

The British Whig Pictorial Page

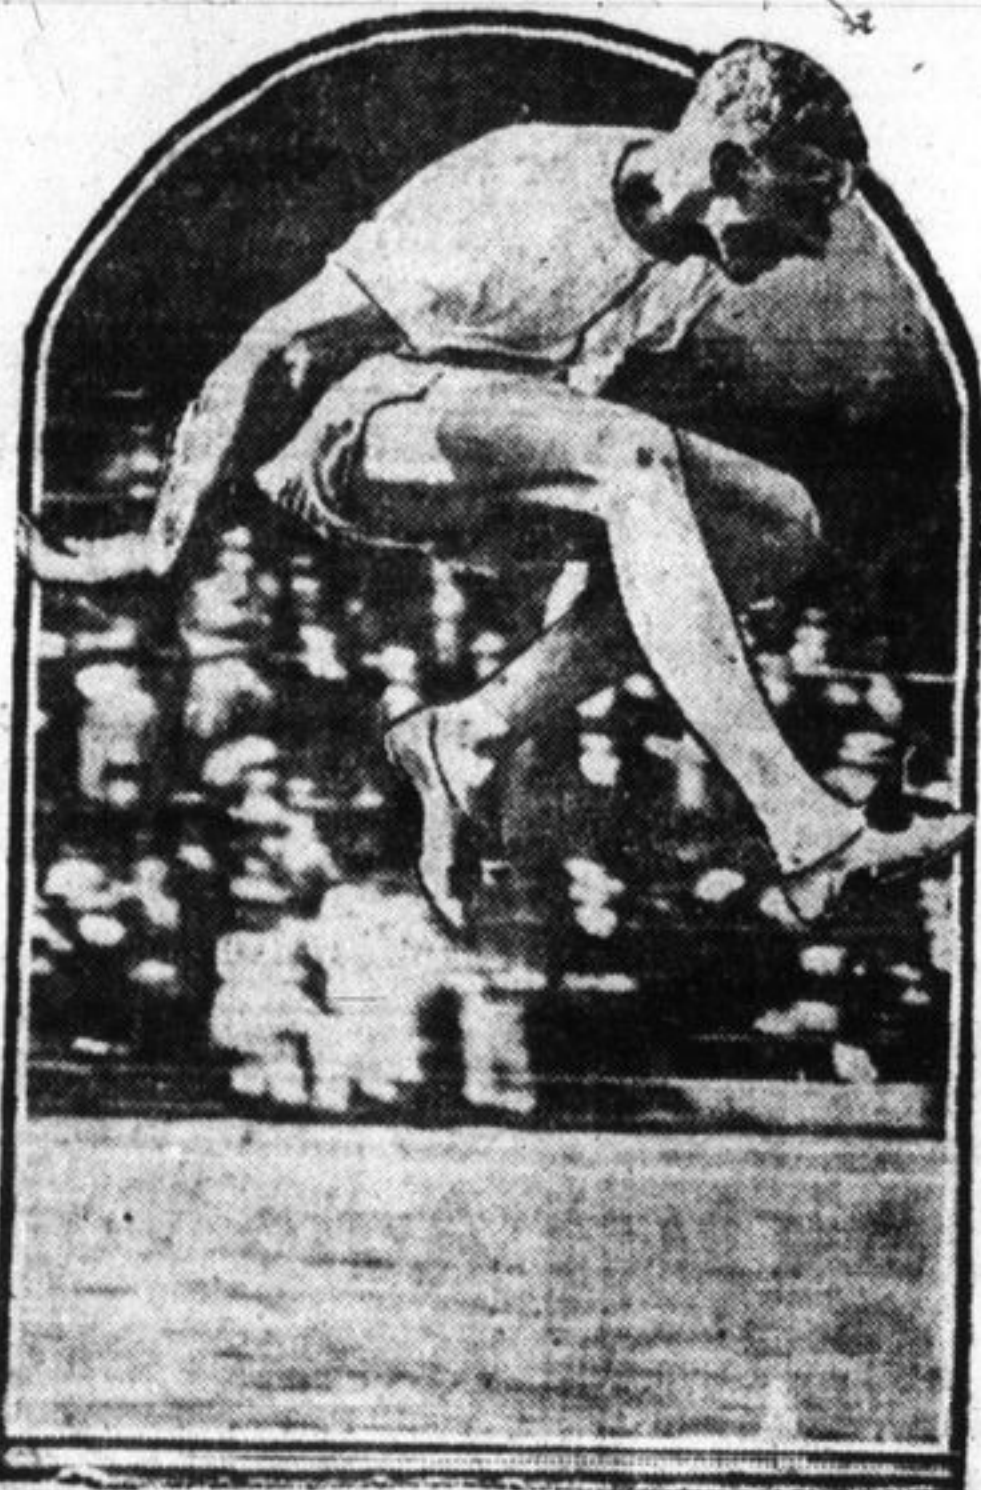

Three personal friends of the late President Harding, who attended his funeral at Marion, were Harvey S. Firestone, Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison.

