CADET NOW MAKES REPLY

F. That the boy instituted this system of discipline when his turn came to be a senior and was the first to inflict this punishment on recruits.

G. That the boy had $140 with him when he left.

H. That you could imagine no reason for his action other than that he brooded over the indignity of his punishment and left in a fit of despondency.

I. It has been stated further that the boy "lost his seniority," the inference being that he was incapable or unworthy. (I do not gather that this statement came from yourself).

Replying to the Above

A. I believe that the maximum punishment that may be awarded by the B.S.M. is three defaulters drills. The punishment in this case was: 1. A flogging of twenty strokes, not twelve. 2. His leave to be stopped indefinitely. 3. Fourteen days confinement to flat (Flat C.B.)

He had only been able to receive some five leaves since entering the college and had been forced from time to time to give fictitious reasons to his relatives such as being on duty and he could not see the possibility of continuing to do this. On the Sunday after the hockey match he was told by the senior cadets that his pass, already granted, was cancelled and that he was to telephone and say he was detained for guard. Then it was decided that Burley had better do the talking. Burley did telephone to that effect.

B. Lying, so far as being regarded as a crime by the student body, is encouraged and compelled by the seniors.

C. "Trial"—Consisting in being taken before the B. S. M. in his own room. He had the charge sheet already filled out and before a word was said he had the punishment written in and had changed the restriction of the pass from three weeks to—until further orders.

D. When he was a class senior, Fair and McLeod told the class that they had relatives in Kingston and would be glad to have names of members of the class included in their invitations. He further obtained permission from his grandmother to invite Hodgson, who was unable to go home on account of a broken leg for the Christmas holidays. The fact of his having relatives was known to the seniors. This inference, I take it, is entirely uncalled for and absolutely unwarranted by the facts and further, I take it that your information was obtained from some senior who gave it to cover the fact that the boy had not more passes.

Swagger Stick Punishment.

E. A swagger stick is admirably suited to inflict the most severe bodily pains especially when laid on in this case till the bamboo cane frayed and cracked from end to end. It was a refinement of punishment to send the boy to fetch the cane.

F. This is absolutely untrue. He was appointed senior at the beginning of the term and he was instructed by the B.S.M. Crowe and other seniors to "fan" the class at his discretion and on the only occasion that he did this he gave six strokes and did not shatter the cane to three out of four boys—under direct instruction from seniors. He gave the punishment in the presence of six seniors of his own class. He did not punish the fourth boy as he did not think he had done anything to deserve it. Elliott, when senior, told the class that anyone "soaked" for any reason by a professor, would get ten strokes from the B.S.M. and ten strokes from himself.

You will note that this occasion was early in the term and the boy new to the school and trying to live up to the traditions of the college and to carry out its old established customs. If you felt justified in saying that he was a stern disciplinarian that was surely to his credit.

G. I do not know where you got this information. Mr. Blake Thompson informs me that when asked he told you that the boy could have no more than a very small balance of his pocket money with him, certainly less than $5.

H. This statement is obviously attributed to the fact that you were misinformed or uninformed by those you trusted.

I. The boy was definitely and categorically informed, together with Oeler, by Major Greenwood, staff adjutant, that the appointment of Odium and Hodgson as class seniors was in no way a reflection on them or on the way they had discharged their duties but was made in conformity with a system newly established.

This I think, covers the points raised by your interview. The boy said nothing until after this was made public, and most certainly has my sanction in demanding the fullest retraction or the fullest and most open investigation. I am sure you do not know this condition as it is but I am equally sure it is high time you did.

Yours Sincerely,
G. G. ARNOLD.

INSURANCE MEN TO MAKE CANVASS OF CITY

And Ask for Signatures for a Reduction in Income Taxes.

At a large meeting of the life insurance men of the city, which was held in the Board of Trade rooms Monday night, it was decided to thoroughly canvass the city in connection with a petition which is being forwarded to the minister of finance asking for a reduction in connection with income taxes.

For some time it has been felt that, as life insurance is a benefit to the state, those paying premiums should be relieved to some extent. During the last fifty years pauperism has been reduced in the United States by 33 1-3 per cent. as the result of life insurance. The benefits of insurance to the state are recognized in Great Britain and there a man is relieved from paying income tax on premiums paid for life insurance up to one-sixth of his income. The insurance men divided themselves into seven teams with a captain for each team, and in order to save duplication of work, are dividing the city into wards so that each selector may be called upon for his or her signature to the petition during the next few days.

At Queen's University

Last week Queen's were successful in their debating teams both at home and away. The final debate against Loyola College, the winners of the other group, will be held at Convocation Hall on Thursday evening March 6th, Queen's being represented by Messrs Sinclair and Sisco, victors at Montreal last Thursday against McGill. The team to represent Loyola will be Messrs Kennedy and Scott, who will support the affirmative side of "Resolved that the activities of the League of Nations justify its continued existence." Dr. O. D. Skelton, Dr. McNeill and Prof. Matheson will attend a meeting of the matriculation conference at Toronto University on Thursday. As to-morrow is Ash Wednesday Queen's University will be closed.

PORTSMOUTH COUNCIL.

Appoint Thomas F. Graham Assessor

—Mowat Hospital Drain
Portsmouth Council held its monthly meeting Monday evening with all the members present. Thomas F. Graham was appointed assessor for the current year, with sixty dollars set as the payment for his services. There were two other applications.

A resolution was passed endorsing the St. Lawrence river power development project, the same to be forwarded to the premier.

The secretary was instructed to write the minister of public works, urging, on behalf of the council, immediate action in regard to the Mowat hospital drain. It was decided to open up all the drains in the village at once, in case of a sudden thaw and the resulting flood.

Concert at St. John's Church.

St. James' church concert party provided the entertainment Monday evening in the parish hall of St. John's church, Portsmouth, when two plays were offered, one entitled "Long Distance" and the second one "Snooks vs. Foose," the latter being a very funny matrimonial tangle in the course of being settled in court. Both plays were very much enjoyed and well produced. In the intermission, the ladies of the parish of St. John's sold home-made candy, and at the end of the performance provided excellent refreshments for the entertainers.

Ald. Laturney's Report.

At the meeting of the city council held on Monday night, Ald. Laturney presented a report regarding the meeting he attended in Toronto recently of various municipalities in regard to having the government give the municipalities a percentage of the money collected in amusement tax and for motor vehicle licenses.

Opening Water Tables.

The Board of Works department is looking forward to the snow disappearing very rapidly and has a gang of men busy opening up the water tables and making drains to relieve the water.
