ADDRESS ON WORK OF NAVY LEAGUE OF CANADA

Sam Harris, Toronto, President of the League, at Rotary Club Luncheon.

In a splendid address before the members of the Kingston Rotary Club, at their noon-day luncheon on Friday, Sam Harris, of Toronto, president of the Navy League of Canada outlined the work the league has been carrying on and has under way. It was a story that gripped the hearts of his hearers and the work of the league received the warm commendation of the members of the club.

Mr. Harris referred to the formation of the Navy League in 1917 and told about the wonderful strength it had been to the nation in the trying days of the great war.

Now the war was over, the question was asked by many as to why the League should be continued? What justification was there for continuing the League? Why should the people give it support? The speaker said that this was a fair question on the face of it, but the war left many responsibilities while the scars of the war were still with us.

"One of the worst scars to my mind as chairman of the relief committee, is the caring for the widows and children of the men who made the supreme sacrifice in the war. Many families were left without a breadwinner."

The speaker then related many touching stories about the sacrifices made by men who joined the navy and fought for their king and country and added: "The Navy League is doing for these people what the Rotary club is endeavoring to do for people who need their help. We are endeavoring to help these people and make their life a little more pleasant. In the veins of these children runs the blood of these men. You cannot build a nation or an empire out of a better life. We should care for these people and if we are trustees we will recognize our responsibility and see to it that these children do not want for food or for an education to fit them for the battle of life. We must see to it that they are not handicapped because their father died for our liberty. For no other reason than this I think the Navy League justifies its existence."

The speaker stated that when the League was formed it was found that there were many sea ports where there were no places fit for men off the vessels to stay at and make a home. These men, who were on the vessel perhaps nine months in the year, should be provided with comfortable homes. Every effort possible was being made to provide these men with places where they could stay and be cared for and where they could leave the city as good a man as when he entered. The object of this League is to see that these men are given a good chance.

Mr. Harris read several letters dealing with cases under the care of the League. Referring especially to the Sea Cadets of Kingston, he stated that the corps had been given a very fine start and deserved the support of every citizen. An opportunity was given the lads to train. And even if the boy did not go to sea he would be a far better man as a result of the training he had received. He was given every chance to develop physically, mentally and morally.

"Your best line of defence, if we are ever attacked again are the boys," declared the speaker, "so look after them. The Navy League stands for empire security."

Following the address, Rotarian H. E. Pense paid a warm tribute to Mr. Harris for the part he has played in carrying on the work and on his motion the speaker was tendered a hearty vote of thanks. Rotarian Pense stated that the work of the Navy League merited the support of the Rotary Club and expressed the hope that the club would give help.

President Guild tendered the vote of thanks to Mr. Harris and in so doing stated that he was of the opinion that the club should support the Navy League and that he would bring the matter before the directors of the club.

The club received a letter from the public school nurse, Miss Lovick, in which she stated that the teachers expressed their thanks to the club for having fitted out some of the children with glasses. There are more children who require attention and the club will take up the matter.

President Guild introduced Capt. A. D. McConnell, hospital overseer at the Portsmouth penitentiary, as a new member and he was given a warm welcome.

Next Friday Rotarian Edward Weller will address the club, taking as his subject, "The Evolution in Agriculture."

On Friday, Feb. 8th, the club will hold an evening session, which will take the form of a Father and Daughter's Banquet. The daughters will be asked to contribute to the programme.

Guests introduced at the roll call included Richard Brown, Asa Huxley, F. H. Gillespie and Capt. J. McDonald.

Ex-Wardens Visit Council.

Two ex-wardens paid a visit to the county council, which was in session this week. On Thursday, Jerome Thomson, Sharbot Lake, for years reeve of Oso, was at the court house and was invited to sit with the councillors. On Friday afternoon, Ex-Warden J. A. Kennedy, formerly reeve of Bedford, was a visitor and he also was given a seat of honor on the floor of the council chamber.

Miss Brown, Newburgh, ninety-four years old, perceived a bad fall on Monday while attending to some household duties.

LONDON LIFE INSURANCE CO.

Report Shows Results of Unusually Good Year's Operations.

The forty-ninth annual report of the London Life Insurance Company, just issued, shows the results of an unusually good year's operations.

The volume of new business sets a new high mark in London Life history, being almost $45,000,000 and bringing the total insurance in force up to $151,780,810.

Consistent with the company's long record of conservative management, the surplus was increased to $913,966, taking the company's own stringent basis of computing liabilities. Were these latter calculated according to the less exacting government standard the London Life's surplus would be over $3,750,000.

The London Life has its own high standard of security and sets aside annually larger reserves for the protection of policy-holders than are provided for any similar class of business in America. In its provision for liabilities all profits accruing although not due for years to come, are included and suspended mortality, investment reserve, and other emergency funds are constantly maintained as provision against even remote contingencies.

The assets of the company are of the highest order, consisting of real estate mortgages and government and municipal debentures. No speculative securities are ever purchased or held.

The liberal scale of dividends to policyholders was maintained and they are to-day from 50 per cent. to 100 per cent. greater than original estimates. The company's mortality rate for the year was only 37.2 in the ordinary branch and the expense ratio showed an appreciable reduction. Altogether the report shows a remarkable combination of well-directed enterprise and rapid, though sound, growth, constantly increasing security due to competent conservative management, and a story of results to policyholders that cannot help but write the name of The London Life higher and higher in insurance annals each year. To mark its "Fifty Years of Public Service," the company is issuing a new "Jubilee" policy which is pronounced to be the most advantageous to policyholders ever issued and one which it is confidently expected will materially assist in reaching a new high record for new business written by the end of 1924.

STORE TO RE-OPEN.

Arthur Horwitz, Lion Clothing Proprietor to Carry On.

Arthur Horwitz, proprietor of the Lion Clothing Store, King street, has returned from a business trip to Montreal. One of the large wholesale houses agreed to give him back his stock at a rate on the dollar, and the store will re-open within a few days. An announcement of the date will be made in the press in due course. The store was obliged to close its doors on Jan. 9th, following a quiet summer and fall. The fine, warm weather that prevailed all autumn and even right up to Christmas Day was anything but satisfactory for the clothing business; few people wished to buy heavier clothing while the moderate weather lasted, and so the clothing trade suffered very severely. Now, however, Mr. Horwitz has regained possession of his big stock of cloths and gents' furnishings, and will have some rare and attractive bargains for his customers.
