The Editor Hears

That Julia Hoyt makes the following pertinent remarks about that exceedingly tiresome and unchristian person, the discontented woman: "I have said that I do not believe that there is any good excuse for any woman being habitually discontented. By that I do not mean that many of us have everything that we desire, nor do I mean that many of us have not passed through the periods of discontent with ourselves and our lots. That is quite a different thing from chronic discontent, and so long as we can use the expression 'passed through,' we can go on to tell how we discovered a new interest and a new zest in life. I have never known anyone who had a definite interest in life who was troubled with more than fleeting moments of boredom and discontent."

That every year one of the events of May is the graduation of the nurses of Kingston General Hospital and the class of 1924 had as many friends and as many flowers as its predecessors.

That commenting that Burbank is teaching poppies to stay awake at night, a woman remarks now if he'd only teach the jazz fiends in the next flat to go to sleep!

That the tulips that lift their heads even in the rain, although they refuse to open their golden or crimson cups save for his majesty the sun, had a pretty compliment paid to them on one of the wet days this week for two girls going home on the car were overheard as follows: "Don't the tulips in the park look nice," said one. "Yes," said the other. "It does one good to see something bright on a day like this. And did you notice the flowers in the C. P. R. garden? They are simply grand."

That the country is wonderful just now. The grass is a vivid green and in the meadows great patches of golden marigolds make glorious spots of color; the leaves are budding and the woods are showing a misty green with darker tones where the fir trees are. The birds are nesting and nature showing she is fully alive to the duty of producing her year's supply for man and beast.

GALLAGHER'S TAXI SERVICE 960 DAY AND NIGHT

New Method Removes Wrinkles in 15 Minutes

A veritable wonder-worker for wrinkled and sallow faces is a simple, harmless application made by mixing a spoonful of powdered tarroot with a spoonful of lemon juice. Not only does it quickly smooth out the wrinkles and age lines—before a one's very eyes—but it has a stimulating influence upon the weakened and relaxed underlying tissues. The mixture is spread over the face with the fingertips, and in less than fifteen minutes the mirror shows that a most marvelous transformation has taken place. When the substance is washed off the average face actually looks ten or fifteen years younger. The results are far better than those obtainable from the most expert massage—and the cost is less than three cents a treatment! Powdered tarroot can be obtained from any druggist.

Your brain is the central power house of your nervous system; thousands of nerves, the wires, they carry the messages—the energy. Your muscles do the work. But you're not one whit stronger than your nerves — they are the source of all your strength. Through overwork, worry, grief, colds, hardship and neglect you become generally run down, fail to get your regular sleep, and it hard to do your work, and are played out at night. Perhaps you're restless, irritable, nervous and fidgety over everything you do. Your internal organs seem to get out of gear, stomach fails to digest food forming gas and your heart palpitates. You have mean little headaches sometimes like a band around your forehead, cramps in your neck or legs, are constipated. Food don't agree, won't assimilate, you have disagreeable feelings and weakness almost all over. You're so discouraged. Appears there's something wrong with the world—whereas, there's something the matter with you. You're one of those run-down, worn-out, tired, shattered peeps, frazzled Americans!

over a sleeveless underdress of brilliant jade green mohair. The straight lines are becoming to almost any figure and the clever use of buttons and the close fitting collar make it very youthful in appearance as well as practical.

MOTHERS And Their Children

When Company Comes. One Mother Says: Our table and service is so small that when we have guests the children cannot eat with us. Instead of following the old-fashioned method of letting the children wait for second table, I serve the children first. In addition to the dessert sacred to the guests I make a small cake or pie just for the children. They don't mind eating by themselves and are well out of the way when the company comes.
