REMARKABLE RESULTS OBTAINED IN SCHOOLS

Through the Proper Teaching of Music to the Pupils—What One Finds.

There have been many arguments passed concerning whether or not the teaching of music in the public schools—scientific instruction by a qualified musician—is worth the time and expense put on it. One may not jump at a conclusion hastily. There may be different results obtained in one city from those obtained in another. The response from one gathering of pupils may be much better than from some other section. But from observation of music as taught in the schools of Kingston it would be a very difficult thing to arrive at any other conclusion than favorably.

A member of the staff of this paper had the pleasure of accompanying Harry Hill, musical instructor of the Kingston public schools, during one of his regular afternoons of instruction. It happened that Central school was down on the time table for that day. In Mr. Hill's estimation, though he is pleased with the progress made in that school just as much as in any other, Central is rated about average and probably not quite so high as others where the classes of pupils are not so varied. Yet the response of the children there amazed the layman who observed the regular lessons in progress.

Little tots, scarcely more than five years old, striking given notes and tones from symbols and gestures made by the instructor, and going through a whole song in perfect unison after being given the key note but once—that was but one of the surprising things of the afternoon's observations. This was in the junior first, commonly known as the "baby class" or the "kindergarten," though the latter term, by reason of its Teutonic derivation, has lost in favor in the past few years. Knowing the processes by which a student of music would no doubt have been pleased, but he could scarcely be so surprised as one with only a rudimentary knowledge, who had never expected such a group of children to handle familiar letters of the alphabet as well as they did musical notes.

As the classes advanced, and older children were taking instruction, the astonishing features of the little impromptu tour of inspection became more and more pronounced. It is one thing—no small thing at that—for a class of thirty or forty pupils to recognize a musical note as it is written in the clef on the blackboard or signified by signs from the hands of their instructor. It is quite another and more amazing thing to find the whole class striking that note with their voices in perfect accord. In the junior third, books of instruction first came into use, and shading of the voices commenced, one side of the class taking an alto tone while the other sang a treble. It was not parrot work, as some might immediately say, for a minute later the sides would change parts and where alto was before one found treble and treble voices where but also before sounded.

In the junior fourth, the highest grade in Central school, there is a particularly large class. Here the room was divided into three different sections. It is difficult for a layman to describe the technical term for what was done, but suffice to say that the three sections adhered to separate notes and shading in the same key and produced a harmonious volume of song that was a treat to hear—and the writer doubts if there is a church choir in Kingston that can go through that entire performance without error and without any previous coaching.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food are in probably nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn. While the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, the trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

Is Tongue Coated? Try Glycerine Mixture

A badly coated tongue is a sure sign of stomach or bowel trouble. To overcome this and make the tongue clean and red try simple glycerine, buckthorn bark, etc., as mixed in Adlerika. Most medicines act only on lower bowel, but Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and brings out all gasses and poisons. Helps any case of stomach or bowel trouble. TEN minutes. H. E. Sargent.

very young pupils one expects to find enthusiasm. But when one goes to the higher classes, to older and more sophisticated pupils, and finds that they are eager to begin their work on a certain part of the curriculum, and show the same interest with every session, then there is something unusual. True, it breaks the monotony of the day, but a great deal of the eagerness was evidently a love of the music for its own sake.

By such a course of training the ideals of the children are elevated. That is something which must happen. Music has one of the greatest refining influences that could be found and to those who learn it, be it ever so little, it is a life-long joy and asset. Many fine voices also, which might otherwise be lost through lack of notice, natural reserve about singing, or improper development, are taken there at the beginning and given the proper chance.

These results were found in only one school. In other institutions they are the same, the instructor informed the self-appointed inspector. In Victoria school there is a boys' choir which will shortly compete at the musical festival in Toronto and for which Mr. Hill has high hopes. Just whether the teaching of music in the schools of Kingston is governed by the music itself and the love of it which the children have, or by the excellent instruction of Harry Hill—or by all those things put together—the writer is not prepared to say. It is, however, an amazing success and one of the most beneficial courses on the curriculum. Few, if any, persons could reach another conclusion after observation of the results obtained.

24 LIVES LOST WHEN VESSEL SANK IN GALE

The Survivors Found After Being Tossed About All Night.

New York, March 12.—Twenty-four or twenty-six members of the crews of thirty-five of the Ward Line freighter Santiago, including Captain Eldwin, are believed to have been lost when the vessel foundered sixty miles south of Cape Hatteras in Tuesday's storm. It was learned today through information received at the offices of the Ward Line here.

The survivors spent the night in a small lifeboat, tossed about in a high sea. They were only sighted after the gale which swept the Atlantic seaboard abated. It is feared that they are in a critical condition, suffering from exposure to the cold and rain.
