To-Day's Blunder Corrected

(See illustration on Page 13.) This man has placed his desk so that his back is to the door. This makes an uninviting impression on the caller and makes it inconvenient for the man to turn to greet him.

If he were facing the door, he could greet his caller with a nod if he could not at once take his attention from his work.

It is not by bemoaning one's fate, or being discontented with one's lot, that evil is overcome or a wrong is right.

There are four things our country needs—faith, hope, love and work.
