CHRISTIANS' MISSION MUST BE HELPFULNESS

Bishop Farthing Points Out the Duty of Members of the Church.

Rt. Rev. J. C. Farthing, bishop of Montreal, who was the preacher at both the Sunday morning and evening services in St. George's cathedral, was heartily welcomed by dean and two large congregations. In two striking sermons he brought the message to his old parishioners, that the world can only know the blessing of the love of God through the lives of the members of the Christian church, His body.

In the morning, Bishop Farthing spoke from the text "Ye are witnesses unto me." From the days of the apostles who taught the traditions and lessons learned from the Christ, before a word of the New Testament had been written, the church has been the custodian of the Word of God. She is more, she is the interpreter. The men and women of every age are the witnesses to God of their generation. And how shall we witness? "We all know 'good church people' who say they believe the doctrines of Christ and yet are most unlovely characters, mean, censorious, allowing themselves great latitude and yet ready at the slightest word to believe evil of others. More unamoral than immoral I would call them, yet so unlovely in their lives that they would drive a questioning one away from the religion they profess. This poor old world of ours has received a jolt and everything is in a state of confusion. Men are looking for rest and should find it in the church that does not profess to teach a new creed. Will they turn to her if they find her members selfish and worldly? I do not think this is a time to be impatient with those who do things we cannot approve of or to find fault with those who do not agree with us. It is a time to be patient and kind. Think of the patience of Christ. Ye are the body of Christ. As you interpret God to men so will they see Him.

At evensong, Bishop Farthing continued his theme, speaking on the call to the Christian life. The spirit of paganism was abroad in the world to-day. We cannot deny the force of the material nor the atmosphere of materialism in which we live.

"I come back to Kingston and go about among my friends asking about the young men," said His Lordship. "I am told of one: 'He has made a great success in life; he has made a million dollars.' This is the standard of success. We are materialistic in our pleasures. I say nothing against any one of them, but what are the standards set before our boys and girls in the novels, the movies and the modern dance?"

"It demands great courage and great sacrifice to get away from the material things to the real things, to the life that means giving, not getting. I do not now mean giving of your goods but of yourself for the service of men. The getting away from the world where self is the centre, to the world where God is the centre. Jesus Christ showed us what God's life is when it is lived by man. You men will think that is too much of an ideal life. Well we never reach our ideals, at least I hope not. We must be conformed to this likeness. We must be holy. I can hear some young man saying he does not want to be a saint. Well if the idea of a saint is the figures we see in some of our stained glass windows I would not like it myself. The meaning of holy is whole, a complete man and we all want to be that. And if the world is to be brought back to God it will take every man, woman and child who have been baptized into Christ's body to do it. Only through us can they be brought to fellowship with Jesus Christ. Our mission is one of helpfulness, we must say 'We are here to help, not only to sympathize.' If there is a wrong in our community it is ours to right it. Only through the love and service of the members of Christ's body can the world be brought to know the love of God."

The music during the day was excellent. E. Warburton and A. Fair were the soloists.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

Upon Two Wolfe Island Men Who Stole Turkeys.

In the police court on Monday morning, Magistrate Farrell suspended sentence for a week in the case of Richard La Rush and Orville McDermott, who pleaded guilty to stealing turkeys on Wolfe Island. "This is just about as mean and contemptible a business you could have been engaged in," remarked Magistrate Farrell to the two young men. "You have pleaded guilty to stealing turkeys from your own neighbors. I have given this matter serious consideration. Resignation has been made and I have decided to suspend sentence for a week and perhaps suspend sentence from week to week. The trouble I understand is in the fact that you have not been working. My advice to you is to get down to good hard work. If I get a report that you are at work with a responsible person it will not be necessary for you to be present when the case is called in a week's time."

The case of a citizen charged with non support was enlarged till Wednesday.

The Tweed Advocate remarks that if there is anything in a game, Gananoque is to be congratulated on Father Hauley's appointment.

A MEDICAL MISSIONARY FROM ARABIA SPEAKS

Dr. Paul Harrison Gives Address at Queen's and in Chalmers Church.

A noted visitor in the city is Dr. Paul Harrison, medical missionary in Arabia, who is here under the auspices of the Canadian Student Christian Movement. "The Apostle of the Desert," as he is often called, has served fourteen years in the Mohammedan world representing the Reformed Church in America. He is a graduate of the John Hopkins Medical College, a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons and while on furlough is taking further post-graduate work in New York. He was one of the foremost men at the Indianapolis convention and judging by his two audiences yesterday he is creating a deep impression here.

Stormy weather prevented his reaching Kingston in time to speak in St. Andrew's on Sunday morning but he gave two other addresses yesterday, one in Convocation Hall at three o'clock, the second in Chalmers church last night. This morning he addressed the history students at Queen's, at noon he had luncheon at the Grand Cafe with the Student Volunteers and others interested in missions, at four he addressed the Queen's Medical students, tonight he is giving an address in Convocation Hall, returning to Montreal at midnight. While in the city he is the guest of Prof. and Mrs. John Matheson, Alice street.

Dr. Harrison is a man of intense earnestness and spirituality, with a stream of spontaneous humor rippling through his speeches. Yesterday afternoon he undertook to make foreign missionary work attractive, illustrating with Arabia. Once one got used to cockroaches, fleas and temperatures of 130 in the shade he found a people (the Arabians) of wonderful cheerfulness in the face of what daily bordered on famine, of rich mental gifts, of unsurpassed devotion to a cause.

Last night in Chalmers church, before one of the largest audiences in months, Dr. Harrison again spoke on Arabia, this time dealing with its religious aspects. Christians would do well to grasp something of the Mohammedan's magnificent conception of God. "There is no God but God," sang the workmen, mixing mortar, the mother to her child, the dying chief. It was the explanation of this faith's existence through 1,300 years. It was the thing that made an instant an undying appeal to the Bedouin in the midst of the tremendous expanse of the desert.

Why send missionaries to the Mohammedans? Dr. Harrison made this plain. This omnipotent God was relentless and uninterested. Only among the Mohammedan races could you find the cruelty which would spear Armenian babies and carry them round on bayonet points till the little body had given its last tremor. Mohammedan women occupied the lowest place of any woman in the world. The husband could have four wives and an unlimited number of concubines, who also would bear him children. He could divorce his wife by simply sending her home. The speaker had known men to have a change every month. The highest spiritual life therefore which the Mohammedan woman knew was to please her husband.

The Presbyterian church began Christian missions in Arabia. He hoped they would carry on. He stressed the value of prayer on the part of those at home in support of the missionary.

GIVEN PASS TO BELLEVILLE.

Colored Man Says He Was Gassed Serving Overseas.

A middle-aged colored man, who served overseas and who has been in hospital for a time at Montreal, was in the city over the week-end and was given a pass by Mayor Angrove as far as Belleville. He is on his way to Toronto, to enter one of the military hospitals there, as that was the point where he received his discharge. He was gassed while serving overseas and has to go into hospital for additional treatment.

The war hero spent some time at the police station prior to taking the train for Belleville.