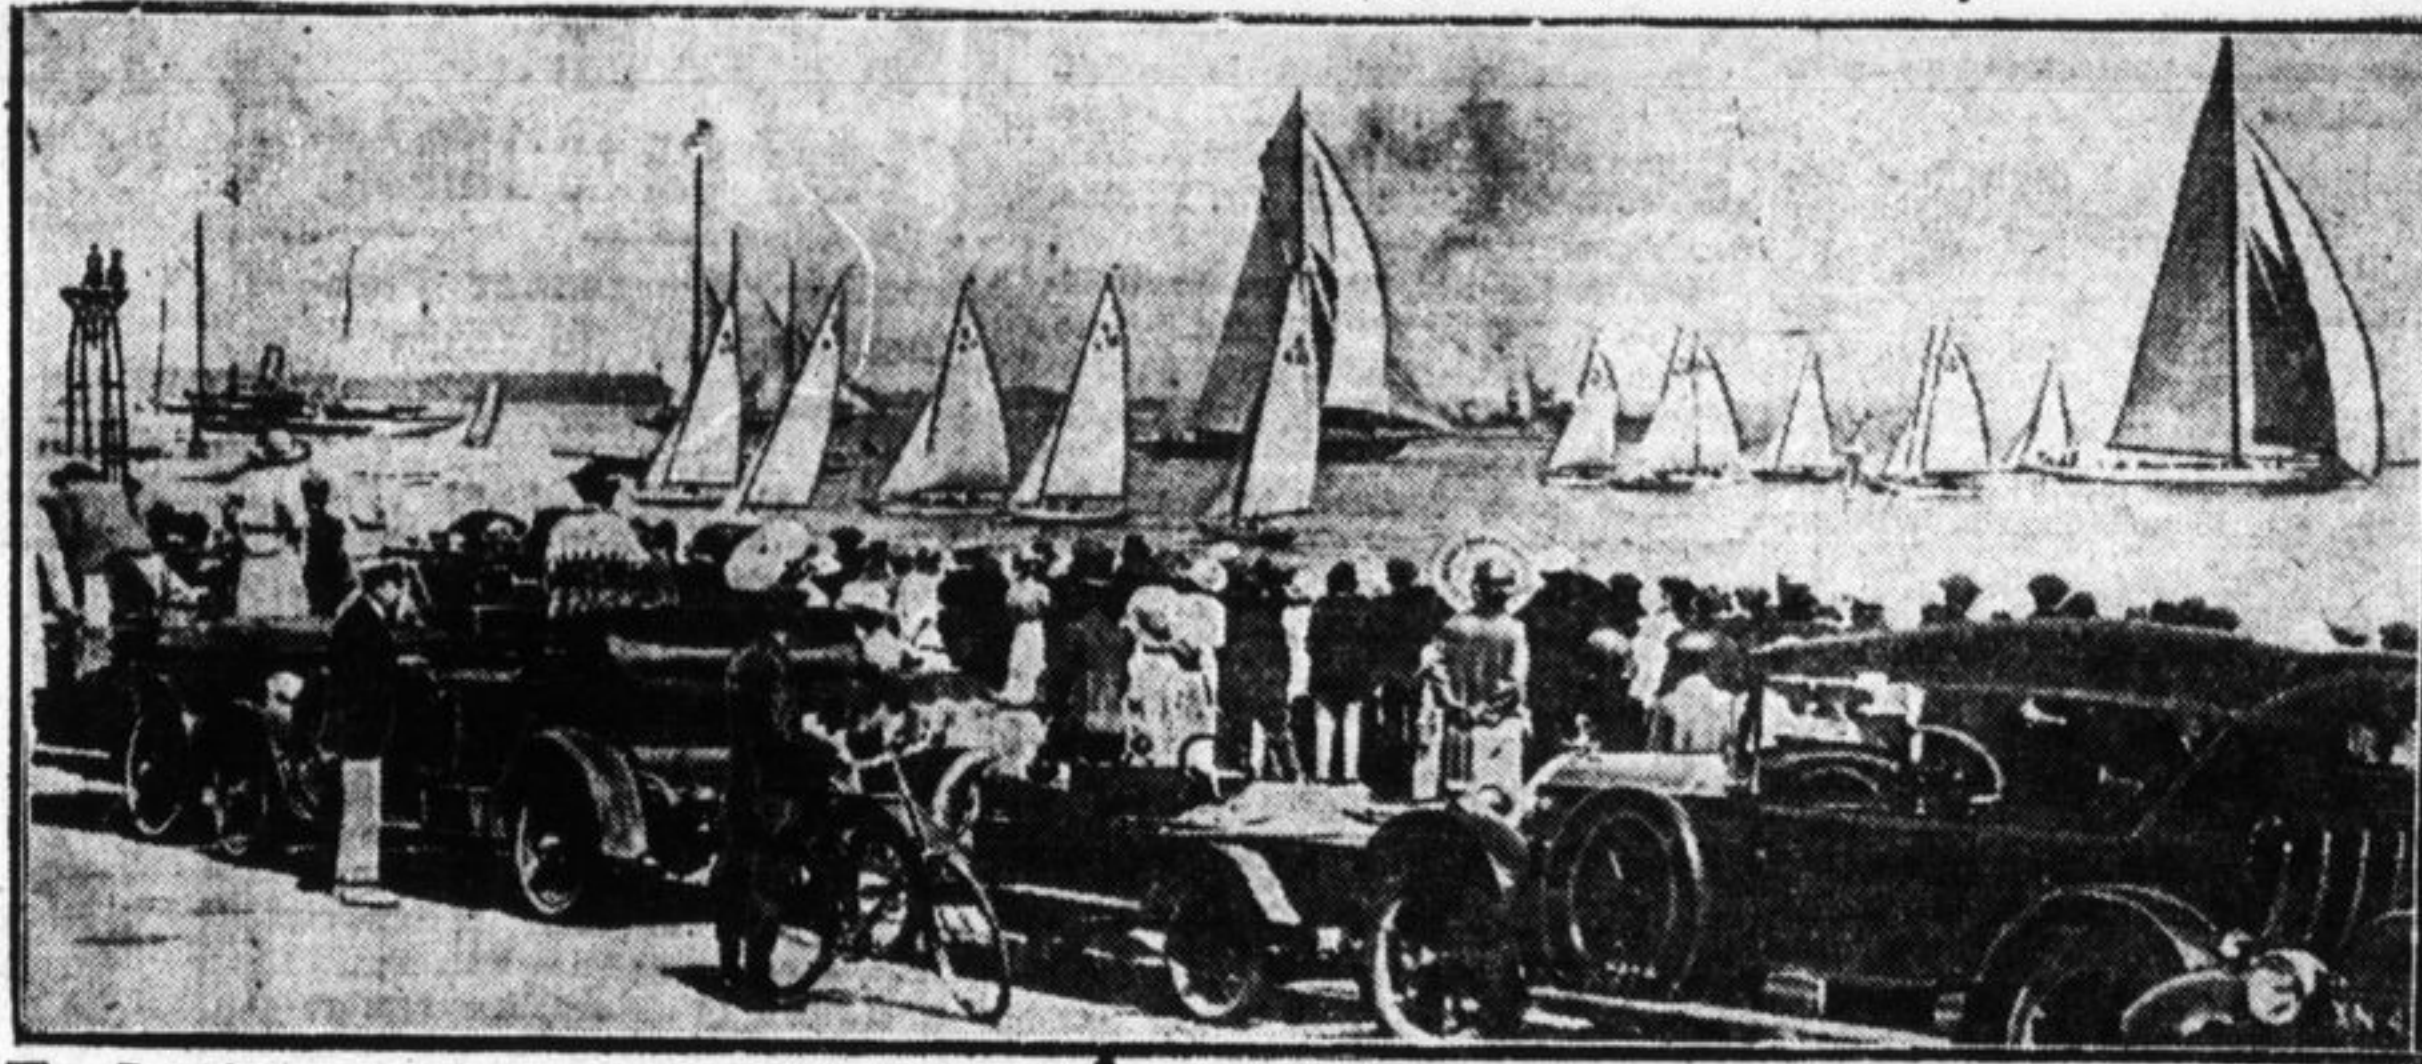

Much public interest is being shown in "Arctic," a husky brought back from Alaska by members of the Harding party. He is destined to become as famous as "Laddie Boy."

