CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE By Uncle Ray

Chapter 122—Discovered by a Princess.

The God of the sea (old Poseidon) was still angry toward Odysseus. Just when the latter saw an island in the distance, a storm was whipped up and the raft was wrecked. It might have gone ill with the hero if a nymph had not come to his aid, giving him a magic girdle to keep him afloat.

Athena, goddess of wisdom, also helped him making the water smooth in front of him and causing him to move to the shore. He reached the island in safety and was so happy to be again on firm ground, that he kissed the earth. He was very tired, so he gathered some leaves for a bed, and threw himself down to sleep.

A princess coming near with some maidens of her court awakened the stranger and invited him to come to the palace. She admired his manly figure and thought he should be treated well. Near the palace, however, she left his side because she feared people would talk about her if they saw her in the company of such a gallant hero.

Odysseus (at the right) is asking the king and queen to give him aid.

THE SPANISH LOSSES HEAVY IN MOROCCO

The Moors Declare That The Treaty of Algiers Must Go.

London, Aug. 27.—Under Tangier and other date lines the London newspapers, print reports of the Spanish losses and difficulties in Morocco.

The Tangier correspondent of the Daily Express quotes a Riflian communique on the fighting previous to the relief of Tifan in saying that the rebels counted 739 Spanish dead, while it took them two days to remove the enemy's wounded. The withdrawal of the enormous quantities of captured supplies would take several days, the statement added.

Abd-el Krim, the rebel leader, a week ago summoned 100,000 Riflians to arms, the correspondent continues, and threatened to confiscate the goods and lands of all who disobeyed the call. The French zone and Tangier itself is practically denuded of Riflians in consequence of the general response to the summons.

Abd-el Krim has issued a manifesto, the despatch adds, declaring that the treaty of Algiers must go the same way as the treaty of Sevres for his people are capable of governing their own country and, like the Turks, are prepared to prove they are able to support their determination.

Frank Gerace was convicted before acting police magistrate Kent Saturday morning on a charge of forestalling on the Kingston market contrary to the by-law, and was fined $5 or one month in jail.

An appeal against the decision of Judge Denton, who declared the Ontario betting information law to be ultra vires of the Ontario legislature has been filed by Attorney-General Nettle.

she feared people would talk about her if they saw her in the company of such a gallant hero.

Athena placed a cloud around Odysseus and led him into the room of the king. There he beheld many nobles and statesmen, members of a race which never used up its strength in bloody wars. Athena lifted the cloud, and the Greek stood in the midst of the court. He humbly asked for help. The king gave him a seat of honor (the one in which his own son usually sat). Wine and rich foods were set before him.

By and by, a blind bard sang of Troy and the wooden horse. The eyes of Odysseus filled with tears. Being asked why the song made him sad, he told how he himself had taken part in that famous siege.

Everyone on the island continued to be good to him. He was given presents of many kinds, and the king fitted out a ship for him to use in sailing home to Ithaca, the island near Greece over which Odysseus had once ruled.

Hikers From New York. Seymour Ross and Clarence H. Johnson, of a New York high school, who are on a long hike, called at the Kingston Y.M.C.A. on Saturday morning. They each carry a fifty-pound pack. The boys came by way of Niagara Falls and Toronto, and accepted all kinds of lifts enroute. On Friday they secured an auto ride of 138 miles. The boys proceeded on their way to Montreal.

Decorate Soldiers' Graves. Hamilton, Aug. 27.—The fifth annual decoration of graves of soldiers who fell in the great war, and a memorial service were held yesterday afternoon at Harvey park before a crowd of about sixteen hundred people.

The invasion of rust from United States does damage to the crops in the west.

AN IRISH TRIBUTE TO COLLINS AND GRIFFITH. The Irish people celebrated the first anniversary of the death of Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith by unveiling a fine cenotaph in their honor. It was erected near the Government buildings in Dublin, and is of Celtic design with medallion portraits of the two men on its face, and surrounded by a Celtic Cross.
