Batstone Stays With Queen's. The sporting editor of the ronto Globe in an article hear "Wild Rumors Spiked by Harr Batstone," says:

"Harry Batstone, who on Saturday showed that he is the best backfield player in senior football, stated definitely last night that he will return to Queen's University next fall and again in 1925. Batstone is taking the commerce course and will complete it. He is one of the brainfest men who ever stood behind a wing line in this country, and has a habit of playing on 'championship teams, his playing being the biggest factor in their success.

"The former Argonaut player was alightly injured on Saturday, but states that he will be in good condition for the game against the Tigers. Queen's plan to use him as one of their scorers in future. Until the game against Argos he was given fittle opportunity to carry the ball when within hailing distance of the goal line, but Batstone's great run on Saturday, which started on the ancient split buck formation which Excelsiors used in 1918, showed that a mistake was being made, and hereafter the opposition will have to watch this adept side-stepper when Queen's are near their goal line.

"The Queen's players are pulling together, and there are no selfish performers on the mighty Tri-color machine. Defensively and offensively they have demonstrated that they are the best team in Canada this fall, and despite their failure to pile up scores in keeping with the advantage they had in the play, they are a better team than they were in 1922. Their wing line has not been crossed in six consecutive games, and the highest score against them has been five points. McGill, University of Toronto, Ottawa and Argus were their victims.

Queen's should defeat Hamilton Tigers without the slightest trou-

Why The Score Was Small. Toronto Globe.

Without taking credit from Argonauts for their excellent showing, it must be remembered that Queen's played without the services of three regulars, Capt. ("Red") McKelvey, Mundell and Muirhead, and used numerous substitutes to relieve other regulars, especially after they had earned a lead early in the first period. Argonauts have no league games to play and put forth every possible effort, playing as though a Dominion championship hinged on the result. Queen's played hard and provided so much action that one found it hard to keep in mind the fact that the game was only an exhibition contest, yet, at the same time, the Kingstonians would probably have tried for a more decisive victory had there been no Eastern Canada final with Hamilton impend-

The western team has the first call on the gate receipts after all legitimate expenses are paid and until their total travelling expenses are paid.

The rules also state that the game must be played on the home ground of the eastern champions, and it is quite likely that Queen's will that this rule is lived up to? For some days the Toronto authorities have been trying to make Queen s officials think that the game should. be played in Toronto as there would be a larger attendance at the contest. This suggestion is not finding much fayor in Kingston, as the loca ave patronized the Queen's teams for years think that the very important games should be played at the Richardson stadium The management of the Hamilton team, when speaking to the Queen's authorities, stated they were agreeable to the stand taken by Queen's and they would not think of making a guarantee of $4,000 as was done by the Queen's management a year

The management of Queen's team, as well as the players, resent the uncomplimentary articles which have appeared in some Tonewspapers during the past week. They state that neither the athletic board nor players said they would not take part in the Dominion finals providing Queen's won from Hamilton Tigers on Saturday ext. The despatch which was sent out from Kingston stated: "The Queen's Athtetic Board of Control is not particular whether Regina rugby team, winners of the western Canada championship, comes east to day for the dominion rugby champnship." ## In Systematic Organization There Is Strength

It would be a very foolish general who dismissed his army upon the eve of battle and endeavored to win the conflict alone.

The individual soldiers are the units that make up the organized force with which the commanding general carries out his plan of battle. Each unit must be in its place, equipped, trained and prepared to do its part. The A-B-C Classified Section of the Whig is an "army" composed of platoons, companies and battalloas of opportunity ads which are systematically organ-
