

The British Whig Pictorial Page

The Prince of Wales on "Thaco" showed good horsemanship when going to the post for the Sandown National Hunt flat race. It was the first flat race that the Prince rode in public.

Francis Kluxen, sixteen years old, of Madison, N.J., who was tried and acquitted two years ago for the murder of a little child, has been taken under the care of a wealthy banker.

Helen La Maie, Long Branch, California, has startled the country by claiming that her husband offered to sell her to a negro living in Juarez for $500,000.

T. C. Fooks was the first man home in the Cambridge University cross-country race. He covered the course in the fastest time ever made. See him smiling.

Capt. Herbert Hartley, commander of the S.S. Leviathan, which went aground in New York harbor recently.

Above is pictured Marc Peters, Jr., son of the Swiss ambassador to the United States, whose delicately molded face beams from under a quaint poke bonnet, which he wears in a play at Harvard University.

A world-wide search is being made for Leo Koretz, prominent clubman and reputed multi-millionaire of Chicago, in connection with the alleged swindling of about $8,000,000. He is believed to be en route to Europe.

Lillian M. Westropp is the president of the new women's savings and loan company in Cleveland, the first bank in the world operated exclusively by women for women.

Is the razor doomed? Dr. J. M. Martin, of New York, is demonstrating a "painless" removal of a five-day crop of whiskers by using mud and electric rays. In time the doctor hopes to remove the scar by the same treatment.

