"TIS NOT SWEET WITH NIMBLE FEET TO DANCE UPON THE AIR"

LIMITEDS OF 1863 AND 1924

The diminutive William Crooks, first locomotive ever run on the Great Northern Railway, has come back into its own again. Under its own steam, it set out from Chicago, May 16th, for the Pacific North-West, pulling an antiquated combination coach and old No. 9, the original Pullman sleeping car. A crew of veteran railroaders, dressed in the uniforms of 1863, man the toy-like train. And along with it is travelling one of the Great Northern's ten new Oriental Limited trains. The caravan will reach Seattle May 27th.

Mrs. John Ireland, Nobleton, Ont., writes:
