What the Press Agents Say About Coming Attractions

Concluding Run.
"The Climbing of Mount Everest" will be shown at the Grand Opera House for the last time this evening. Yesterday afternoon crowds of youngsters took advantage of the school children's matinee at 4.15 to see the wonderful events of reality shown in this marvellous picture. It is hard to realize that these things are all real and living and that they were filmed only at great risk to the camera men. We are so used to "faked" thrills in the movies that we find it hard to believe when we see the real thing. The picture will be shown for the last time this afternoon and evening.

ENGLAND'S GREATEST MAGICIAN OPENING HERE MONDAY NIGHT
Dante, the noted European magician, who will appear under the management of Thurston, the famous American magician, at the Grand Opera House for three nights beginning Monday, Jan. 28th, is very fond of animals. In his travels about the world he has managed to pick up a parrot, three parakeets, two monkeys, seven or eight rabbits, four dogs, two cats and three deers. These are his constant companions and he uses some of them most effectively in the presentation of his Thurston-Kellar mysteries.

Dante has just completed a most successful tour of European capitals. He is a great favorite in Copenhagen, and has recently been appointed court magician by King Christian of Denmark, who is an ardent lover of magic. The king a short time ago invited him to the royal palace to spend several days. Dante set forth with three of his dogs and his two monkeys. When he arrived at the gates of the palace, notwithstanding his unimpeachable credentials, the guard refused him admittance. The man explained that no one—no matter who he might be—could enter the sacred precincts of the palace and bring with them animals, however harmless and domesticated. Crestfallen, but resolute, Dante returned to his hotel in Copenhagen.

An hour later he was visited by the Court Chamberlain, to whom he explained the situation. The official declared that the rule had been in force for centuries and begged the magician to leave his pets behind and pay his royal host the visit as arranged. Dante pleasantly, but firmly, explained that he never went anywhere without the animals, and had he had an inkling that he would not be allowed to enter the royal palace with them he would have declined the invitation. The Chamberlain was dismayed. The upshot of the matter was that he communicated with King Christian, who immediately revoked the century-old rule, and Dante and his monkeys and dogs spent a most enjoyable week-end at the royal palace.

BRANSBY WILLIAMS IS RETURNING HERE
In His Famous Character Sketches and Impersonations at Grand.

Bransby Williams, the great English character actor who has recently returned from a tour to Vancouver and back with his London Company, which is returning to England on the 31st, will, in deference to the wishes of many Canadians who have asked to see him in some of the characters they knew so well in the English music halls, make a short tour through Ontario presenting the entertainment that he gave by Royal Command before the late King Edward and members of the Royal family. He will appear at the Grand Theatre, Kingston, on Saturday, Feb. 2nd, for a matinee and evening performance.

Bransby Williams' entertainment consists of a selection of monologues, recitations, grave and gay, character sketches from character ever created, Grandfather Smalweed, a Chinese drama, "Orange Blossom," by Sax Rohmer, concluding with the "stage Doorkeeper" or "Penny Showman," in which Mr. Williams gives impersonations of famous actors whose names the audience is asked to call out. Sir Herbert Tree and Sir Henry Irving being special favorites. The prices of seats for this entertainment have been placed within the reach of all. The seats for the matinee will be 75, 50 and 25 cents, and at the evening performance $1.50, $1.75 and 50 cents. The entertainment itself is quite ahead of "Bringing up Father" in the quantity and quality of its humour and should be seen, heard and enjoyed by all. Mail orders received at the box office now.

"FLAMING YOUTH" IS AT CAPITOL MONDAY
Colleen Moore Making Big Hit in This Real Piece of Acting.

In "Flaming Youth" we offer a photoplay of a superior kind, affording a dramatic possibilities, stunning costumes and abounding in human interest. Here we have a picture that deals throughout with the modern day flapper; the flapper who knows little restraint, who flaunts conventionality, plays with fire, trifles with emotions, and discusses with elaborate nonchalance the subjects which our grandmothers feigned to know nothing about. The little orphan and her struggles and temptations, her recklessness, her audacity, are so delicately handled, yet withal, humanly, that they combine to make a character study of the modern girl that is not only unusually real in its conception, but beautifully executed.

No praise is too high for Colleen Moore. Colleen is no longer just a quiet little girl who plays comedy parts adeptly, or a clever young miss whose Irish characterizations are always amusing. She has proven that she possesses emotional depths of a wide and varied order, and has a very fine technique to enable her to express them. She reaches heights in screen acting. Perhaps the best bit of work she does is at the moment she learns of her mother's death. Milton Sills, who portrays the part of Pat's elderly lover, is a splendid choice. He has powers of expression possessed by few artists and he knows how to use them. Elliott Dexter plays the role of an old suitor of the girl's mother with becoming sentiment.

This picture has been a record breaker wherever shown and the management of the Capitol is expecting that Kingston will not be an exception. It opens Monday for a three days engagement.

"FOG BOUND" HAS ITS FINAL SHOWING TO-NIGHT
To-night will be the last opportunity you will have of seeing Dorothy Dalton in a picture of rare charm. "Fog-Bound." The dashing Dorothy proves once again a favorite, and deservedly; for "Fog-Bound" ranks among her most entertaining pictures. See it at the Strand to-night.

KIWANIS ACTIVITIES.

The regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club will be held on Monday evening in the Frontenac hotel at six o'clock. The club has been very fortunate in securing Prof. B. K. Sandwell as a speaker. The subject of his address has a very attractive sound. It is "The Advantage of Small Cities."

The list of the year's committees has been sent to the members and they are all requested to look up their duties for 1924 and to find out on what bodies they are serving and who their chairmen are. A large attendance is requested for Monday night.

The Ontario Motor League, The Ontario Motor League now stands completely organized. Through the offices of the local clubs it is kept in close contact with sentiment of motorists from one end of the province to the other, and is enabled to formulate policies in respect of questions of interest to motorists the province over.

Through its local clubs it is enabled to function where questions of purely local interest arise. During the past year the affiliated clubs of the league have been carrying on very actively and to the benefit of thousands of motorists.

The local clubs have been particularly active during the past year in direction and locality signing in their territories. A move which originated in 1923, and which has assumed considerable proportions has been that to mark all the concession roads. Another activity of a number of the local clubs has been that of inducing rural residents to have their names inscribed more legibly upon their letter-boxes. These letter boxes could then be used as local guide posts.

ED. GEERS, AGED 73, IS FINE TRAINER
Now in Charge of Peter Manning, World's Fastest Trotter.

The New York Herald: From Memphis come the glad tidings that Peter Manning, 1:56 3-4, the fastest trotting horse ever foaled, is wintering in fine fettle in the hands of his new trainer, Ed. Geers, and may surprise the knowing ones next summer by setting a new record for harness horses with his veteran driver in the sulky.

Geers will be seventy-three years old next Friday, yet his inborn grit of getting out of horses the last ounce of effort that is in them seems to be as effective to-day as it was when he first came into prominence more than forty years ago.

Monroe Salisbury, himself a horse man who has had few peers and perhaps no superior, once said to the writer that in a lifetime of experience with stage horses on the plains and race horses on the Grand Circuit, he had never seen more than about half a dozen men that he could call great drivers, and he mentioned Geers as one of them—all the rest were stage drivers—largely because of this singular magnetic influence over horses, as shown by the way in which he could, without whip or voice, make a trotter do more for him than he would or could do for any other driver when the silent man from Tennessee set that strong face of his in a close finish.

Peter Manning, now eight years old, passed into Geers' hands after Thomas W. Murphy, "the wizard of the sulky" had trained and driven him with consummate skill four years for the purpose of giving him the fastest record he was capable of making. It would indeed be wonderful if "the grand old man," as Geers is now called by the followers of trotting, could take such a horse under such conditions from such conditions from such a master as Murphy is universally conceded to be and improve his record after he had failed last season to equal it in the hands of the younger man. Stranger things have happened, however, than that the magic of the veteran's touch should get a mile out of the long eared grandson of Peter of the Great careers of both man and horse. There was a time in October of 1922 when Peter Manning gave evidence of being able to beat 1:56 3-4 perhaps by a second or more. But he was not so fast a horse last year. Can a man who is well past the allotted age of three score years and ten condition him and drive him so perfectly that he will come back to his best form of two years ago? The harness racing world will wait eagerly to see.

Wandered.
(Marjorie L. C. Piekthall.)
O west of all the westward roads that woo ye to their winding,
O south of all the southward ways that call ye to the sea,
There's a little lonely garden that would pay ye for the finding
With a fairy-ring within it and an old thorn tree.

O there upon the brink of morn the thrushes would be calling,
And the little liting linnets
With the lime tree all in blossom and the soft leaf shadows trailing—
O there I'd have a place at last to lay my head.

I would I had a swallow's wings for then I'd fly and find it;
O would I had a swallow's heart, for then I'd love to roam!
With an orchard on the hillside and an old, old man to mind it,
O there I'd lift my lodge at last and make my home.