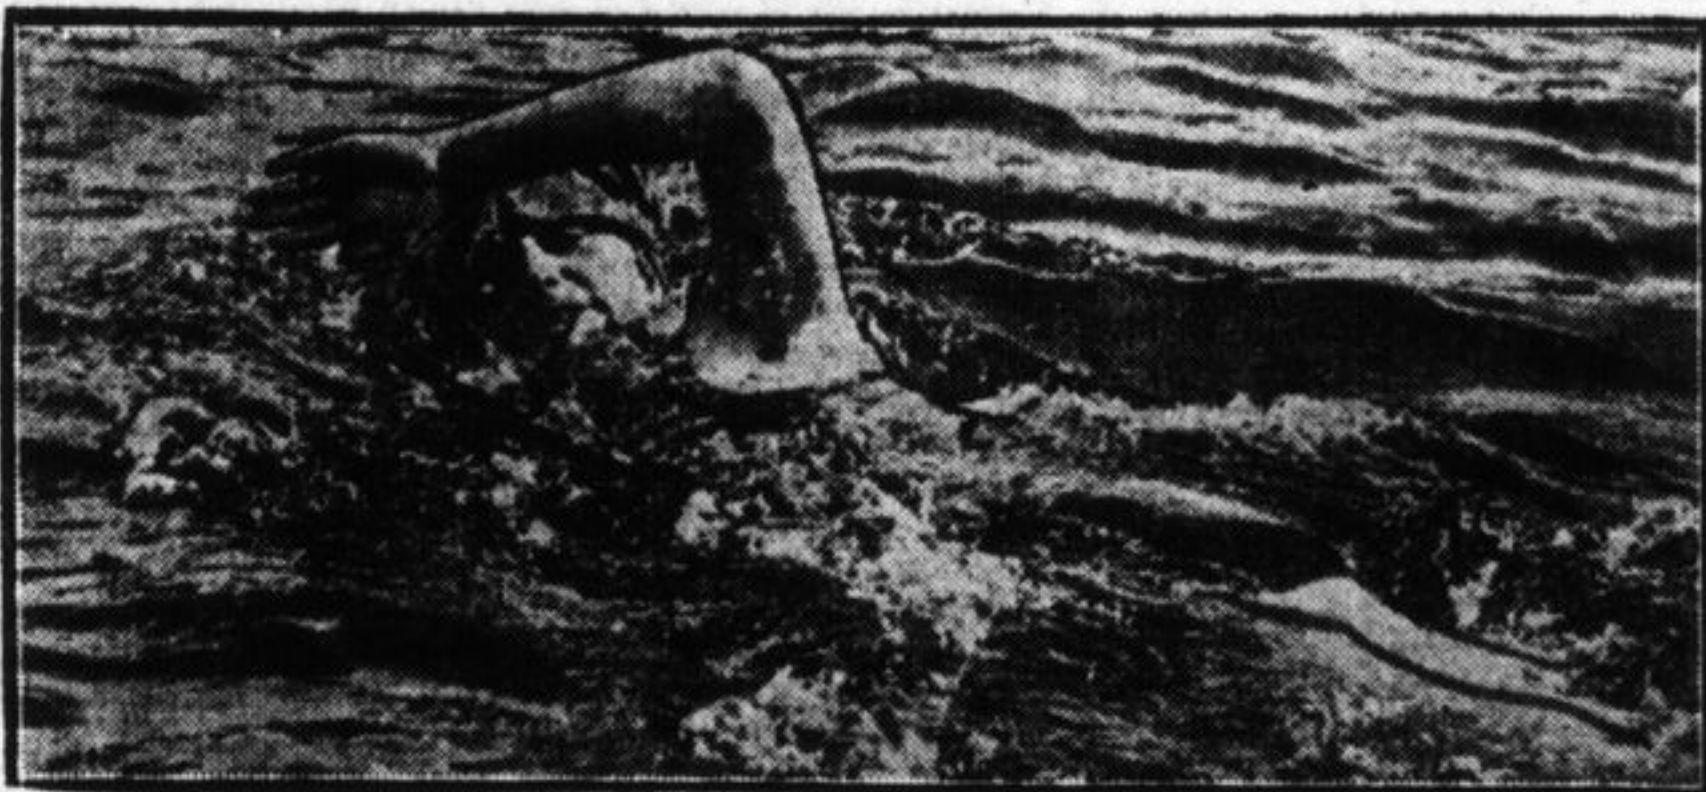

There isn't much distinction between a carpenter and a cobbler in Japan. Japanese shoes are made of wood and are put together with hammers.

H. M. Abrahams, the Cambridge captain, winning his event in the international track meet at the Wembley Stadium. He made a long jump of twenty-three feet two-and-a-half inches.

The British-American yachting contest off Cowes was won by English yachtsmen. Many prominent Americans and English royalty witnessed the defeat of the American entrants.

