CUTICURA HEALS LARGE PIMPLES

On Face, Itched and Burned. Caused Loss of Sleep.

"I was troubled awfully with pimples on my face. Little white spots formed at first which later broke out in large, red pimples that festered and scaled over. They itched and burned causing loss of sleep, and my face was disfigured.

"Other remedies were used without success. A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some, and after using them about a week I got relief. I continued using them and in a month was completely healed."

AUCTION BRIDGE ANALYZED

BY WYNNE FERGUSON.

Author of the Authoritative Book: "Auction Bridge for 1924."

AVERAGE PLAYER'S MISTAKES ARE COSTLY, SAYS WYNNE FERGUSON—500 TO 1,000 POINTS LOST IN AN EVENING THROUGH BAD PLAY AND BIDDING.

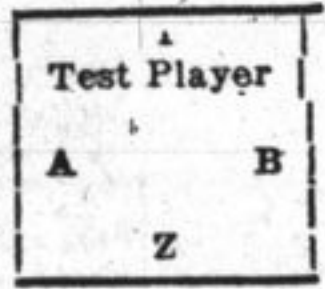

During the course of a discussion at one of the New York card clubs the other night the writer made the statement, that in his opinion, an average player would lose from 500 to 1,000 points in an evening's play, either by bad bidding or bad play or both. There was considerable difference of opinion so the writer suggested that a player of average skill be selected and that a record be kept of any bad bids or plays that he might make during an evening's play.

In order to make the scoring easier, it was agreed that games should count 125 points and that no record be kept of rubbers. The test player was selected and three other players, of whom the writer was one, made up the rubber. It was the duty of these three to call attention to any mistakes of play or bidding by the test player and if in the opinion of all three it was a loss that could have been saved by average skill, it was charged against him; but not otherwise.

Play continued for about three hours and during that time the test player made only five mistakes, two as to the play of the hands and three as to the bidding, but these five mistakes cost over 900 points. The mistakes as to play were unimportant, one due to failure to count trumps which cost game, a net loss of 130 points; the other to a failure to size up an opening lead as a marked singleton. The latter mistake only cost contract and a net loss of 80 points.

It was on the bidding, however, that the big losses occurred and as the three hands in question are nominal hands and bring up points in bidding that the average player should know and understand, they are given below:

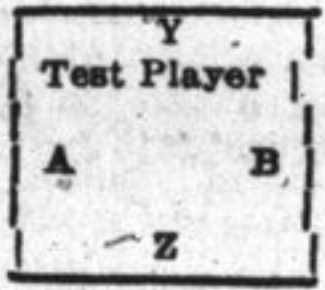

Hand No. 1
h-K 9 2
c-K J 7
d-K Q 9 8 7 5
s-8

No score. Z dealt and bid one no trump, A and Y passed and B bid two spades. Z and A passed. What should Y now do? There are two sound bids, that he could have made, one of two no-trump and the other of three diamonds. The two no-trump seems the sounder bid. Y has a no-trump hand himself and must figure that Z has a stopper in the spade suit.

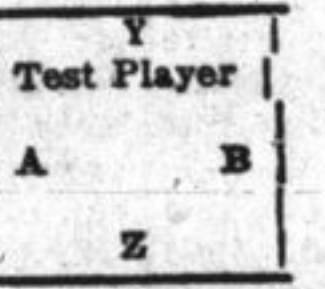

If Y bid two no-trump in this instance he and his partner would have scored four no-trump. Y, however, decided to bid three diamonds, B bid three spades and Z and A passed. At this point Y made a great mistake. Having once decided to bid diamonds, he should have rebid at least once, but for some unknown reason failed to do so and passed B's three spade bid. If he had bid four diamonds he could have scored game. As it was B made three spades with simple honors. Y's loss on this hand was 233 points.

Hand No. 2
h-A 9 4
c-5
d-J 10 8 6 4
s-Q J 9 5

No score. Z dealt and bid one no-trump, A doubled, Y passed and B bid two spades. Z passed and A now bid two no-trump. Y passed. B passed and Z bid three clubs. A doubled and Y suddenly decided to bid three no-trump, about as bad a bid as could be imagined. His proper bid in this situation was three diamonds. A doubled three no-trump and defeated the contract by two tricks, a loss of 200 points. If Y had bid three diamonds, he could have just made it, scoring three odd and simple honors, or 35 points. Y's bad bid in this instance cost 235 points.

