FLEET FOOT is the most comfortable, economical and best wearing summer footwear for children and grown-ups.

A Fleet Foot shoe without the name would wear just as long and be just as comfortable.

But when you buy it you'd have to take somebody's word that it is a Fleet Foot.

An all-enveloping wrap that protects the gown beneath from head to toe is a smart necessity. You find it useful when motoring or walking, and there are many cool evenings when such a wrap is indispensable.

The new mode offers wraps that achieve a note of gaiety by means of color combinations, or that use a soft color which blends with a variety of costumes.

At the left is a stunning wrap of summer broadcloth printed in horizontal lines of white. The sleeves and body of the wrap are in one. It fastens straight down the front and is collared in black fox.

The other wrap is a slim wrap-over model of camel-colored kasha made with a cape back. A deep fold edges the cape and is repeated on the collar.

Both of these coats cover your entire frock, so you may go shopping in the morning and wear beneath your coat a frock that is perfectly suitable for afternoon tea or calling.

The blue of the jacket finds a matching note in the crepe de chine overblouse worn beneath, while the skirt is of sand-colored knitted material. It is knitted along smart lines so that it fits the figure and does not sag at the seams.

The hat is of candy straw, the blue and sand being worn together.

Three Minute Journeys

Where an Entire Village Lives Under One Roof.

The Karen tribes, a native race of Burma, are a very fine-looking people. Though primarily Mongolians, their skin is of a rich brownish tint, and they have very fine eyes. Some of the women are rather handsome and have that indescribable something which is only expressed by the French word "chic."

The Karens in the hill country are centuries ahead of the West in their mode of living—or rather in the manner in which they are housed.

No people are more chieftain than these particular orientals. It is an offence even to marry outside their own village. And for this reason a man does not have to look far for a wife. No people of any other village could live more closely together than do the Karens.

Here probably were the first apartment houses! For that is exactly what a Karen village is—an apartment house.

But they are not huge structures built of steel and cement—they are

Wedding Gifts

A SLIGHT difference in cost is of little moment to those who cherish quality and utility and beauty in equal proportion. For such folk, "Holmes & Edwards" Silverplate is made—and is especially suitable as wedding gifts.

Its extra quality is assured because silver is used generously in its making. Its utility, because the pieces most used are actually protected where the wear comes—either by solid blocks of sterling silver fused in at the back of the bowl and handle before plating (SILVER INLAID), or by a heavy extra deposit of silver at these points (SUPER PLATE).

