CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

Chapter 138—Greek Workmen.

Let us now have a few words to say about the men who did the hard, rough work in Greece. They were of three classes: slaves, foreigners, and poorer freemen.

Records do not show just how many slaves there were in Greece, but it seems there were as many slaves as all other classes put together.

Most slaves were set to work on farms, but there were some in cities. One old list of city workers shows 27 "freemen," 40 men from foreign countries, and 15 slaves.

When slaves were hired to work on public buildings, they seem to have received the same wages as other workers—from three to six "obols" a day. That would be only from 9 to 18 cents in our money, but of course money bought more at that time than it does now.

In Athens, each trade or craft had its special street. On one street there were workshops for potters, on another for sandal-makers, on still another for smiths.

We have already spoken of the potters. Their vases and jars are among the finest which have ever been made. Thousands have come down to us, and no two can be called alike. That is because Greek workmen took an interest in their work. They wanted to make things better and better.

ONLY POINTED PISTOL WHEN LIFE IN DANGER

Story of Princess Fahmy in Witness Box in the London Trial.

London, Sept. 14.—Princess Marie Marguerite Fahmy, on trial for the murder of her Egyptian husband, yesterday resumed the witness stand to tell the second chapter of her life in the desert.

Continuing her story of what happens to the wives of African sheiks from the point where the popular novels leave the young and beautiful western girl clasped in the arms of her semi-savage lover, the princess led up to the death of Prince Ali Kamel Fahmy Bey, whom she killed in a hotel here after a wild wooing and honeymoon in Cairo.

The prosecution started its cross-examination at 11 a.m., questioning the pretty French girl on her life with the sheik in Paris before their marriage.

The princess said she found the sheik a gay and powerful lover on the Paris boulevards. But after marriage in Cairo, she said, all was changed and she soon saw she must seek a divorce.

The prosecutor then handed the princess the weapon with which she shot and killed her desert lover. It was a blue-finished automatic pistol, which the girl took with repugnant loathing.

"This is the pistol with which you shot Prince Fahmy, the prosecutor said coldly, as the witness burst into tears.

"I know nothing about automatic pistols," the girl sobbed hysterically. "I didn't want to kill Fahmy. I only pointed the pistol at him to frighten him when he said he was going to kill me. I never even noticed when I pressed the trigger. I didn't even know the shot had been fired until I saw Fahmy lying on the floor."

The witness seemed on the verge of nervous collapse as the prosecutor buried question after question pitilessly at her in an effort to show alleged acquaintance with other men before the sheik crowded all others from her life.

Cross-examination of the princess was concluded with introduction of a letter she sent her attorney Aug. 21st, "to be opened in event of my death." The letter explained the quarrels between the sheik and his wife and declared that if the princess died from violence, Fahmy should formally be accused of her murder.

The marriage took place in Toronto, on Monday, of Miss Nell Rigby, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Rigby, Ottawa, to C. Lennox Arnold, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Arnold, Brockville.

At Tyndinaga a pretty wedding took place, Tuesday, when Miss Ella May Brant, daughter of David S. Brant, was united in wedlock to William Corby, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Corby, Deseronto.

FIND STEADY WORK FOR BRITISH HARVESTERS

Immigration Department Seeks Jobs For Thousands From Overseas.

Efforts are being made by the department of immigration and colonization and the Employment Service of Canada, which functions under the department of labor, to find permanent jobs for the thousands of young men who came from the British Isles last month to help garner the harvest in Western Canada.

Most of them, who are now working on the farms are going to be out of work when the cutting and threshing of the crops is finished, and it is known that practically all of them want to stay in Canada if they can find work. Among the 12,000 who came to Canada, as the result of an appeal for harvest help are both skilled and unskilled workers. Altogether officials of the immigration department say they are of a fine type of Britisher and it would be a loss to Canada if they could not be kept in this country.

Speaking on the situation one immigration official said that last year there was a general agitation for an aggressive effort to be made to bring British settlers to Canada. There are now thousands of the best brain and brawn of the Old Country here who will stay if they can find work. The machinery of the department of immigration and the Employment Service of Canada is going to be placed at the disposal of employers throughout the Dominion to try and prevent the return of these young Britishers.

A WAVE OF PROTECTION.

Bradford Chamber of Commerce Passes Resolution.
 London, Sept. 14.—For the first time in its history the Bradford Chamber of Commerce yesterday passed a resolution in favor of protection.

The resolution urged that the forthcoming Imperial and Economic Conference should be asked to consider the advisability of putting on raw materials, of which they have a monopoly, an export tax on those going to all countries outside the Empire.

Another resolution adopted was that the Board of Trade should be asked to institute an inquiry, provided for under the Safeguarding of Industries Act, into the causes of unemployment in the West Riding of Yorkshire that the act might, if advisable, be applied to West Yorkshire.

E. H. Gates, who moved the resolution, declared that, however clever and enterprising the West Riding manufacturers might be, they could not meet competition with depreciated exchange.

Aldroyd Senior, vice-president of the chamber, said he had been a free trader for many years, but if one never learned by experience, one never would make progress. When the Safeguarding of Industries Act was passed practically no member of the chamber favored it, but they had been through a lot since and they had to admit that others perhaps, had shown more foresight.

RAP PINCHOT SETTLEMENT.

Retail Coal Merchants Say Economic Facts Ignored.

Washington, Sept. 14.—Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, was charged by the National Retail Coal Merchants' Association with "passing the buck" and disregarding the public interests in his settlement of the anthracite coal strike.

In a statement presented to Chairman Hammond of the coal commission by Roderick Stephens, chairman of the governmental relations committee of the New York State Association, the retail merchants declare that the Pinchot settlement is merely a victory for "arrogant organized labor;" that the governor of Pennsylvania sought peace at any price, and that he completely ignored facts concerning the retail dealers. Arbitration was "relegated to the scrap heap," it says.

Miss Elizabeth Potter, daughter of Mrs. E. Potter, and Edward M. Hubbs, both of Belleville, were married on Wednesday.