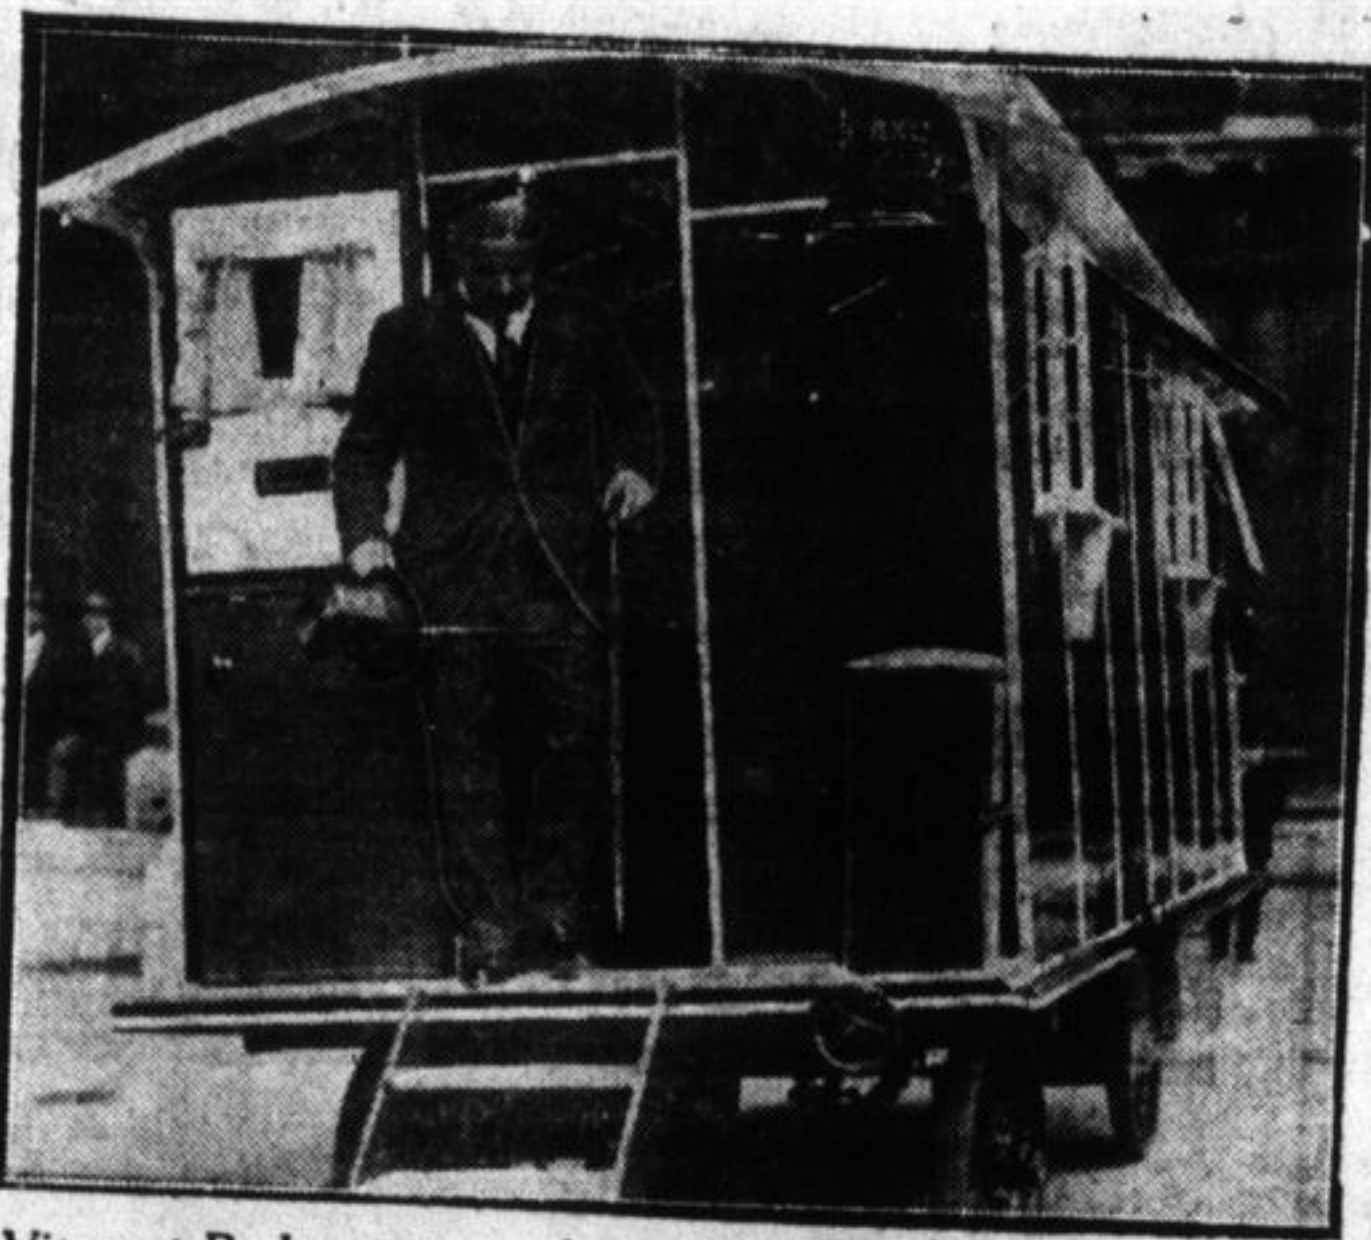

Mrs. Colson led all the rest in the Surrey ladies' long distance swim down the Thames and under the bridges of London.