Hand No. 3
h-Q J 7 2
c-K J 8 7 3
d-K Q 9
s-8

No score, Y dealt and bid one no-trump. This bid is not sound, as with this type of hand Y should have passed. B bid two spades, Z three clubs, A three diamonds, Y four clubs and B four spades. Z and A passed and Y made the mistake of also passing.

It is a perfect hand on which to bid five clubs, not with the expectation of making the bid, but for the purpose of saving game. Y should have known that B would almost certainly make game in spades had that he couldn't lose more than one or two tricks at five clubs. He passed, however, and B made four spades with nine honors, a score of 242 points.

If Y had bid five clubs, he would have only lost 50 points, less five honors, a net loss of 20 points. If the opponents had doubled, his loss would have been 70 points. Y's failure to bid five clubs with this hand cost 222 points. The total loss on the evening's play was 902 points and proved that writer's contention. Keep track of your mistakes and you will be surprised how many points are lost in this way. It is an object lesson to the average player and should prove a strong incentive to improve his game.

Owing to lack of space, the solution of the problem given in last week's article will be postponed until next week. (Copyright 1924 by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

A GOOD MEDICINE FOR SPRINGTIME

Do Not Use Harsh Purgatives—A Tonic Is All You Need.

Not sick—but not feeling quite well. That is the way most people feel in the spring. Easily tired, appetite fails, sometimes headaches and a feeling of depression. Pimples or eruptions may appear on the skin, or there may be twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia. Any of these indicate that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon you and may easily develop into more serious trouble.

Do not dose yourself with purgatives, as many people do, in the hope that you can put your blood right. Purgatives gallop through the system and weaken instead of giving strength. Any doctor will tell you that this is true. What you need in the spring is a tonic that will enrich the blood and build up the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do this speedily, safely and surely. Every dose of this medicine helps to enrich the blood, which clears the skin, strengthens the appetite and makes tired, depressed men, women and children bright, active and strong. Mr. Henry R. Robinson, Cruikshank, Sask., says:—"My blood was out of order and I was nervous and run down. I got a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking them for a while they fully restored my health. I am now feeling fine and have no hesitation in recommending these pills to all who are feeling unwell."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail, at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE QUEER KAISER.

Controller of the Household Tells of Peculiarities.

One of the whims of the former kaiser was the gorgeous palace which he built on the island of Corru, says the Toronto Globe. The Greek Government has decided to sell all the furnishings of it, including his famous saddle chair. "With what a hand and booter," and spurred," says a despatch from Athens, "the former kaiser would sometimes mount this extraordinary chair which had a regulation German cavalry saddle with stirrups built into it, and slush about and screech savagely like a crazy man."

The elderly Lieutenant-General von Egloffstein, my predecessor as Controller of the Household—he had to resign because his nerves were not equal to this strenuous life—was the target of a special sort of amusement. As he constantly complained that his drink was too cold, it was warmed for him. Then the kaiser stirred it up with his finger for a while, himself drank a little of it, and handed it back; now it must be of the right temperature.

This, says Count Zedlitz, was regarded as a mark of graciousness, and was accepted with becoming loyalty. It may be placed beside the reply to the court physician who pronounced that the kaiser had caught a little cold. "A big cold," replied the kaiser; "with me everything is big."

The distinguished colonel of a cavalry regiment was made to feel the power of the "All-Highest" when the kaiser, in the presence of a shooting party and some hundreds of Silesian beaters, rolled him in the snow and rubbed some of it down his neck. So was Count Roger Seherr-Dorbrau, a member of the Prussian Upper House, 53 years of age, with two sons in the Lifeguard-Hussars, and a much-respected personage in Silesia. The kaiser greeted him at the shooting party with: "What, you old swine, have you been invited here?" It was heard by the guests, including the ladies, and Count Zedlitz reflects that "the kaiser does not realize the enemies he makes by these unguarded remarks." During a tramway strike in Berlin there was some talk of putting in the troops to quell it, and the kaiser sent the following telegram to the headquarters of the Guards Corps: "When the Guards intervene I shall expect at least 500 persons to be shot down." And in 1907, when, as the result of the Camarilla scandal, the attacks in the press became rather vehement, the kaiser said: "If the press does not cease its attacks I'll send an adjutant down and have an editor shot."

