. The report states that a large number of these now serving sentences in Canadian penitentiaries are less than 20 years old. Last year in the Portsmouth penitentiary there were 388 lumates under 20; 82 were under 15. and there were 18 who were less than sixteen . years old. There are present over 1,600 young people in Canadian industrial and reformatory schools. The committee also asserts that a large number of the younger people now in the penitentiaries have siready served terms in such institutions or in jails.

"We find offenders doing evil simply because they have never known good," the committee reports as a result of its investigations; and it inaists that by segregation and proper care the majority of juvenile crim- be had to their qualifications in preinals may be reclaimed and made venting misdoing, especially in cogood citizens.

The committee refers to a report officers and probation officers.