The engagement of Mr. Justice Asbury of London, England, to Mrs. Harriet Girdlestone has just been announced. He is a widower and is 63 years of age.

When the Hun planted mines in the North Sea he had little thought that they would later be used as letter boxes. This novelty container of mails is used on a Canadian Pacific liner.

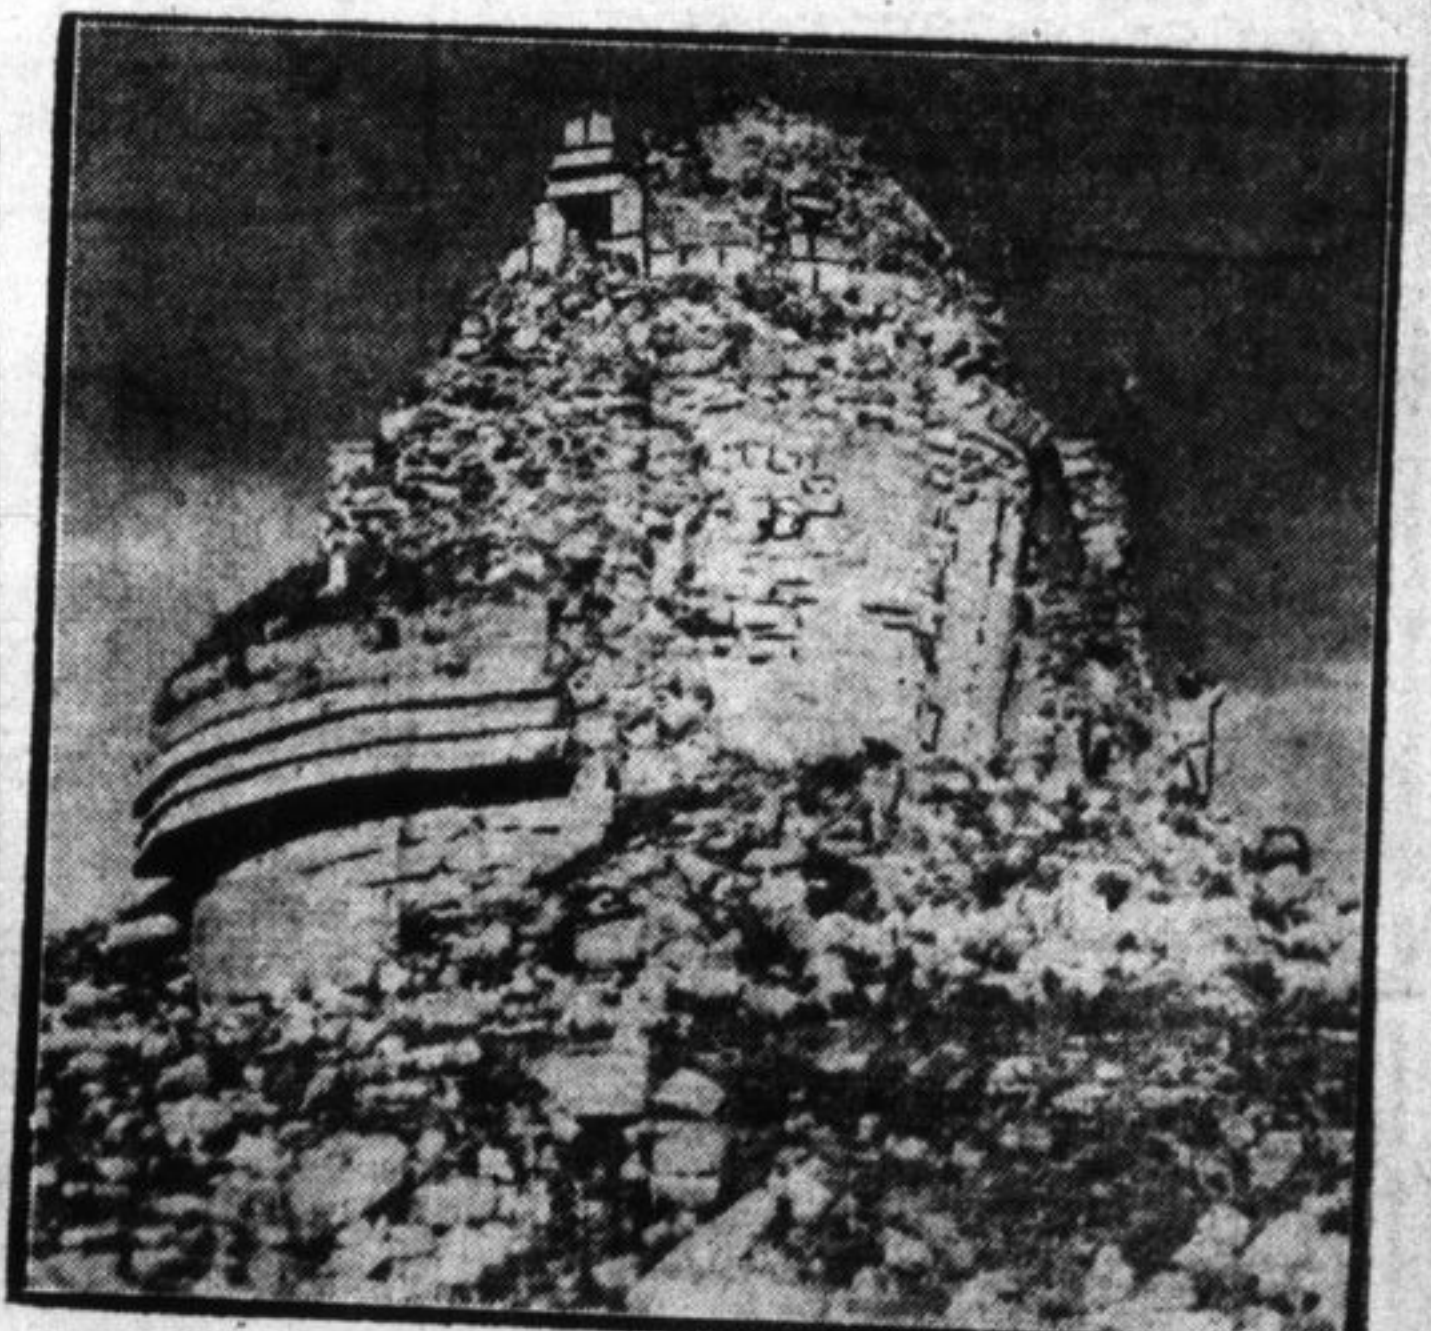

Viscount Peel, secretary of state for India, inspected a caravan which has been specially built for the Maharajah of Gwalior. It will be used for touring and big game hunting.

An English girl greets the American swimmer, Sullivan, who crossed the English Channel after a stubborn swim. He is the first from his country to accomplish the feat.

Miss Louise Moddy, a winner of a Californian beauty prize, was presented with this baby lion cub named "Mischief."

An expedition is to make a ten-year search in Mexico which hopes to find an art and civilization dating farther back than that disclosed by the excavations in Egypt.

These baby elks followed their provider to town and have adopted themselves into the family.

The women of Turkey, released from the bonds of ancient tradition and customs, are taking to all the professions and trades of man, including the military career.

Some university football stars have adopted this strenuous form of labor to keep in training for the fall gridiron contests. Juggling two-hundred pound cakes of ice gives them stamina to buck the line.