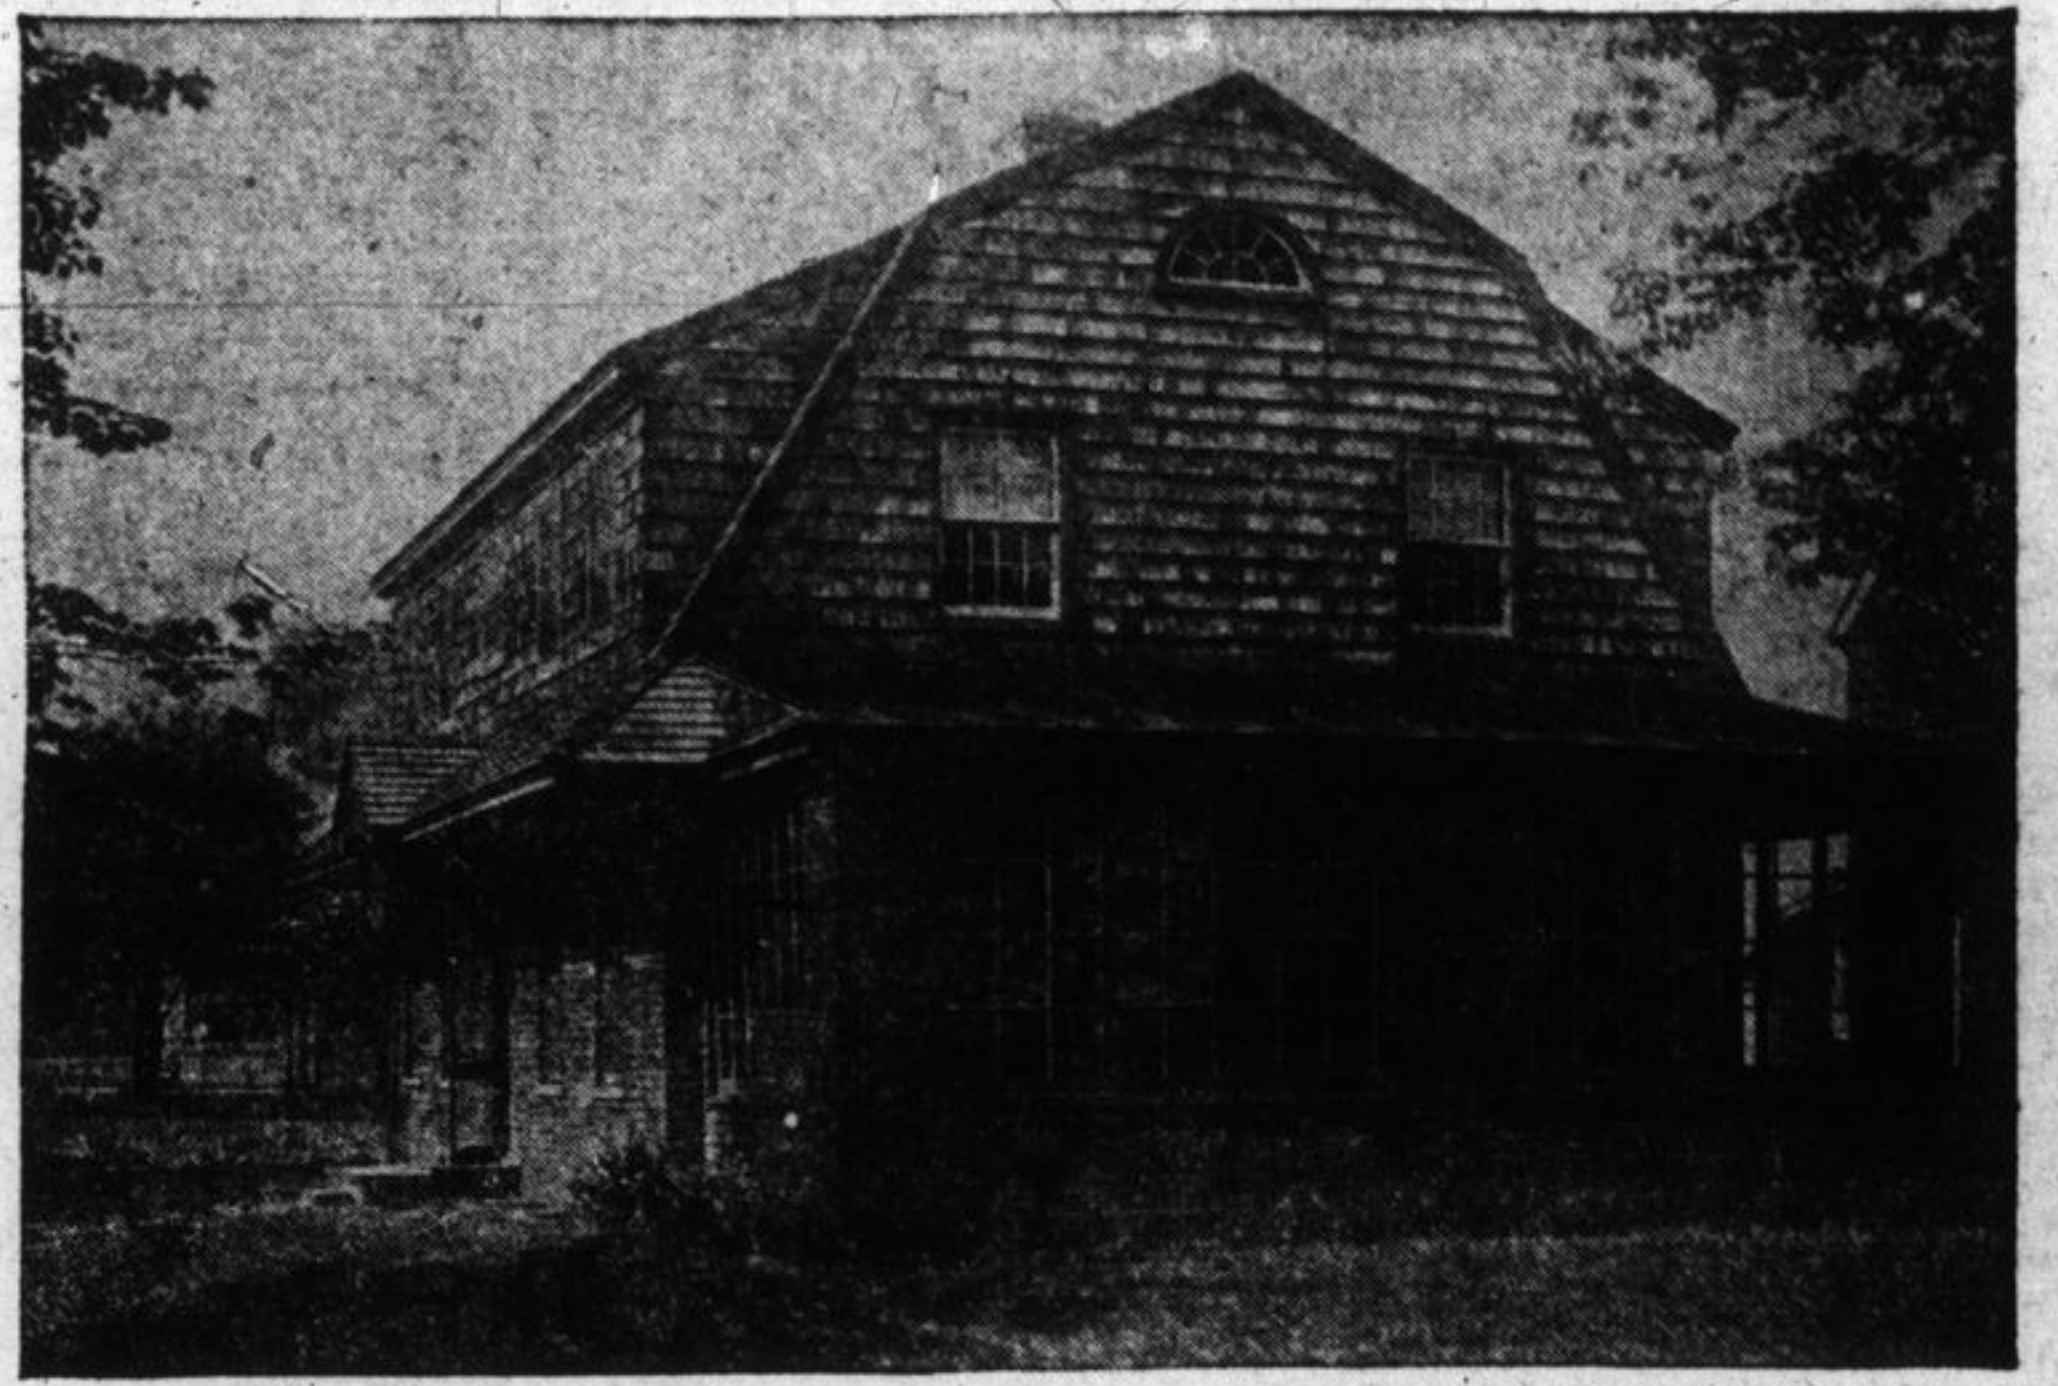

His own family were not exempt from imperial horse-play. The Controller of the Household notes in his inventory: The little Duke of Saxe-Coburg (in March, 1905) recently had a bad time in the library one evening. The kaiser loves to play jokes with him, but generally ends in so pinching him and pounding him that the poor little duke gets a regular thrashing. It was particularly unpleasant for him, as his fiancée, Princess Victoria, and her parents were present, and he had hard work to keep back his tears.

French proverb says, "No man is a hero to his valet," and Count Zedlitz may have seen his monarch at too close a range, but his memoirs were set down from day to day in the form of a diary, and bear the impress of sincerity and truthfulness.

