Good Night Stories

DOTTY CHANGES HER MIND.
Dotty's face clouded when her mother called her in from her play to change her dress.
"I don't mind changing my dress, but I just hate to take the time—"
"Tut, tut, tut!" laughed a merry voice, and Squeedee, the little elfin from Joyland, hopped down from the tree above Dotty's head down to the soft grass. "My goodness! I have a little friend—"
"Now, Squeedee," Dotty laughed merrily, "I suppose you're going to tell me about some of your brown friends. Well, I know it's not nice to be dirty and it's not nice to complain when I'm told to change my dress. I'm sorry I did, Squeedee."
"Half the battle's won," laughed the elfin, his eyes twinkling merrily. And before Dotty could ask any questions she found herself standing down on the very bottom of the ocean with swarms of beautiful fish swimming around her head.

dee. "I just want Dotty to meet you. You see, I caught Dotty with a frown on her face. Her mother called her in to change her dress."
"Oh, pshaw!" chuckled Mrs. Crab. "If you lived in my family, you might have some cause to complain. But, my goodness! You can change yours in a jiffy, while Daddy Crab and I—well, it takes a long time for us to change our dresses. That's why we are in hiding now."
"Why do you have to hide?" Dotty asked. Then she saw Mrs. Crab's shell wasn't hard like she always thought it was.

"Why Do You Have To Hide?"

"Why, Squeedee!" she whispered, holding tightly to the little elfin's hand. "Why did we come here?"
"I wanted you to see what Mr. and Mrs. Crab have to do when it's time for them to change their dresses," replied the elfin, knocking on the side of a big stone.
"Who's there?" called a tiny voice and Mrs. Crab poked her head around the side of the rock and then came hurrying out when she spied the elfin. "Why, if it isn't Squeedee. What's wrong now?"
"Nothing at all," replied Squeedee.

"Well, without our hard shells on we're too liable to be gobbled up," she replied. "You see, we can't just take off and put on our clothes like you children do. It takes the new skin some time to harden, and that is why we hide until it does get hard."
"And for goodness sake!" laughed Dotty, "how many times a day do you change your dresses?"
"A day!" exclaimed Mrs. Crab. "Why, child alive, we only change our suits once a year. My goodness! once a year is enough when you have to wait for your new clothes to—"

Just then there was a terrible splash in the water and Mrs. Crab darted behind the rock just as a great big fish sailed by and upset Dotty. When she picked herself up she found she was standing in her own back yard.
With a low laugh she ran into the house and changed her dress, humming merrily to herself.

David Wesley Fulford, well known and esteemed resident of Brockville, passed away on Saturday, after an illness lasting several months, aged eighty-three years. He was born in Metilda township, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Fulford.

The wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mrs. J. A. Shipman, Elm Ridge, Lyn, on June 7th, of her second daughter, Wilma Bell, who was united in marriage to Clarence Keith Williams, only son of Mrs. J. Williams, Toronto.
Miss Rhena V. H. Kendrick, formerly of Athens, won the distinction of being the gold medalist in classics from Victoria College, as well as being graduated with F. A. Ward for the Governor-General's gold medal. She also took her B.A. degree. The death took place at Hopworth, Ont., on June 3rd, in her 86th year, of Matilda Frances Wright, relict of the late Thomas Swainston Campbell of Warton, and youngest daughter of Capt. Francis Wright, who died at Belleville, Ont.

Apples, pears, beans, poultry, oysters, frozen meat, bacon, flour and bars of copper manufacture helped to make up the 10,000-ton miscellaneous cargo of an Atlantic liner which recently reached Liverpool, Eng., from New York.

Sleep is more important than food

Scientists tell us that life can be sustained longer without food than without sleep—sleeplessness is starvation in the first degree. Yet many who insist on clean, wholesome, nourishing food think but little about the quality of sleep they get. They are willing to spend their nights on a spring and mattress carelessly selected and hastily bought. But there is a way to be assured of better sleep and the joy of physical fitness that follows it—Use Simmons sleep equipment.

Simmons "Banner" Spring

Before you go to bed tonight, see what your spring and mattress are like. Carry the mental picture to your furniture dealer's and compare what you have with the buoyant and flexible comfort of the Simmons "Banner" Spring and the Ostermoor Mattress. Set your own value on the sleep, health and energy their luxury insures. You pay two cents a night for years of service. See the "Banner." Examine the whole line of Simmons springs. They are economical because they do not sag or break down, but keep their life and resiliency for many years. Priced, like Simmons quality beds and mattresses, to suit any family budget.

Look for the Simmons Label. Beware of imitations
