"POOR MEN'S WIVES" SHOWN HERE

Elaborately Produced Motion Picture Has Many Screen Favorites in Cast.

A cast of stars, all of whom are favorites in this locality, a human and compelling story, an elaborate production combined to make "Poor Men's Wives," which will have its premiere at the Allen theatre starting Thursday, is unusually entertaining picture.

The cast is one of the best we've seen this year. As Laura, the gifted Barbara La Marr reaches the heights of which she gave promise in "Three Musketeers" and "Trifling Women." Her scenes with David Butler show an abandon and a depth of feeling rarely seen on the screen. As the friend, Betty Francisco exhibits poise and a certain magnetism that brings sympathy to a difficult role. Butler, as the husband who does not believe in the society life his wife craves, gives the play a living picture of thousands of men in his position one can at once recognize and appreciate.

Mickey McBan and Muriel McCormac, cast as Laura's children, win your love, mischievously bad as they are. As the roue, Richard Tucker has enough villainy to the square inch to satisfy the most exacting.

The story is the intimate account of two girls, one who marries uneasy wealthy, and the other, who marries an honest but unromantic taxi driver.

Charbel, who is unhappy in spite of her money, takes up Laura to make her forget the inconstancy of her husband, and by showering attentions on her less fortunate friend, makes her discontented with Jim, her husband. Jim's habit of consistent saving, the aversion to anything but the washbasin as diversion for his wife, have made Laura yearn for the carefree butterfly life of the idle rich.

Laura is determined to attend an artists' revel, and when Jim refuses her the money for a suitable dress, obtains one on credit, intending to pay and then return it. At the party she is made much of by Blanton-Smith, Charbel's husband, although she does not know who he is. His attentions cause her to flee the party, and she goes home to sleep late.

In the morning, she finds that her babies have cut up her costly gown! Alarmed, she tried to make it good, and finds that the only way out is to take the savings of her husband. When Jim comes home, and tells her joyfully that life now can be easier, as he is about to buy a taxi of his own with his savings, she confesses what she has done. The quarrel that follows drives Laura into the street, and—into Blanton-Smith's arms.

How the motherless babies really solve this muddle, and understanding brings about happiness, form the rest of a thrilling story that strikes home. The direction, by Gasnier, leaves nothing to be desired. It is done with a rare and deft touch that makes the characters real people.

FIRE CHIEF ARMSTRONG BOOSTS "THIRD ALARM"

Great Picture Coming to the Strand Tomorrow a Glorification of Firemen.

The most outstanding photodrama sensation the screen has ever seen, is "The Third Alarm," the great F.B.O. picture which comes to the Strand theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, labelled with the endorsement of Fire Chief James Armstrong, of the Kingston Fire Department, a fire-fighter for more than a quarter of a century, and a man whose life is dedicated to the saving of human lives and of property.

Almost from the commencement of moving pictures, there have been shown there has been tremendous enthusiasm over it, for it has proven conclusively to be the most stupendous exhibition of the twentieth century, realistic from start to finish; a colossal heart-drama that immortalizes the firemen of Canada and the United States and bestows an everlasting benediction upon their loyal wives, sons and daughters. Its very names will burn an everlasting impress on your heart, for its authenticity is a marvelous feature of the great picture. There are in the picture thrilling escapes, not mere fake-ups of a movie studio, but the true and authentic work of firemen portrayed as only they can be portrayed by realistic work. The thousands of people who have already seen "The Third Alarm" have been amazed at the wonderful scenes, the splendid acting, and the tremendous impression which it conveys, and with the endorsement of Fire Chief Armstrong, the picture comes to Kingston as something which bears a wonderful appeal to every class of citizen.

GEO. LAPIER KILLED OPERATING SPREADER

Further Particulars Received Regarding Death of Former Kingstonian.

Further particulars have been received regarding the death of a former Kingstonian, George Lapier, referred to in Tuesday's Whig, and which occurred on Saturday, May 6th, about 3:30 p.m. on his father's farm near Potsdam, N.Y. Mr. Lapier was well-known in Kingston as he had owned and operated the Rideau Dairy Farm for several years and had but recently gone to the States to live.

