Canada Can Supply World. But let us now turn to our other aspect of the western situation. Wheat has been selling at Consul Sask., for the last 14 weeks at 71 the northern, so that it comes that and 72 cents, and seems likely to when they raise one crop of wheat in stay there. The Canadian press, as a rule, is forever endeavoring to north. obliged to sell our wheat to satisfy boost the country by announcing that a gold, copper and silver mine has been discovered here and there; an oil well in such a place; a valuable timber limit at such a point, et cetera. Well, I find no fault with this, and have no criticisms to offer thereon. - But I want to steal a march on said press in one particular, to wit, the value of the prairie provinces to the dominion. I have never seen in any eastern newspaper any arresting allusion to the potentialities of this vast land. We hear much about our present great crop of wheat, well around a half billion bushels; but we hear little or nothing respecting the amount of wheat that these provinces could produce, were all the wheat lands intensively and scientifically cultivated. Would the readers of the Whig be surprised if I should aver that these three provinces, if properly cultivated, could supply the world with wheat? I will to take nothing back. These three provinces, Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatche an can yearly produce, under proper farming, five billion bushels wheat. Our government is making every effort to procure immigrants to occupy the millions of fertile land in the country. How long will it take the eastern mind to grasp the fact that our governments, both the present and the former one, have pursued a policy with reference to a proper marketing agency that has been an exact opposite to the one that they should have pursued? Had the 1919 wheat board been continued up to the present time the immigrants to-day would have been falling over one another in their efforts to occupy this wheat granary of the world. It is not only the amount of grain that we can produce, but the quality thereof that attracts the attention of the would-be immigrants in the old world. The Hon. T. A. Crerar once said that the best possible immigration agent that a country could have was a satisfied and prosperous settler.

more. Yes, Canada possesses the key that locks and unlocks the wheat doors of the world. But our rulers have turned their backs upon all this, and have done their best to bankrupt and ruin this baste industry, and thus put this dominion on the rocks. But shall no punishment follow such maladministration? Let Mr. Meighen answer who lost his own constituency at Portage La Prairie in the last election. For a truth, "the mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceeding small."

Those who favor the grain exchange are forever prating about competition in the grain trade from India, New Zealand, Australia and the Argentine, but those who have studied the situation well understand that there will not soon be any serious competition from these quarters. The drouth is much more severe in southern latitudes than in the south, we raise three in the

The United States will soon be importing wheat. The only country that can seriously compete with Canada in wheat-raising will be Russia. Canada recently received a widespread and gratuitous advertising as to the quality and quantity of her wheat production, at the hands of those who appeared before the tariff board, of the United States in an effort to increase the tariff on this cereal, Our government has very wisely broadcasted this report over the sea. These Yankee tariff agitators stated that it cost $1.57 to grow a bushel of wheat in the States, and 73 cents a bushel to grow in Canada.

And so it should seem that while other nations are trying to put us at the top of the wheat industry, we are doing all we can to keep or selves at the bottom.
