CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE
By Uncle Ray

Chapter 56—The Horse and His Lost Toes.

One beloved animal is the horse. Its history has been traced back to a time when there were no people on earth! Horse skeletons have been found hundreds of feet under the surface of the ground—far deeper than the bones of any human being.

The earliest members of the horse family lived two or three million years ago in forests. Instead of such hoofs as we see nowadays, they had feet with five toes!

Another thing proved by skeletons is that the first horses were very small—about the size of dogs or foxes. How would a pet horse of such a size appeal to you?

When the horse was the size of a fox, it had 44 teeth, much like the teeth of pigs or monkeys. To-day there are only 36 teeth in a horse's mouth. These are better fitted for grinding grain and grass.

The five-toed feet of horses did not suddenly change to one-toed hoofs. Look at the sketches under the little three-toed horse pictured. You see the bones of horses' feet during different periods.

First there were five toes of full size. Then two or the toes began to wither away. The third sketch shows the foot with only three toes left. The fourth sketch shows two or more toe bones getting small. Finally you see a single bone—the kind that is now inside a horse's hoof.

The question comes, "Why did the horse's toes wither in this manner?" Scientists answer:

When horses lived in forests, their five-toed feet were handy in running over underbrush, and in turning quickly.

Later the climate became drier. Trees died for lack of moisture. Prairies replaced forests.

In the new surroundings, the horse found the four extra toes useless. Nature always tends to get rid of useless things, and the extra toes slowly withered away until all that was left was the one very big toe—the hoof!

While this was happening, other changes took place in the horse's body. Its legs grew longer, as did also its neck and head. It began to look like the modern horse.

The picture shows the horse as he looked when there were three toes on each foot. The sketches below show how the toe bones slowly withered away.

DEADLOCK MAY MEAN ELECTION IN MANITOBA

Sir J. A. M. Aikins Says The Government Acts Without Authority.

Winnipeg, June 11.—A situation which may result in a provincial election in Manitoba has arisen as the result of differences between the Lieut.-Gov. Sir James A. M. Aikins, and the Bracken government, it is declared in a news story published by the Manitoba Free Press.

"The crisis," says the story, "has arisen over investment in provincial municipal and city of Winnipeg bonds by the Manitoba Savings Bank before the lieutenant-governor had signed the order-in-council approving the purchase."

"Sir James has submitted a brief to Premier John Bracken in the form of a lengthy legal argument, in which he takes the position that the request for his signature to orders-in-council after those orders have already been executed is a plain declaration by the government that they regard him as the mere sort of a figure and is a reflection upon the dignity of the office which he holds."

FOUR HUNDRED ARE DROWNED IN FLOOD

Seventy Thousand Are Homeless in the Volga Russian Region.

Stockholm, June 11.—Russian correspondents of the Stockholm Tidningen report that nearly 400 persons have been drowned and 70,000 rendered homeless by floods in the lower Volga region.

Another far-off corner of Russia—Ferghana province, in Turkestan—has been stricken by famine. A message received here says that 400,000 persons are affected by the food shortage, which has already resulted in many deaths. The population is reported to be eating grass.

SIR M. SADLER HONORED.

D. Litt, Degree Conferred by Leeds University.

London, June 11.—Sir Michael Sadler, the noted educationalist, who is leaving the University of Leeds, where he is vice-chancellor, to become master of University College, Oxford, was paid high tribute at the Leeds University, and the honorary degree of doctor of literature was conferred on him. All the speakers at the gathering expressed keen regret at Sir Michael's impending departure from Leeds.

Sir Michael Sadler, replying to the tributes and expressions of regret, and thanking the university for the degree just conferred on him, referred to his recent tour in Canada. He said the tour had deepened his conviction that liberal education of the widest and highest kind was of fundamental interest to the British Commonwealth and not least to Great Britain itself.

MAKES ANOTHER BID FOR BRITISH BACKING

End Ruhr Resistance, Poincare's Conditions for Signing Joint Note.

Paris, June 11.—Premier Poincare notified Great Britain, Italy and Belgium Saturday he is willing to sign a common reply to the German reparations proposal, provided it is simply a demand that Berlin abandon her policy of passive resistance in the Ruhr.

The French premier pointed out to the allies that this could constitute a first step, which he considers absolutely necessary before discussing an answer to the latest Cuno note.
