Christianity sacrifices children way of the divorce courts or by more Hellish methods. Quite true, isn't Florence Edna May, daring auth- tentiary. After an hour's fight, duroress of "The Unwanted Child" which comes to the Grand tonight and tomorrow matinee and night, certainly was inspired to write such a vital play as this. Certainly it is a strong defense for the child and Miss May is to be congratulated. It has the appeal of a lecture delivered by a woman who means what she says. To enjoy the play you must believe that love conquers all, even at the sacrifice of a child, or will instead of love? Therein lies Miss May's motive in writing her play. She contends that love and passion are directly opposite. One must succumb to the other. "The Unwanted Child" carries its appeal direct to the heart and that is the reason Florence Edna May, authoress, is as famous a playwright as Laura Jean Libbey is an authoress of novels. At daily matinees for ladies, a lecture of great interest to women will be delivered.

AUCTION BRIDGE ANALYZED

BY WYNNE FERGUSON. Author of the Authorative Book: "Auction Bridge for 1923."

PROPER DEDUCTIONS, MARK OF AN EXPERT, SAYS WYNNE FER-

GUSON—HE DISCUSSES INFERENCES, POSITIVE AND NEGOTIVE.

Inferences or the deductions made from the bidding of partner or opponents are as important as any other one thing in auction. It a player can make the proper deductions there is no reason why he shouldn't become an expert for he has mastered one of the most difficult points of auction. There are two kinds of inferences that occur in auction, 29 1/2 beautiful floral tributes surrounding positive inferences and negative inferences. Positive inferences are those 21 1/2 the casket are ample proof of the drawn from the bids of partner or opponents.

For example, suppose the dealer bids one diamond. The positive inference to be drawn from this bid is that the dealer holds two quick tricks in his hand, either in the diamond suit or one quick trick in the suit and one outside trick. Positive inferences such as these are easy if the players are sound bidders and you can depend upon their bids. Nega-Bethel, Feb. 11.-Ross Reid is tive inferences, on the other hand, are drawn, not from the actual bids, sawing wood through this vicinity, but from the failure of partner or opponents to bid at all or their failure

The following hands are good examples of how clever players draw the proper inferences from the bidding:

CLEVER DEDUCTIVE BIDS. Hand No. 1 h-10 9 2 c-A 8 3 d-Q 2 8-A J 10 7 2 h-QJ763 c-J 10 9 d-A K 5 4 3 d-J 6 8-Q84 (Dealer) h-A K 8

c-K Q 7 5 2

d-10 9 8 7

In this hand Z made two very clever deductive bids. His bid of one no-trump on the second round was based entirely on B's failure to assist the diamond bid and the negative inference he drew that his four diamonds to the ten would probably be, a stopper. His bid of three no-trump on the fourth round was based on his partner's bid of three clubs. That bid indicated to him that his club suit was probably set up and that there was Amer. Can. 119% Purvis passed away Friday evening a better chance for game in no-trump than in clubs.

A game in no-trump is possible, irrespective of the opening, but only four odd in clubs if A opens his king of diamonds as he should. The bidding by Z in this hand is very instructive and a good example of drawing the proper inferences.

SOUND INFERENCES AND THEIR REWARD.

Hand No. 2 h-5 c-9 8 5 4 d-Q 7 6 2 s-J 6 4 3 h-K 8 2 c-A Q 3 d-K 10 9 8 (Dealer) 8-A K 7 h_A Q 9 6 3 c-none d-A J 5 4 3

No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one heart, A passed, Y passed and B doubled. Second round: Z passed, A bid two clubs, Y passed and B bid two no-trump. Third round: Z bid three diamonds and A promptly bid three no-trump and all passed. This bid by A is a fine deductive bid. His partner B has doubled one heart and also bid two no-trump, thus indicating a fine all-around hand but only one stopper in the heart suit. If he Erik and his bride are to take up had had more than one stopper in hearts, he would have bid one no-trump instead of doubling one heart.

-Q 10 8

A also has the hearts stopped and a much better club suit than his bid in answer to the double indicated. It was also pretty near a certainty that B had one or more stoppers in the diamond suit or his two no-trump would have been a bad bid. All in all, A's inferences were sound and rewarded by a game not otherwise possible. A-B must score game at notrump irrespective of Z's opening.
