JAMES R. HENDERSON DIES CANADA'S MINING HERITAGE

Well-Known Grocer Passes Away—Ex-Chairman of Board of Education.

James Robertson Henderson, a life-long resident of Kingston, and one of the city's best known merchants, passed to rest shortly before midnight Monday at the age of sixty-five years. Mr. Henderson had been in poor health for a long period. He had not been at his place of business on Brock street since the close of the old year, and for the past week had been forced to take to his bed. For many years Mr. Henderson was in the present business with his brother, John S. Henderson, and on the death of the latter about twelve years ago, took over the business and carried it on since. During his lifetime he gave little attention to political matters but devoted what time he could spare from his business to educational and church work. He was an ex-chairman of the Board of Education and had served terms on the board with credit at various times, retiring from it some two years ago. In educational matters he was a very practical man who sought results and guarded closely

Subject of Lecture at Queen's University by Dr. J. Mackintosh Bell.

The pleasure of hearing one of their own illustrious sons was accorded to a large number of students and professors Monday evening in the physics building of Queen's University, when Dr. J. Mackintosh Bell lectured on Canada's great mining heritage. By means of lantern slides Dr. Bell showed Canada divided into several sections. First the British Columbia and Yukon section, then the Prairie extending as far east as Western Manitoba, the Southern Ontario and maritime provinces section, and finally the Laurentian which covered all Northern Ontario, Hudson Bay and Labrador. In these areas a vast wealth is awaiting the energy and ambition of explorers and engineers. By more extensive application of geology and other branches of science, this immense country can be made to yield its real wealth and contribute to the prosperity of the country.

Dr. Bell emphasized what had been done in Canada and based his hopes for the future on the resourcefulness of the coming mining engineers and explorers.

Tuesday morning at Nicol Hall, Dr. Bell continued his splendid series of lectures in describing the wonderful mining properties in New Zealand, Australia and Tasmania. Mt. Morga, in the county of Queensland was one of the greatest producing mines in history. Gold, copper, and iron were mined in such quantities that the initial capital has been paid back ten times.

In conclusion, Dr. Bell urged the importance of technical research and looking into all properties which showed any trace of ore most thoroughly. Mining was not easy, but many of the difficulties such as transportation, climate and labor could be made easier by a more friendly attitude of the mining engineer to all classes of men, whether Indian, Negro or white man.

LATE JAMES R. HENDERSON

the expenditure of the money of the tax-payers. Kingston's educational system benefitted by his work.

In church he was also very prominent and was one of the leaders of the First Congregational Church, acting as treasurer for a number of years. On the formation of a union he became a member of Chalmers church.

Mrs. Henderson predeceased her husband five years ago. Of his own family there are surviving two daughters, Mrs. E. LeRoy Rice, of Newport, Vt., and Mrs. S. Parsons, Ottawa, and one son, Fenwick, at home. Two sisters, Mrs. Alexander, London, Ont., and Lady Hendrie, widow of the late Sir John Hendrie, Hamilton. Three brothers, George E., barrister, Ottawa, L. L., Montreal, and Dr. Norman, London, Ont., also survive.

Rev. Dr. Malcolm Macgillivray and Rev. Dr. W. G. Jordan will conduct the funeral services which will be held at his late residence, 117 Earl street, on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. The cortege will proceed to Cataract cemetery.

ANNUAL BAND TEA HELD.

At The Salvation Army Citadel Monday Evening.

A very pleasant evening was spent Monday evening in the Salvation Army Citadel when the annual band tea was held. The bandmen and their wives also the songster brigade with Colonel Martin and the corps officers, Ensign and Mrs. Boshier, sat down to a splendid supper. After supper, Ensign Boshier said all were pleased to have Colonel Martin, the divisional commander, present, also spoke words of appreciation of the services rendered by the band and songsters and different branches of the corps. The ensign called upon Bandmaster H. Otton to speak. The latter reviewed the work of the band for the past year, and also held up the standard for the future. Band secretary Murray spoke about the financial side and was pleased to report the band was out of debt and over $100 balance on hand. Songster Leader Fraser spoke on behalf of the songsters saying they were pleased to render any assistance.

Colonel Martin then addressed the meeting, saying how pleased he was to find the Salvation Army Corps in Kingston in all branches making progress and pleaded for a united effort in connection with the present campaign. He said that his visit to Kingston had been a pleasant one and he was going away feeling that in Kingston the Salvation Army had a live concern. He also appreciated the services of the band and songsters.

Band Sergeant R. Beasant spoke on the spiritual side of the band and was pleased to report that every man was desirous of being an example of what a Christian should be as well as being a good musician. Bandman T. Goodridge spoke for the single men of the band. The ladies were then thanked for the way they had worked to get such a splendid supper ready.

The sentence of death imposed on John Kilton, West Sandwich murderer, who was to have been hanged on January 24th, has been commuted by the cabinet council to life imprisonment.

The residence of Charles Smith, situated in Thurlow township, took fire on Monday morning and was destroyed.
