FOUGHT WITH WOMAN TO PREVENT FATALITY

Watchman Had Tough Struggle on Hotel Roof With Religious Maniac.

New York, Dec. 21.-Attracted shortly before 7 o'clock yesterday by the sounds of crashing glass on the roof of the Hotel Bossert, Montague and Hicks streets, Brooklyn, John McAvoy, watchman, found a 50year-old woman, garbed in her night clothes and carrying a rosary and a erucifix, in the act of walking off into thin air.

The roof is 12 storeys from the street, but this appeared to have escaped the woman's notice. Her face transfixed with religious fervor, she admonished the approaching watchman to leave her alone, as she was following the call of a vision. McAvoy grappled with her and from then on had the fight of his life on his hands.

The two had battled on the edge of the roof for several minutes when a bell boy was attracted by the noise and ran out for help. He found Policemen Cannon and Fraser and the roof. There McAvoy still had his hand full, but had succeeded in preventing the woman from leaping. The policemen overpowered the woman, who proved to be Anna Maskell, a servant employed in the hotel,
