Shun "Modern" Wives. Germans do not want their wives too modern. That is quite clear from the advertisements for wives appearing in the best German newspapers.

A German wholesaler who has a flourishing business in Portugal, wants a wife between 18 and 22 who is able to adopt herself readily to the different conditions of life she will find in Portugal, but who is "not too modern" in her ideas. She must not have bobbed hair, must be companionable, beautiful good-natured and "thoroughly domestic" in her tastes.

Carrot Marmalade. One dozen raw carrots, washed, scraped and grated, one cupful of sugar to each cup of grated carrots, juice of three lemons, strained, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon, cloves and allspice. Mix carrots and sugar and let stand over night. Add the lemon juice and spices in the morning and cook slowly for one hour. By omitting the spices, you have a good imitation of orange marmalade. (This carrot marmalade is delicious, and very cheap and good.)

TO-MORROW'S HOROSCOPE BY GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 28.

An unusually active and eventful day is forecast from the dominant planetary configurations. There is a presage of a momentous change or journey which should culminate in the most gratifying success. New and bold projects seem to be imminent and these may be manipulated to splendid advantage if the sidereal. Shun speculation and handle all opportunities carefully.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of important opportunity, with new openings and large possibilities. There may be change and travel of benefit, but all money matters should be managed with a degree of careful judgment. Shun all in the nature of speculation. A child born on this day will be bold and enterprising, but may be fond of change and pleasure unless it is carefully trained.

YOUTH DROWNED IN WEST.

Loses Life When Canoe Capsized at Seven Sisters' Falls. Athens, Ont., Sept. 27.—On Saturday last P. Y. Hollingsworth received a message from St. Thomas bearing the sad intelligence that his nephew, Eldon B. Wiltsie, had been drowned on Sept. 20th, while taking a holiday in the west. Less than a month ago he accompanied his aunt, Miss Arletta Hollingsworth, on a motor trip to Carman, Man., on her way from visiting friends in the east, which included Athens and vicinity. He went to Lac Dubonnet to renew friendships, having taught school there some two years, and by press reports was drowned with a companion when their canoe capsized in a whirlpool at Seven Sisters' Falls, another companion being rescued. Eldon was the eldest son of Ford B. Wiltsie and he was born twenty-four years ago last June on a farm east of Athens. He was a graduate of the Athens high school, his father and family moving from Athens to St. Thomas some three or more years ago. On receipt of a telephone message, his father left for the west.

LEG O' MUTTON GOAT SLEEVE IS FAVORED

It's Seen in Suits and Coats of Full and Short Lengths Presented by Jenny.

One of the most interesting sleeve ideas, noteworthy also from the angle of newness, presented in many coat types by the creator, is the Jenny leg o' mutton, says a Paris letter. This sleeve is seen in suits and coats of full and short-length presented by Jenny. While the sleeve is not made on the voluminous lines of its prototype, it simulates the fundamental outline with narrowed cuff in contradistinction to a widened upper section, with a bloused feeling at the elbow. Shirtings are not entered at the shoulder line, as the original showed, but width is achieved as a result of a slightly widened arm-hole.

Although flares have been so pronounced in the showings of the couturiers in Paris, the suggestion is not being especially favored on this side of the water. Patou appears to stand back of the flare, according to the number of flared Patou models offered as evidence, with occasional examples by other houses. The idea is more frequently met in evening wraps, in both capes and coats, and there is Lanvin, Martial et Armand, and many others are represented.

In daytime exploitations of circular full-length coats, the straight, flat back is adamant, while circular fullness is centered either at the front or side. The two-side fullness is noted, and Premet is responsible for one of great distinction, using the flare front and back development, with flared sides. Not the least attractive feature of this garment is that the waist and hipline fit are closely draped enough to suggest a princess contour.

Broadcloth again forms a medium in day coats, particularly in expressions of black. Worth and Premet each show distinctive models in black broadcloth, subscribing for the most part to straight, slim lines. A Worth coat is made in black broadcloth with rounded gathered ruffles, banded twice in chincheillette, a fur that is stressed in many of the imports.
