What the Press Agents Say About Coming Attractions

DOUGLAS MACLEAN

AS "BELLBOY 13," Douglas MacLean has done it again! Those patrons of the Allen who were fortunate enough to see him in "The Hottentot" have never forgotten the laughter and thrills in which this production abounded, but in "Bellboy 13," his latest production now playing at the Allen theatre, he has eclipsed all previous efforts and has made a picture that indeed seems to have reached the acme of perfection as far as entertainment is concerned.

In the "Hottentot" you will remember him as a boy who was forced to become a champion steeple-chase rider; in "Bellboy 13" he takes a position as bellboy and the thrilling and amusing situations which he stumbles into, will provide you with real entertainment for an hour. A real comedy star in a picture made for laughing purposes only! Don't miss it!

Another feature of the bill is Lloyd Hamilton in "Extra Extra" a hilarious comedy of the struggles of a poor cub reporter. In this comedy Lloyd Hamilton establishes himself, beyond a doubt, as one of the foremost comedians on the screen.

The Fox News, items of interest from all parts of the world, round out an exceptionally fine programme.

THOMAS MEIGHAN SCORES HIT IN "NE'ER-DO-WELL"

In "The Ne'er-do-well," the versatile Thomas Meighan scores a big hit.

The prodigal son of a more or less rich but impotent father, Meighan, as Kirk Anthony, goes the limit. The picture introduces him as the idolized head of New York's young college set and he busts records and his father's bank roll with equal recklessness.

Anthony attends an evening's celebration for the victorious rugby team, and also in attendance are two confidential agents, one a police officer and one in the employ of his father. There is a mix-up at the affair and the evening ends in the policeman being injured and in Anthony being dragged by his father's agent and shanghaied—his consciousness returning in time for him to realize that he is on board a steamer bound for Panama.

But he soon picked up acquaintance with a Mrs. Courtlandt and things were going on famously till his father sent a letter denying the kinship between them. Then young Anthony went out on his own and the real fun started.

The Maple Leaf Trio ably sustained their part of the Strand's programme last night with their songs and jokes. The hit of the evening was "Barney Google with your Goo-Goo-google Eyes" and the same song will be repeated at performances this week.

MRS. DUNNETT ARRESTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE

In Connection With Death of Daughter—Case In Police Court.

Provincial Inspector Hammond and Provincial Constable Roy Clark late Monday afternoon placed under arrest Mrs. Louise Dunnett on a charge of "unlawfully using an instrument on her daughter, the late May Dunnett, with the intention of procuring a miscarriage."

The accused was arraigned in the police court on Tuesday morning and pleaded "not guilty." A. B. Cunningham appeared as her counsel, and T. J. Rigney, crown-attorney, conducted the prosecution.

The evidence of Horace Wilson and Inspector Hammond was taken in the case. May Dunnett died in Kingston in February last.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION

President Reviews Work of Year—Hour Difficulty Being Adjusted

The second of the daily sessions of the 12th annual conference of the Ontario and Quebec Typographical union was held on Tuesday morning in the city council chambers, the business of the meeting being devoted to the reading of various reports of committees, the adoption of several important resolutions, and the annual addresses of President A. J. Bolwell, Secretary-Treasurer Hugh S. Bently and Chairman Hugh McColl of the apprentice committee.

One of the most interesting features of the session was the exhibition of apprentice work accomplished by students at the Hamilton Technical and Art school, and an explanation of the system in vogue in that city where two full-time and one part-time instructors are engaged in teaching boys and young men the elements of their trade. The work showed many examples of originality and rare talent, and many apprentices from local printing offices were given the opportunity of viewing the exhibits.

President Bolwell stressed the importance of the campaign to educate country printers as to the advantages of coming into the union. The apprentice work was also taken up at some length. The speaker stated that the 44-hour difficulty was being gradually adjusted with each month showing a lesser number drawing strike allowance.

The report of the secretary-treasurer, Hugh S. Bently, was most encouraging; this official referring to the revision of the constitution and by-laws; the organization during the service and conditions; and the rendering of the financial statement. Mr. Bently spoke of the historic interest attached to Kingston and also expressed the pleasure of the conference in being here this summer.

The members of the conference visited many points of historic and scenic interest in the city and surrounding district during the two days, and on Tuesday afternoon they are to visit the Royal Military College and Fort Henry, after which they are to go on a picnic up the Rideau.
