CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE By Uncle Ray

Chapter 150.—India's Stories of Creation.

The stories told in ancient India changed from time to time. In the first tales the "hammer god" Indra, was called the "chief of the gods." But later on Brahma was said to be "lord of all."
One of the favorite subjects of the story-tellers was "how the world got started." Here is a tale in which Brahma is the first god:
"At first the world did not exist. There was neither sky nor earth, nor air. But the world wanted to be. Smoke came. It was hot and fire was started. Rays from the smoking-fire came together as clouds and made the sea.
"Out of the sea the god Brahma arose. He looked around and saw there was nothing to stand on. This made him weep.
"Part of his tears fell into the water and became the earth. Other tears he wiped to the side, and these became air. Still other tears he wiped upwards, and they were turned into sky."
To show how long Brahma has lived, it was said that his "day" lasted more than 4,000 million years.
Other stories made Vishnu the first and greatest of all the gods. He was spoken of as "the god of mercy and goodness."

"His arms were four in number," says a certain tale. "He slept on a many-headed snake. The snake rested on a turtle. When the turtle moved there was an earthquake."
"Out of the body of Vishnu grew a lotus plant, and from the blossom Brahma was born."

Brahma is seen here coming from a lotus which grows out of the body of Vishnu.

NOVEL WAS ALTERED IN ITS SERIAL FORM

Stephen McKenna Sued London Newspaper for Breach of Copyright.

London, Sept. 28.—A distinction between matter fit for publication in a novel and in newspapers was drawn yesterday in a suit brought by Stephen McKenna, against the proprietors of The Referee. The referee is a Sunday newspaper mainly devoted to theatres, music and sport, and Robert Donald, when he owned it accepted for serial publication the novel "Gloria" from McKenna. George A. Curnock succeeded Donald and objected to certain passages. He asked McKenna to expurgate them, and on his refusal The Referee made its own cut. McKenna then sought an injunction on the ground that this was a breach of copyright.
Counsel for The Referee defended the cut because the passage blue-pencilled might be held libellous, in that it referred to a dignitary of the Church of England who might, perhaps, be identified. Other cuts dealt with improper incidents concerning women.

"The Referee does not then approve of a great deal of mediaeval and modern French literature," remarked Justice McCardie.
"Newspapers differ from books," replied counsel. "Books can be shut up, but newspapers come into the homes and children and servants have easy access to them."
The judge referred to the passages expurgated, and remarked on the skill and restraint which the novelist had used in writing them. Counsel agreed, but in support of the editorial right to make alterations, he produced an affidavit from the manager of The Daily Telegraph that it had cut out or omitted altogether articles by Lloyd George and Lloyd George had not objected.
The case ended by McKenna accepting an undertaking from The Referee to make an announcement that in publishing his novel serially it was altering it to some extent.

LOYD GEORGE'S VISIT.

Wonder Expressed at Leader Going on Holiday.

London, Sept. 28.—"Now on the threshold of the fall when other political parties are preparing for extensive campaigns, we are chagrined to find our leader going on a holiday across the Atlantic." This cry from the heart is contained in a letter written to the press by a Georgian, who expresses wonder how Lloyd George can welcome the prospect of being acclaimed in a remote country, while his political followers are left marooned on this side of the ocean.
The object of the letter was to induce H. H. Asquith, who is organizing a gigantic autumn campaign, to throw open his fold to dissatisfied Georgians. To some extent this has been successful. It has evoked the reply from the Liberal headquarters that room would be found at a great meeting to be held for all who desired to participate in the forthcoming Liberal drive.

HENRY FORD'S DOCTRINE.

Anything Free is Really not Worth Having.

Sudbury, Mass., Sept. 28.—"I intend to restore the wayside inn as nearly to its original condition as possible and then to operate it both as a museum and as a tavern," Henry Ford said today. The manufacturer recently purchased the tavern made famous by Longfellow.
"I take a very deep interest in this building," he said, "and I bought it with the purpose of making a shrine for the people of the United States. It is richer in colonial history and literary interest than any similar structure that I know of."
Mr. Ford said that he contemplated a few changes. One room, he said, would be named the Edison room.

The old sign which announces an admission charge of 25c from all visitors will remain, Mr. Ford added, remarking:
"If people have interest enough to want to see the place they will not object to paying. Anything free is not worth having."

Cape Vincent Cruiser Taken.
Ogdensburg, Sept. 28.—The cabin cruiser Amo, owned by Rev. Robert Duford, Cape Vincent, was brought here and placed in custody of Henry Holland, port collector, pending further action. The boat was seized by Captain Herman Rader of the U.S.S. Chiloth, stationed at this port, and was the aftermath of the seizure of a motor craft last week at Clayton following a raid made on alleged liquor smugglers by customs men.