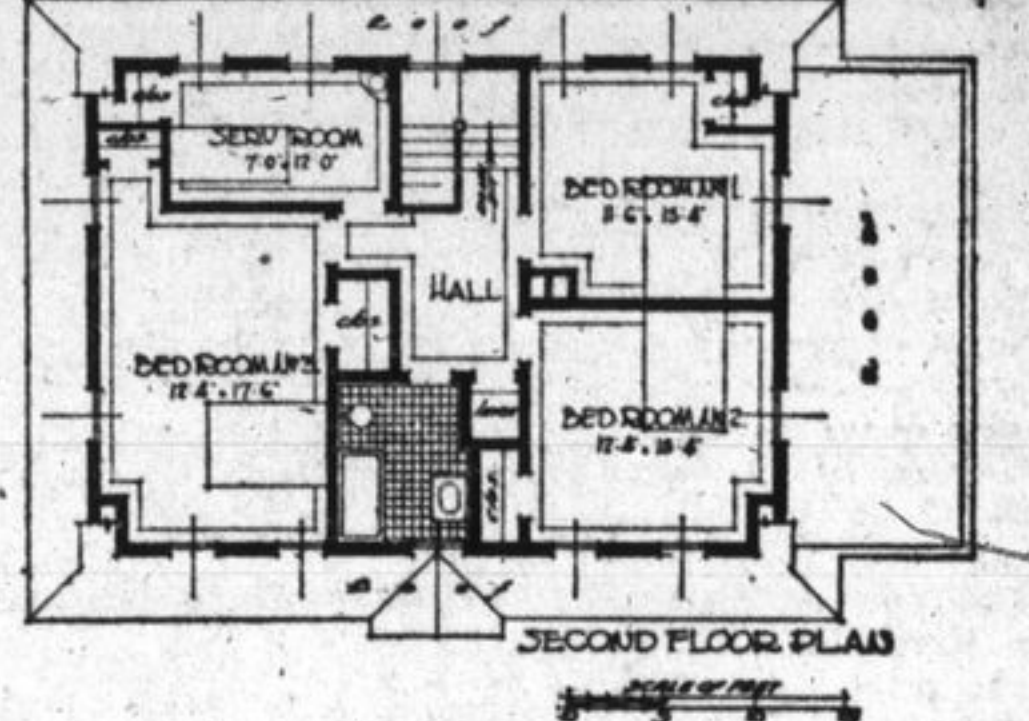

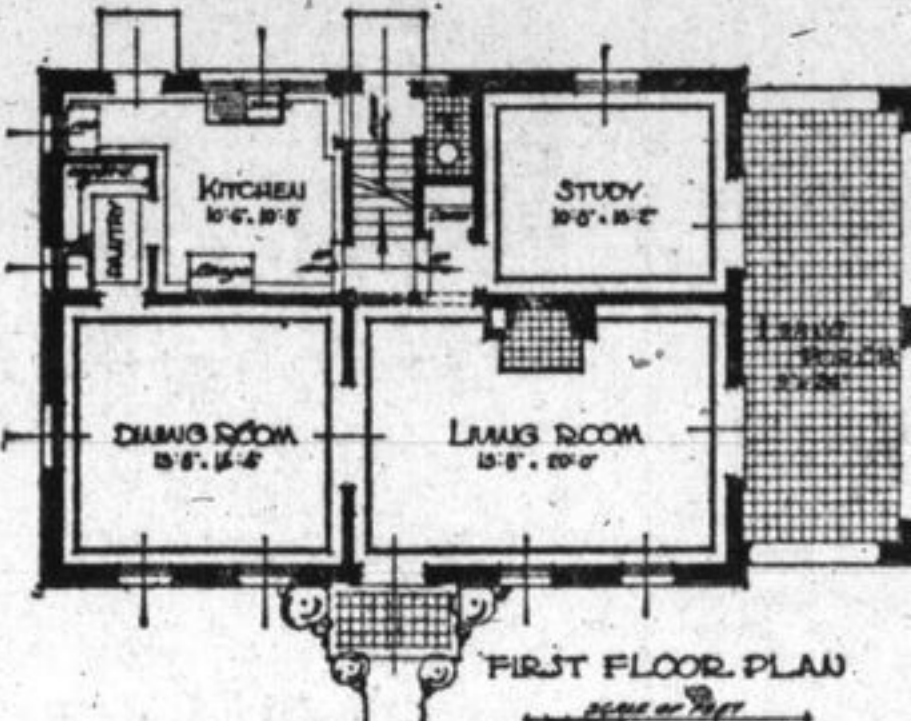

Woman A. E. The problem of staying with a husband whose business was to rove led Mrs. Jennie Crocker of Cliffdale, Mass., to apply for a mariner's license. Her husband is a sea captain, and since her marriage she has taken every trip her husband has made and has become a thorough-going seaman. Mrs. Crocker does not expect to use her license except in emergencies, but the novelty of having it and the knowledge that she was eligible for one impelled her to try for it.

A Brick And Shingle House Along Cottage Lines.

R.C. HUNTER & DEER Architects

The first storey walls of this house are rough texture brick in varying red and purple shades. They are laid with a raked joint. The windows have marble sills. The second storey walls and the roof are weathered shingles. The wood trim is painted brown. This treatment gives a soft mellow effect, one of age. A feature of this house is the enclosed living porch. It is generous in size and opens from the living-room and from the study. It has a tile floor, brick piers and balustrade, and a complete sash and screen enclosure. It is heated and has plenty of electric outlets. In fact, it is the most livable room in the house and it is the one most used, summer and winter alike.

The front entrance opens directly into the living-room. The stairs are in the rear of the house, where they serve the living-room, the kitchen, the rear entry and the cellar in a most convenient and compact manner.

A small study, a kitchen, pantry and toilet-room complete the first floor. The first floor toilet-room is a real convenience and it works well in conjunction with the maid's room on the second floor, which is fitted with a lavatory.

The second floor shows three bedrooms, a maid's room, a large bathroom and plenty of closets. The wide projecting eaves of the roof lowers the apparent height of the house and the generous dormers insure a full second floor. This gives the charm of the cottage with the practical features of the full two-storey house.

Cost about $11,000. Complete working plans and specifications of this house may be obtained for a nominal sum from the Building Editor. Refer to House "A-112."

