Few, if any, of the organizations at work in Kingston find such ready response to an appeal for co-operation as the Victorian Order of Nurses. Perhaps this is because their work is primarily for the benefit of the child and whether we analyze it or not, we know in our hearts that service to the mother and the child is service not only to the state but to the human race. So on Friday when the Kingston Victorian Order committee held a tea and sale to buy necessities for the enlargement of their work, the Y.M.C.A. where the committee and nurses always find warm support, was a bright and cheerful place in which to get a cup of tea. Mrs. F. O. Reid, the president, and Mrs. W. H. Gimblett, the vice-president, received the visitors who filled the reception room. Mrs. S. Crawford and Mrs. Eason took the entrance fee, and about the room were tables laden with good things in charge of the members of the committee. Cakes, pies etc., were sold by a committee, of which the convenors were Mrs. G. Nobes and Mrs. F. Crawford, and a table piled with homemade bread early in the afternoon had not a crumb left at five o'clock. Mrs. O'Grady, who was in charge had sold it all. Blue and white boxes of candy were at a table in the corner presided over by Mrs. T. H. King and Mrs. Leisham, with some assistants. An interesting corner to which all the women paid a visit was the table with the children's clothes made by the sewing class at the Welfare Station. The sewing was neatly done and it was realized that a valuable lesson is learned by these little girls who can make baby clothes and neat garments for themselves. Miss Jack, Miss Nelsh and Miss Davis were in charge. The tea table, was unusually dainty with flax lace on a polished surface, yellow tulips and tall blue candles. Here Mrs. S. F. Campbell and Mrs. T. A. Davidson made tea, assisted by some of the Girl Guides, who thus did the one good turn yesterday. Mrs. T. A. Davidson, who arranged the programme, had brought some of Kingston's sweet singers to the "Y" and the audience enjoyed hearing Mrs. John Evans, Miss Christine Diack, Miss Marion McFayden and Miss K. Eason sing, and Miss May Sharpe play several piano numbers. The room was gay with flowers, a plant was on every table and a big jar of jonquills was on the piano.

The Baudouin Moved Higher. A London note says: "Women's headresses in Mayfair have changed their angle. A few months ago they were worn straight across the brow a few inches above the eyes but even Princess Mary has forsaken that style. Fashionable women now wear them in a semi-circle across the top of the head, after the 'classical goddess' fashion."

There is a good reason for the change, the London hair dressers say. Fatigue and headache were frequently produced by the headress formerly in favor, as it had to be tightly bound about the temples to keep it in place. The new semi-circle affords scope for decoration which has not been lost by the West End merchants. There are now on display many styles in silver, gold and green leaves with colored flowers entwined. A plain gilt fillet is a favorite, so also is one having points.

The new headress is most popular among the bobbed-haired who wish to add dignity to their short locks.

At Belleville General Hospital parting gifts were made to Miss Mildred Cullen, in charge of the operating room for the last three and a half years and who is leaving for a rest.

is danger that it may also take out the color. Often when this happens the original color can be restored by sponging with chloroform. It is safest, however, to experiment on a sample of the dress material before going ahead on the dress itself.

Acid Perspiration Stains: As explained above, this term covers all perspiration stains except those from the underarm. They are removed by alkaline applications, as follows: wet with suds of borax soap and place the garment in the sun. Or sponge with strong borax water. This method is harmless to white goods, but it is best to experiment on a small sample of colored goods before attempting it on a garment of similar colored fabric.

White Goods Yellowed by Perspiration Stains: White cotton or linen goods stained by either the alkaline or the acid stains may be bleached successfully by the use of Javelle water (buy it at a drugstore and follow directions on the bottle). Or they may be bleached with potassium Permanganate as follows: Dissolve one teaspoon of permanganate crystals (a poison) in one point of water. Wring the fabric out of clear water, then immerse it in this acid solution. In taking out the stain a purplish-brown color is left on the fabric, but this is removed by dipping the material into plain dilute oxalic acid and, when the brown color is gone, rinsing in clear water which contains a tablespoon of ammonia to the quart.

Underarm Stains on White Goods: Dip the stained portion of the garment into a weak solution of muriatic acid (poison), then dip it in clear hot water, followed by rinsing in water containing a little ammonia. Repeat this treatment several times if necessary, rather than leave the fabric in the acid bath till the stain is entirely bleached.

Underarm Stains on Colored Goods: The above method is the one most likely to take out the stain, but there

That Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., has been making reflections on the matter in the Canadian school text books during her visit to the United States, her complaint being that a military spirit is being fostered in the minds of Canadian children. One wonders just where Miss MacPhail or any other Canadian woman would be if the men of Canada had failed to show that much abused military spirit in 1914 and during the dread five years which followed. We certainly pray for peace but we feel it will be made more sure if our children are brought up to love their country and if necessary to die for her, as their fathers have done.

I Have Found a Way to Whiten Yellow Teeth Instantly

HERE IT IS - I never thought it was possible to have perfectly white teeth. But now I know that it is. It seemed that every dentifice I used failed to bring the result I desired. I had about given up hope of ever removing the stubborn film on my teeth when I saw an advertisement in the paper. The very next day I went to the drug store and got a package. I really didn't believe I would whiten my teeth. But to my astonishment, like a magic wand - my teeth were perfectly white! Let me tell you the grand and glorious feeling! I thank the Bleischoch Dental Laboratories for their invention.

This, in substance, is what an appreciative young woman recently wrote me. Bleischoch Dental Laboratories' re-grading their teeth with the Bleischoch Combination. This new discovery consists of a mild liquid and a new kind of paste. The liquid softens the stains, while the paste gently removes them. No effect on their own teeth, and on this point I have been assured by the public. Write for details before offering it to the public. Write to Bleischoch Dental Laboratories, 125 West 42nd Street, New York City.

Time for children's teeth. Get Bleischoch Combination (containing both liquid and paste) for small cost at all good drug stores.
