CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE By Uncle Ray

Walls and Gates of Rome. Rome is one of the world's oldest cities. It was settled more than twenty-five hundred years ago. Almost ever since, it has been an important center of history-making.

No doubt you have heard the story of Romulus and Remus, and what they had to do with starting Rome. That is a good story, but we can be pretty sure it is only a story.

You may not have read the part of the legend telling how Rome's first walls were built. Here is a paragraph: "On April 21, the founder, Romulus, wore a white robe. He yoked a bull and a heifer to a plow and drove around the hill. The furrow marked the place of the wall. Where gates were wished, he lifted the plow."

This is said to account for one of our English words. Perhaps you have heard doorways or gates called "portals." That word comes from a Roman word which means "to carry." So a portal was a place where the plow had been carried!

The Romans were so sure their city had been started on April 21 that they held a feast on that date, and people marched around the ancient wall. Each year a priest drove a nail in a temple, a fairly good way of keeping track of the years.

Not long after the highest hill of Rome was settled, other people began to dwell on a nearby hill. There were disputes between the people of the two hills, and sometimes fights. By and by they decided to quit fighting and join together.

The space between the two hills was made sacred to a god called Janus. This god, the Romans said, had two faces. He was supposed to guard over both hills. Citizens often met in the region set apart for Janus. Part of it later became the famous Roman Forum.

People living on a third hill were soon added to the city. The Roman word for one-third was "tribus." Our word "tribe" comes from that.
