"LISTEN TO ME" AT GRAND OPERA HOUSE

Musical Show Good One—
Final Presentation Will be Given Tonight.

"Listen To Me", the Le Comte & Plesher production presented at the Grand on Friday night is a musical show, fanciful in construction, original in make-up, gorgeous in stage settings, with a wealth of meritorious song numbers rendered by capable artists and an abundance of humor intermingled with the other features in a way that makes it satisfying in every degree.

"Listen To Me" opens with a scene in Hades, where J. Lucifer Devil releases his six temptations on man. It suddenly changes to Satan's reception room and thereafter follows a frolic at the North Pole, a trip to Kandy Land and finally to the stage of the Ritz Theatre, New York, where all immortals become mortals. Each scene has its particular array of color and charm, its smiles and its tunes all interwoven in a subtle manner, which makes it a continual source of pleasure and entertainment until the final curtain.

Marguerite Williams is in the leading feminine role in the present offering and her addition to the cast has elevated the show even beyond its former excellence. In the roles of Theda Barabak, Aurora Borealis, and Queen of Hearts, her performance was of unusual merit and her singing in duet roles with Ross Robertson, the leading man, is indeed charming. For the latter it may be said that his singing is as equally meritorious as formerly. The duets, "Where's the Girl?", "Doctor Cupid," as sung by these two artists, were well received by the audience.

Much may be said also for Gates Austin and Valers True in comedy, song and dance numbers. Eddie Walker and Peggy Earle, the latter a realistic Mary Pickford, have considerable ability to their credit and Joe B. McGee, whose role of Snowball is the only one which remains constant throughout, contributes the bulk of the comedy in a natural and pleasing way.

Among the scenes deserving of special mention is that presented during the singing of "Where's the Girl?", "Our Bungalow in Winter-time," "Doctor Cupid," and "Oh, You Kewpie Kandy Doll," while the sleigh bell ballet gave a rendition of marked charm. Specialties are many and enjoyable; in fact, the entire performance reeks with pleasure and entertainment. For those desiring to see a really good show "Listen To Me" is recommended.

"Listen To Me" will be given its final presentation at the Grand tonight.

LORD RENFREW AT BANFF.

Golf, Dancing and Swimming to Occupy Time.
High River, Alta., Sept. 22. — Lord Renfrew left his ranch on Friday to spend the week-end at Banff on the special train which brought the party west and which has been waiting in the Calgary yards. The trip to the Mountain resort was made after lunch, the party being due there in time for dinner. It is expected that Lord Renfrew will divide his time there between golfing, dancing and swimming.

Thursday Lord Renfrew and his associates started again on the slio job, the contents of the previous filling having settled considerably. This labor being accomplished, the official party were lured to trap-shooting in which pastime a good many clay pigeons were broken.
An incident showing the capabilities of the Indian in judging a man, is told regarding David Bearpaw, one of the Indians posted at the platform steps on the arrival of Lord Renfrew. Asked what Lord Renfrew said to him when he, the Indian, approached and shook his hand, he replied, "Morning Star, say nothing and didn't give me a damn cent," he went away quite disappointed.

CHILD'S HAND CAUGHT IN A CORN MACHINE

John Frink, Odessa, Stops
Machine Quickly and Saves Son's Arm.

Cecil, son of John Frink, had the misfortune to get his hand caught in one of the machines while men were cutting corn on his father's farm at Odessa, Friday afternoon. On hearing the child's cries, the father instantly stopped the machine and but for his promptness the whole right arm may have been lost. The child was rushed to Dr. Munro's surgery where the injuries were attended to, and the little fellow is doing well. The parents report that the young lad has a perfect love of all forms of machinery and while at the former residence at Collin's Bay, he had some narrow escapes.

Dog Show Prize Winners.

Among the list of some of the prize winners at the dog show, in connection with the Kingston Industrial exhibition, the name of J. McGuire, Alvington avenue, who won a number of prizes on his display of Boston bulls, was omitted.

The list of prize winners, which has appeared in the Whig during the past week, was by no means a complete list, but the Whig showed enterprise enough to visit the different exhibits and announce them. The official list will be published in the very near future. Mr. McGuire won the following prizes: Boston terriers, seniors first, second and third; finals under 15 pounds, second.

Mrs. Aldridge, 249 Queen street, won first prize for her Dalmatian puppy.

Mrs. James Norris, 158 Lower Bagot street, received first prize for her female French fox terrier, Beauty, and her pup, Teddy. The pup was sold to B. Noble Steacy of Steacy & Steacy.
