Sun's Rays Make Alarm Clock of Cannon
Sunlight is called upon to inform the residents of a community in southern Europe when high noon has arrived, by setting off the charge in a cannon. Fixed to the piece is a small lens that focuses the rays on the touchhole of the gun in such a way that they do not reach the powder until the sun's position is directly in line with a tiny opening. The supports of the "alarm" are arranged to adjust it to the light beams at the same time every day of the year. Often the device fails to work because of cloudy skies that prevent sufficient heat from reaching it to ignite the explosive. The hours are indicated on a clocklike dial.

Best, Color-Blind, Must Learn Way by Experience
Best are color-blind and they learn their way about by experience rather than by instinct, according to tests recently conducted by scientists. The experts show that to these honey-making insects, red and black look alike, and yellow are the same as green, and there is no difference in the appearance of blue, violet, and purple. However, they can see ultra-violet rays, which are invisible to the human eye. It was found that the guiding influence which takes them back home is nothing more than experience. It has been long known that bees locate hives quicker, the longer they have occupied them. During the experiments, some of them were put to sleep by ether, taken from a saw hive, and moved 12 yards away. On the third day 80 per cent returned and 50 per cent had reached home on the eighth day.

Through a series of recently completed tests, the speediest animals are reported to have been determined as follows: the greyhound, race horse, prong-horned antelope, hare, Texas jackrabbit, common fox, coyote, foxhound, and gray wolf. The records were made by noting the number of bounds made by each animal in a given space of time, by means of a stop watch, and then measuring the length of the leap. The greyhound, it was ascertained, can travel a short distance at 25 miles an hour, about four miles an hour faster than the hare.