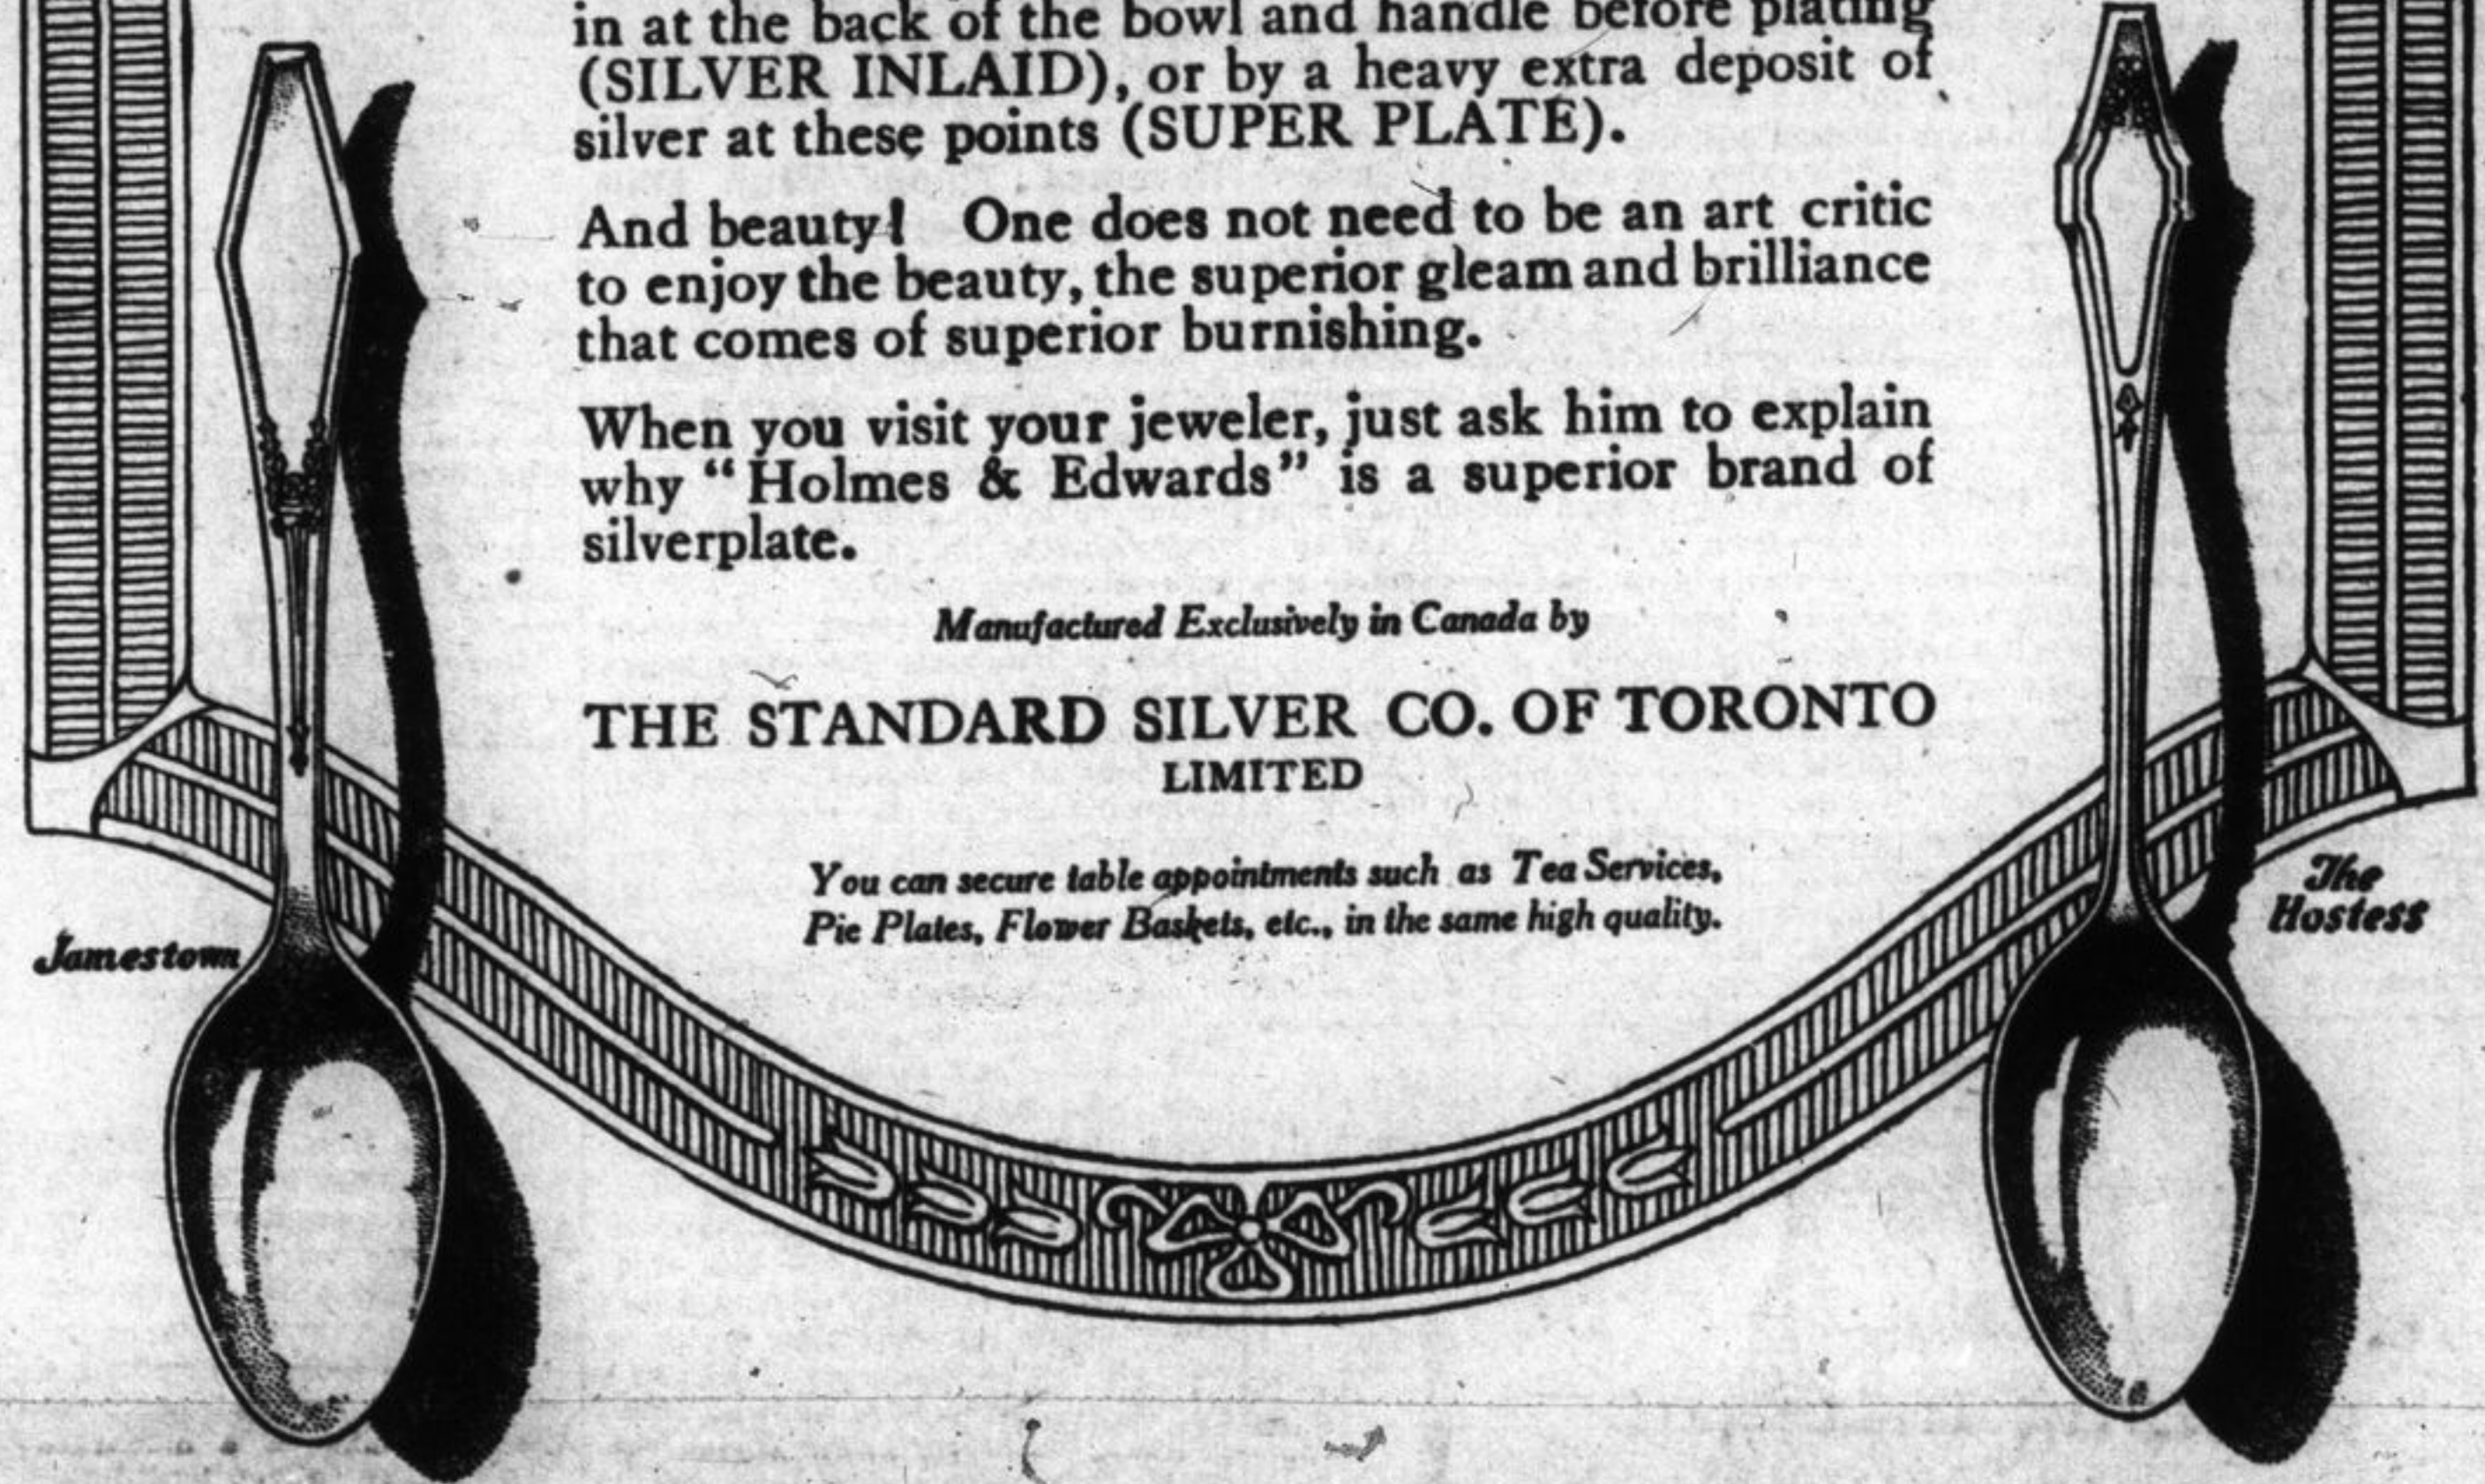

And beauty! One does not need to be an art critic to enjoy the beauty, the superior gleam and brilliance that comes of superior burnishing.

When you visit your jeweler, just ask him to explain why "Holmes & Edwards" is a superior brand of silverplate.

of a very light wood. These primitive apartment houses are constructed entirely of bamboo and without the use of a single nail. The split bamboo flooring rests on upright poles of the same wood. The joists and girders are tightly bound together by strips of bamboo fibre. In this building is one huge room, known as a guest room. Going off from a large corridor are about 20 other rooms. In each one of these rooms lives a family. It is an interesting sight to the traveler in the outlying districts of this country to see the various members of this community running up and down the slender ladder going up into the house. On days of weddings, funerals and religious ceremonies the house literally buzzes with activity, for it all takes place within this single structure. The entire village resides in this one house, under the same roof.

KEATING'S KILLS... KILL MOTHS

Johnny's Joke. Mrs. A. W. sends us this story of her neighbor's boy: "Johnny told his mother when he returned home from church that the minister went up into the pulpit with a crown on his head and palms in his hands. "Why, Johnny, what are you talking about?" she exclaimed. "Surely our minister would never do anything so unusual as that!" "I guess, mother," said the boy, "it would be a good deal more unusual if he didn't have any crown on his head or palms in his hands." —Boston Transcript.
