adding later that she had learned from Mrs. Martelliere herself that she, too, had wanted to kill him.
 "I had endeavored to break off our relations," she said. "I begged him to go back to his wife and be a good husband, but always he would cast all his power over me to keep me." During her testimony Mrs. Saludes said that Martelliere, a friend of her husband's, had induced him to go abroad on a business venture, and then poisoned her mind against Saludes, referring to him as a thief.
 Finally, she said, he had moved into her home, and promised to marry her as soon as both of them had been able to get divorces.
 Then, she continued, Martelliere began getting hold of her property, inducing her to put a mortgage on the house her husband had given her and to sell his automobile. While they were living together, she continued, Martelliere contributed toward the upkeep of the establishment and then borrowed most of it back.
 At last, she said, he became less attentive and she learned of his other affairs.
Realized Trickery.
 On the day of the shooting, Mrs.
 Saludes said, she went bewildered to Martelliere's office and pleaded for a settlement, but he tried to put her off.
 "I did not want to believe wrong about him, but while he was out I saw his check books and his papers.
 Then I realized it had all been lies and he had never been true to me from the beginning and had only used me for the money he could get out of me."
 "Then I only wanted to get his revolver and kill myself. When he told me he did not care what I did, he left the office and slammed the door.
 I had only one idea to kill myself. I did not want to live any more." When Martelliere left, Mrs. Saludes said, she went to her lawyer and told him of her distress. He said, she told the court, that Martelliere was not worth shooting.
 Then she returned to Martelliere's office and waited there until he returned. The discussion began again and he reiterated his lack of interest.
 After that, Mrs. Saludes said, she seized the revolver; there was a scuffle, a shot and everything became murky. It was not until next morning, she said, that she realized what had happened.
 She declared she had no recollection of seeing the prostrate body of Martelliere on the floor, or of emptying the pistol into his body.
 The defendant said she was first informed Martelliere was paying attentions to other women through a letter Martelliere's wife had written.

PROPAGANDA OF KLAN CAUSES INDIGNATION

For It Tells of the Wholesale Destruction of Canadian Churches.
 Albany, N. Y., March 2.—Members of the New York State Legislature are being deluged with anonymous letters from persons stating they are members of the Ku Klux Klan. The letters assail Catholics and Jews and are propaganda against a bill just introduced in the legislature, providing for making public the list of members of the Klan in New York state.
 One letter received quoted extensively from Rev. Charles Ohniquy's book, "Fifty years in the church of Rome" and stated that his expose of a supposed attempt to destroy Protestant America had been proven by recent events.
 Responsibility for the wholesale destruction of Catholic churches in Canada, and a few in the United States, is put on the Klan by the writer, who says that "Jesuitical scheming is being overcome by a flaming cross," which is "igniting Roman Catholic churches, academies and nunneries." Legislators are indignant at the campaign and declare they will support the measure aimed to curb the activities of the Ku Klux Klan. The post office department may investigate in an effort to locate the source of the propaganda.

 The Associated Undertakers of Greater New York have risen to protest against exhumation of Tutankhamen. Meeting to consider the activities of Egyptologists, the undertakers yesterday decided that the dead should be honored even 2,000 years after burial.