BLUNDERS

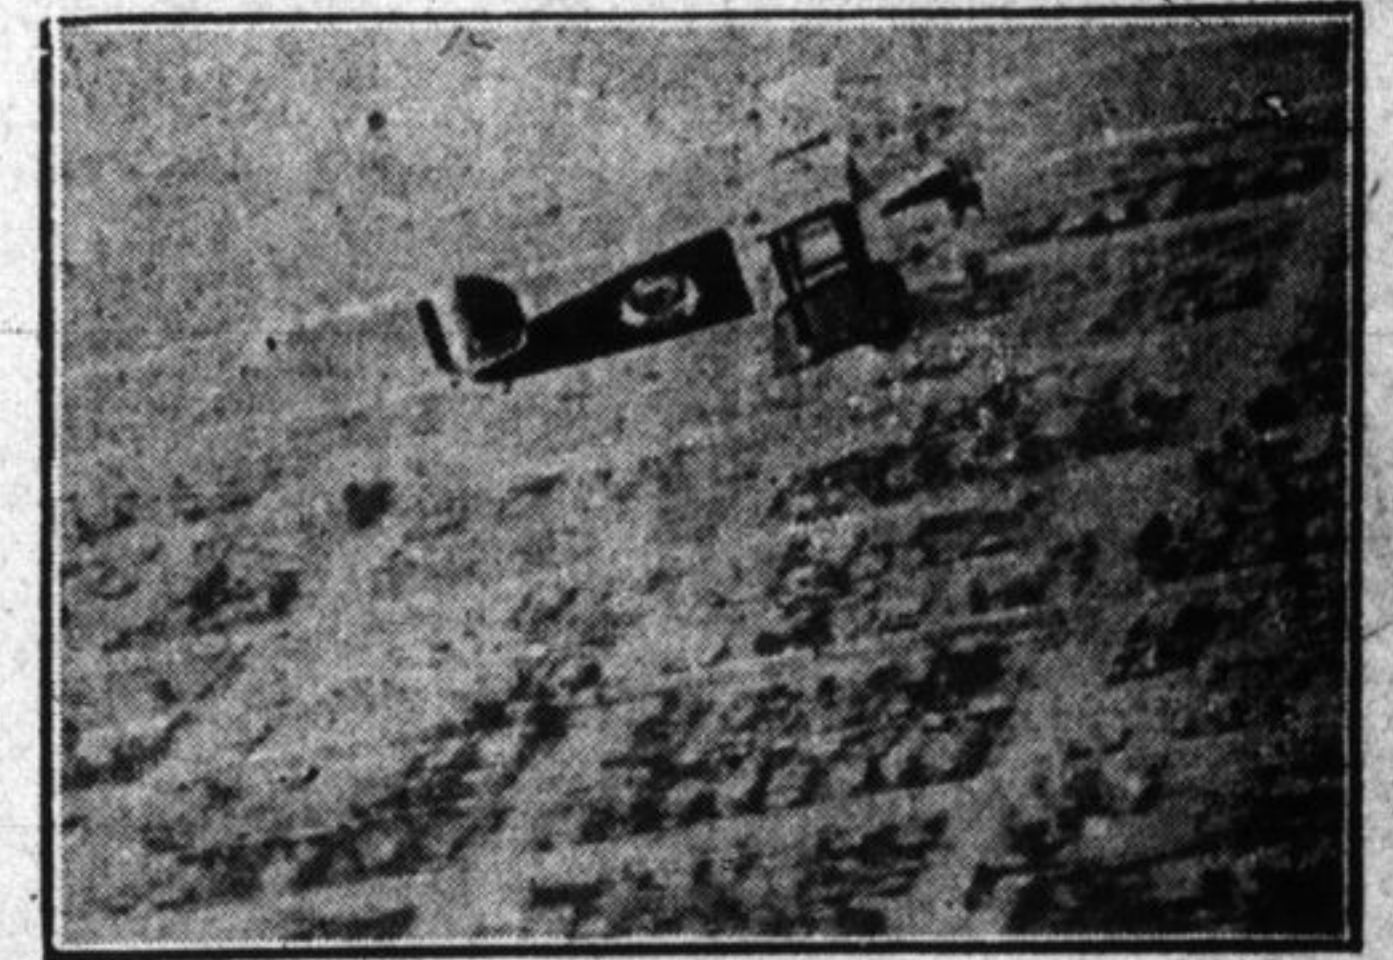

WHY IS THIS WRONG?

One of the many annoyances that the postal service has to contend with is the receipt of bundles of carelessly sealed letters, many of which are stuck together. Since letters can be run through the cancelling machines only one at a time, all those stuck together must first be pulled apart by some postal employee. This may result in mutilation of the addresses or in placing the letters to one side until other mail has been handled.

'Tis Thermos or 'Tisn't Thermos

If it isn't, it is not the original vacuum bottle introduced by us 20 years ago! The name "Thermos" means a lot on a vacuum bottle. It means that years of technical experience have gone into the making of the bottle and that it is as perfect as human skill can make it. It means unconditional reliability. Imitation Vacuum Bottles cannot possibly give you Thermos service. So tilt the bottle up and look at the bottom. If you see the name "Thermos" stamped there—you can be sure that you are getting your money's worth.