Deceased had been operating the little spreader and it is believed that he fell and was carried to the back of the machine by the apron. When found by his parents life was extinct his head having been terribly fractured and impaled on the prongs. He had possibly been dragged, as the horses returned to the house and stopped.

Mr. Lapier was born in Morrisburg, and moved to Kingston when quite young. He was thirty years and twenty-four days old, unmarried, and a member of Calvary Congregational church in Kingston. He leaves to mourn his loss his parents and one brother, Gerald, at home, another brother, Roy, Toronto and one sister, Isabel, Watertown, N.Y. The funeral took place on Tuesday, May 8th, at 2 p.m. from his home to West Potsdam cemetery.

Rev. Father John Quinn Passes Away at Tweed

Word was received at the Archbishop's palace Wednesday morning of the death on Tuesday evening last at Tweed, of Rev. Father John Quinn, dean of a life-long priest in the arch-diocese of Kingston. He had been parish priest at Chesterville and Marysville, and was for a time Roman Catholic chaplain at the Portsmouth penitentiary. The late Father Quinn was born in Ireland and was about sixty years of age. He is survived by two brothers, who are priests, one at Cleveland and the other at Toledo, Ohio. The funeral will take place at Tweed on Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

ARMOURIES TO-NIGHT

To CAPT. M. LEMMON

PIRE CHIEF JAMES ARMSTRONG pictures innumerable in which the deeds of the police have been memorialized, but "The Third Alarm," is the first authentic production that reflects due honor and glory on the fire department. From the commencement to the final fade-out the picture is a marvelous glorification of the great work that is done day and night, winter and summer by the men of the fire brigades, and it is with justifiable pride that Chief Armstrong endorses this picture, and recommends that every person see it. Everywhere the picture has been

RETAIL MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION MEETS

The Stores to Be Open on May 24th and Closed on June 4th.

At a meeting of the Kingston Retail Merchants' Association held in the Board of Trade rooms on Wednesday morning, a number of important matters were dealt with. A resolution was passed recommending that all retail stores remain open on May 24th and close on Monday, June 4th in honor of the King's birthday. The merchants are to be requested to place this announcement in their advertisements in the newspapers.

A deputation was appointed to interview all of the merchants in the different lines of business regarding the proposal to close their shops at 5 p.m. instead of 5:30 during the months of July and August. Another important matter dealt with was the parking of automobiles. It was decided to ask the police for special parking areas for use on Saturday nights. The election of officers was deferred until the fall, and the present officers were instructed to carry on.

Pineapples From Cuba. A carload of pineapples arrived for R. H. Toye and Co., Wednesday morning, and a point of interest is the fact that the special fruit car was loaded in Cuba, ferried over to Florida and brought to Kingston via New Orleans and the Mississippi route to Kingston. These pineapples are the first to arrive from Cuba.

NEW BUILDING SCHEME OF UTILITIES COMMISSION

Is Much More Modest—All Consumers in Arrears Must Pay Up.

At a special meeting of the public utilities commission a lesser building scheme than that proposed in February was decided upon. The general manager was instructed to secure plans and specifications for an extension of the present office building, with the idea of moving the collection office to Queen street. The cost, it is understood, will be much less than $20,000. It was agreed that nothing should be done in regard to building until the whole question had been submitted to the Hydro-electric commission for its approval of the change of office.

The lists of arrears in the water, gas and electric accounts were presented and special means will now be employed to get them cleared up. Regarding accounts for the installation of water service, the manager was instructed to send a written notice to each person concerned and if the accounts are not paid at once, then they are to be placed in the hands of the city solicitor for collection. With regard to the general water arrears, the accountant was instructed to notify the consumers, giving them to June 1st to pay up, and then to report to the manager who will proceed to turn the water off. If the parties have moved, the water is to be turned off wherever they may be. If they cannot be located, then the landlord is to be made to pay.

It was shown that 1,500 consumers do not pay their accounts on the due-date although a discount is given. This means that the commission receives a benefit to the extent of several hundred dollars.

Regarding the gas and electricity accounts, the accountant was instructed to proceed with the collection in a vigorous manner. Authority was given for the purchase of a transformer from the Canadian General Electric Company at $302.00.

The minimum wage board's regulation pay for girls was considered and adopted for the office of the commission.