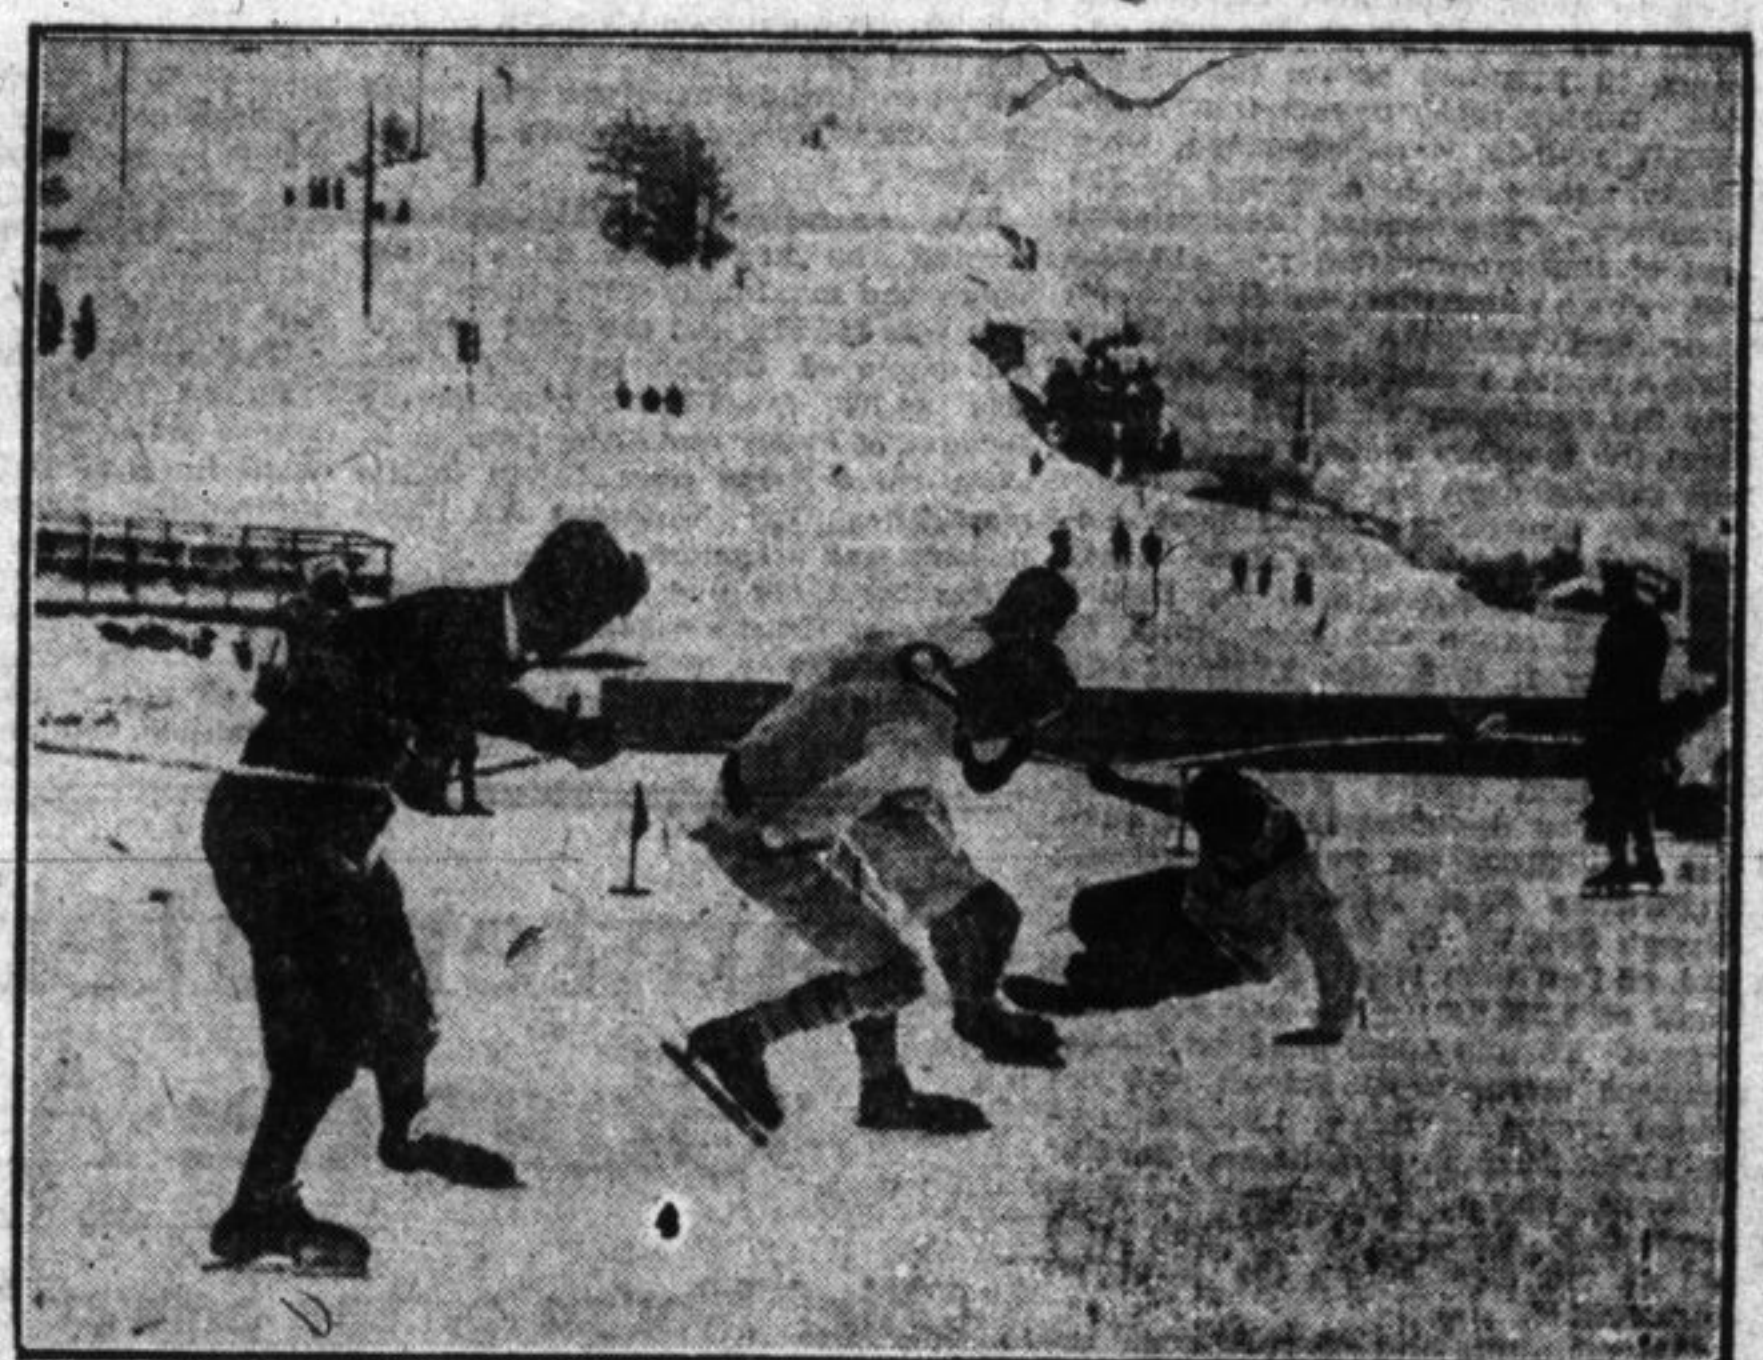

Speaking of infant prodigies, here is Edna May Domecon, five months old, who is spending her first year at Cornell University. Edna May is the "practice baby" in the home economic department and is cared for scientifically by the senior pupils.

These famous Fratellini brothers have recently been decorated with the French "Palme Academique" by the French minister of public instruction. They are the first clowns in the world ever to be thus decorated.

Miss Agnes Bertelson, known in Minneapolis as the "Beautiful Butcher Girl," is going to New York to show that beauty is not always useless. Only 21 years old, she handles a cleaver in a manner to swell the male breast with awe—and she scorns the corset.

Tug of War on skates is one of the many pastimes on the ice rinks of St. Moritz. Heavy falls of snow and cold dry weather have made it possible for sport enthusiasts to enjoy the outdoor life.

He's small and very proud. "Tiny" has carried off the championship of five shows and is the winner of the cup which contains his little body.

Faster than Zev, Epinard, My Own or Papyrus, these canine speed machines brought 5,000 shrieking race fans out of their seats during the greyhound races at Miami, where the dog running season is now in full swing.

Baroness Fern Andra, who arrived in New York recently, is Germany's foremost actress and is here to study technique in motion pictures. They say her full name is Fern Frisfrau von und zu Weichs zu Wenne.