Is Named "Shing Wah," Which "China Awaken" - Its Editor a University Graduate-Has Circulation of 2,000 In Population of 8,000 Chinese In Toronto.

Toronto has the distinction of having the only Chinese daily newspaper printed east of Chicago. ".Besides the one got out in the Windy City and this one, there are only four other Chinese newspapers in North America-three of these being published in San Francisco, with its Chinatown of 15,000, and one in Van-

The name of the Toronto publica-Mon is "Shing Wah," meaning "China Awaken." Its subscription price is $10 a year and it has a circulation of over 2.000, which amounts to $30,000 a year, less commissions. Probably 600 copies go to China. A Chinaman's relations are often so numerous that they include a whole village and he is supposed to be quite fond of them all.

The bright young editor is H. Y. Cheng, a graduate and M.A. of the University of Illinois. He is now taking a special course at the University of Toronto. He has been there only three months, having been reauested to go from Chicago to take sharge of Shing Wah, which has been in existence only one year.

With 2,000 circulation already and the Chinese population of Toronto close to 8,200, the paper stands a good chance of success. It carries a good deal of advertising and on Chinese holidays sometimes gets out special editions. Canadian firms advertise in it as well as Chinese. These advertisements are printed in Chinese, which are read down and from left to right. The paper makes BELT-Found, grey woollen, for coat. frequent use of Chinese poems, some of them written in Toronto.

The Chinese language has no alphabet but consists in its printing requirements of five thousand words, some of which were formerly hieroglyphics but have been reduced in

The printing plant of Shing Wah contains these words in four sizes, and several cases of ornaments besides. Words of similar markings are graded in one case. Or this may be followed out to the extent that three different markings are put in one case in smaller compartments. The right side markings of a grade of words in Chinese, while similar, are FOUNTAIN PEN-Found. Owner may rarely ever exactly the same in any instance. The cases, as in Canadian shops, are placed on an angle when the typesetter is working from them. For the printing of Shing Wah 100 cases of type are necessary and ten typesetters, some of whom are also pressmen. Besides the larger newspaper press, which is operated by electricity, there are several job deal of job work, such as laundry bills, menus, and the proclamations frequently seen pasted on the side of MALE HOUND-Lost, blue grey, with a building in Chinatown. Some of this job work is done in English.

The big press on which Shing Wah is gotten out is a modern one. It prints about 2,000 copies an hour. An evening paper, it reaches the street about one o'clock and is delivered by messenger all over the PURSE-Would the gentleman who city. The local editorial staff is the editor, who in addition to his writing, reads proofs and supervises things turn to 86 Ragian Road, and receive generally, but he has correspondents States.

European and Canadian news is sondensed from the Canadian newspapers. Births, weddings and deaths among the Chinese are only recorded when they are important. Notices of amusements and entertainments are published, but church matters are not louched. Like Canadian publications, Shing Wah has its gang of canvassers SHEEP—Strayed from the property of william Gordon, Kingston Mills, it tising. It is owned by a limited com-
