BATHING BEAUTY NOW

IN SCREEN DRAMA

Phyllis Haver, who was chosen for an important part in Goldwyn's big production of "The Christian," coming to the Allen theatre on Wednesday for four days, is one of the many bathing beauties to achieve dramatic honors on the screen. Miss Haver was loaned to Goldwyn by Mack Sennett, to whom she is under contract. In "The Christian" she impersonates Polly Love, a nurse in a London hospital who trod the primrose path.

At any rate, Miss Haver's first screen experience was gained in a motion picture playhouse. It was a residential photoplayhouse near the Haver home in Los Angeles suburbs. It occurred to her that a good way of turning her musical gifts to advantage would be to play the piano that constituted the theatre's "orchestra."

But the seeds of an ambition were sown, and Phyllis determined that she would be a screen actress. She was selected by Lasky for a subordinate role when she was visiting the Lasky studios with a friend. Within a few weeks a mutual friend introduced her to Mack Sennett, who consented to giving her a "test." This was so successful that she was invited to appear first as "extra" girl, then as a contract performer, and later a featured player in comedies. Her selection for a dramatic role marks the high point in her career.

Double Bill At Allen.

Put away all your old conceptions about motion picture thrillers before seeing "The Hero," the remarkable production at the Allen theatre to-day.

"The Hero" is one of those unusual stage productions that critics approve when seen in New York but wisely add, "Of course, it never could be done in pictures. It never would be understood by the average resident of the small town." Gasnier does not believe that the intelligence of the picture audience is below normal. He insists that, if properly done, any successful New York stage production may be made into an even more successful picture.

Ordinarily one might classify this production as a triumph of direction. But the work of every member of the well-rounded cast wins equal praise. There are Barbara La Marr, Gaston Glass, John Sainpolis, Ethel Shannon, David Butler, Martha Mattox, Frankie Lee and—yes, "Cameo," the gifted dog. Surely any capable company of players as well could be imagined.

Then, it must be remembered that this is the screen version of the brilliant stage production by Gilbert Emery, declared by critics to be "the most promising first effort ever offered by an American playwright." And the brilliant scenario by Eve Unsell. Last, but of tremendous importance, is the masterly photography by Karl Struss.

LLOYD IN GREATEST COMEDY EVER PRODUCED

It's all very well to have an Alladin at one's service to change one into a different personage or transport one into a different place. But it's still better to be able to do it yourself—like Harold Lloyd. Harold never needs to worry about the formula or the magic words for summoning the genie, or about the proper way to twist the ring. All he has to do is don some grease paint and the well-known spectacles. Then, after he has made up his mind regarding the person he would like to be and the place he'd like to live, he has a little conference with his staff of scenario writers. That's all the magic necessary to transform Harold Lloyd from a likeable young chap into an adventurous sailor, a lovesick coward, a "sunshine" doctor, a $15.00 per week department store clerk, or any other role he happens to fancy. Just now this mysterious combination of grease paint, spectacles, and scenario writers have transported Harold Lloyd to the wilds of an up-to-date American department store in the comedian's new seven-reel Pathecomedie, "Safety Last," which is playing today at the Strand Theatre. And it might be mentioned that the feature comedy contains more thrills and laughs than any ten pictures put together that have ever been made.

Smiles, giggles, shakes and roars positively assured until you hit the heights of hilarity, then, uncontrolled laughter is absolutely guaranteed.

SPLENDID STORE FRONT ERECTED BY TWEDDELL'S

Well-Known Clothing House For Men Makes Another Forward Step.

Many comments have been passed around the city on the new display front of Tweddell's, well-known clothing house for men, since that beautiful piece of work was first stripped of its surrounding scaffolding on Saturday and thrown open for public inspection. All have been of a complimentary and congratulatory nature and it is evident that in its long period of business here this firm has made many friends.

Tweddell's has been on this very same site in Kingston for forty years and has a record to be envied. Forty years of successful dealing with the public is the best tribute to the business integrity of any firm and to the quality of its goods and its service.

This establishment carries a complete stock of the very highest class of men's ready-to-wear clothing and an equally fine assortment of woolen materials for custom tailoring. About three years ago the interior of the store was renovated and beautiful dust-proof display cabinets installed and the addition of this new front makes the store one of the finest of its kind in Eastern Ontario.

The Whig adds its congratulations to that of many other friends of Tweddell's on this latest improvement and on the up-to-the-minute business policy behind it.

HARD COAL SHIPMENTS.

By Water Will Not Reach Here Before Middle of May.

It will be at least three weeks before any hard coal will reach the city by vessel from Sodus or Oswego, according to information received by the local dealers. There will be cargoes of hard coal about May 15th, but soft coal will be obtainable earlier, probably about May 1st.

The owners of schooners and steamers are not hurrying their preparations as yet, and the crews have not been engaged.

There is a considerable quantity of hard coal, chestnut, stove and egg sizes, reaching the city daily by rail and in a few instances citizens are buying against next winter's needs.

CONTRACTS ARE LET.

Terenent, superintendent of the company, has arrived, and he states that the work of demolishing the old buildings will be started immediately. The new building will be of stone.

NO LONGER HAS EQUITY IN NELSON STORES

L. R. Steel Enterprise Loses Big Sum—Stores Sold Under Hammer.

Buffalo, N.Y., April 23.—The L. R. Steel enterprise no longer has any equity in the F. E. Nelson stores of New England. The stores were sold under the hammer in Boston Saturday for $277,500. The successful bidders were the J. J. Newbury Company chain store operators of New York city.

Leonard R. Steel paid the Nelson organization $800,000 of the stockholders' money and pledged $250,000 more. It was the unpaid note covering the latter figure that threw the chain on the rocks as far as the Steel stockholders were concerned.

The amount paid by the Newbury organization wipes out the note and liquidates all the legal costs incident to the disposal of the stores, but leaves nothing for the Steel stockholders.
