CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE By Uncle Ray

Chapter 115—The Death of Patroclus.

Patroclus learned that the wounded man was a surgeon whose healing art was known far and wide. As he was getting ready to go back to tell this news to Achilles, an old Greek leader begged him to urge the hero to help in the fight against the Trojans.

Returning to Achilles, he said: "The Greek army is near defeat. The Trojans have set fire to some of the ships. Look yonder! There is another one aflame. Will you help? Or, if you are unwilling still, will you let me wear your armor so I may frighten the enemy?"

Achilles was still stubborn, but the speech moved him.

"I shall not help," he replied, "but you can put on my armor and lead my men to the battle. I warn you, friend Patroclus, be content with driving the Trojans back. Do not pursue too far."

The Trojans thought it was Achilles himself who appeared upon the battlefield. Terror seized their hearts, and they fled back toward their city. Only brave Hector made a stand. As Patroclus advanced, he faced him and hurled his spear. The blow was fatal, and Patroclus sank to the ground in the agony of death. Hector took off his opponent's armor and carried it to Troy.

When Achilles learned of the event, he was overcome with sorrow, and threw himself on the body of his old comrade, weeping without stint.

Achilles threw himself on the body of his friend and wept. At the left of the picture is a goddess who has brought new armor to the hero.

VERY POPULAR GAME FIFTY YEARS AGO

Law Forbidding Border Traffic in Booze Was Operative in 1870.

A Watertown, N.Y., despatch says: Continued reports of rum running along Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence river tend to bring out the fact that this is no new enterprise, as it was practised more than fifty years ago and no doubt long before that time.

Evidence in a flourishing illicit traffic in Canadian liquor was discovered about 25 years ago when the old hotel near Mexico Point was destroyed by fire. When the ruins were cleared away workers found a small but well built cistern in the cellar of the building which had been used as a storage for whiskey.

At that time the owner of the hotel was supposed to be an enthusiastic fisherman and would go out in his boat ostensibly for the purpose of catching fancy specimens. But instead the little craft would head across to Kingston and take on a load of illicit booze, for even at that time there was the law which forbade the transportation of liquor from Canada to United States without paying a heavy duty.

Stealing through the night on his return journey he would signal by rockets to his assistants on shore, and if the coast was clear the boat would be brought to shore and the liquor taken to the cistern for storage. If, on the other hand, no return signal was given the skipper of the craft, would remain some distance out in the channel and buoy the casks in the lake awaiting a more favorable opportunity to bring them to shore.

Through the vigilance of Elias Root, collector of the port of Oswego at that time, and custom officials sent to that territory, the smuggling game was not profitable although it was many years before it was broken up.

Fatally Hurt.

Pembroke, Aug. 18.—A very unfortunate accident occurred here when Allen Laidlaw, whose home is in Midland, suffered serious injuries at The Pembroke Lumber Company. Mr. Laidlaw, a foreman in the factory, was adjusting some mechanical defect when his clothes were caught in a belt. The unfortunate man was hurled several feet. His leg was broken in three places and the head of the victim was badly wounded. Upon being found in this condition, Mr. Laidlaw was removed to the General Hospital, where it is hoped he will recover from what the doctors in attendance look upon as a serious case.

Russian Grain Harvest Unfavorably Affected

Moscow, Aug. 18.—The unfavorable weather of the last month has changed the coming harvest prospects for the worse and the estimates are now much below the previous figure of 3,000,000,000 poods (about 54,000,000 tons), the probable increase over last year being calculated at only 18 per cent.

Official circles however aver that the previous experts will not be interfered with.

Damage $750,000,000.

New York, Aug. 18.—President E. Bartlett, Jr., of the New York cotton exchange, in a statement declared that the Boll weevil and drought so far this season represented damage to the cotton crop based on present prices of approximately $750,000,000. He said that the ravages of the weevil unless effectively checked within the next few years would threaten American supremacy as a cotton growing nation.
